Finance Unit OKs $12.5 Million Schools Budget

A $12.5 million budget was finalized in finance committee Thursday and proposed for approval by the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 board of education Sept. 7.

Copies of the third draft of the budget showing an anticipated surplus of $34,100 are available for inspection at the district's administration offices.

Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 business manager, said the district has not approved a deficit budget for the past eight years.

"This year we remain solvent; not a bad feeling at all," he added.

The budget represents a $1,666,520 increase over last years $10.8 million budget expenditures.

Lapicola said the board of education is expected to approve a resolution Aug. 3 calling for a Sept. 7 budget hearing at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg. Residents are encouraged to pick up copies of the budget and bring questions to the meeting Sept. 7.

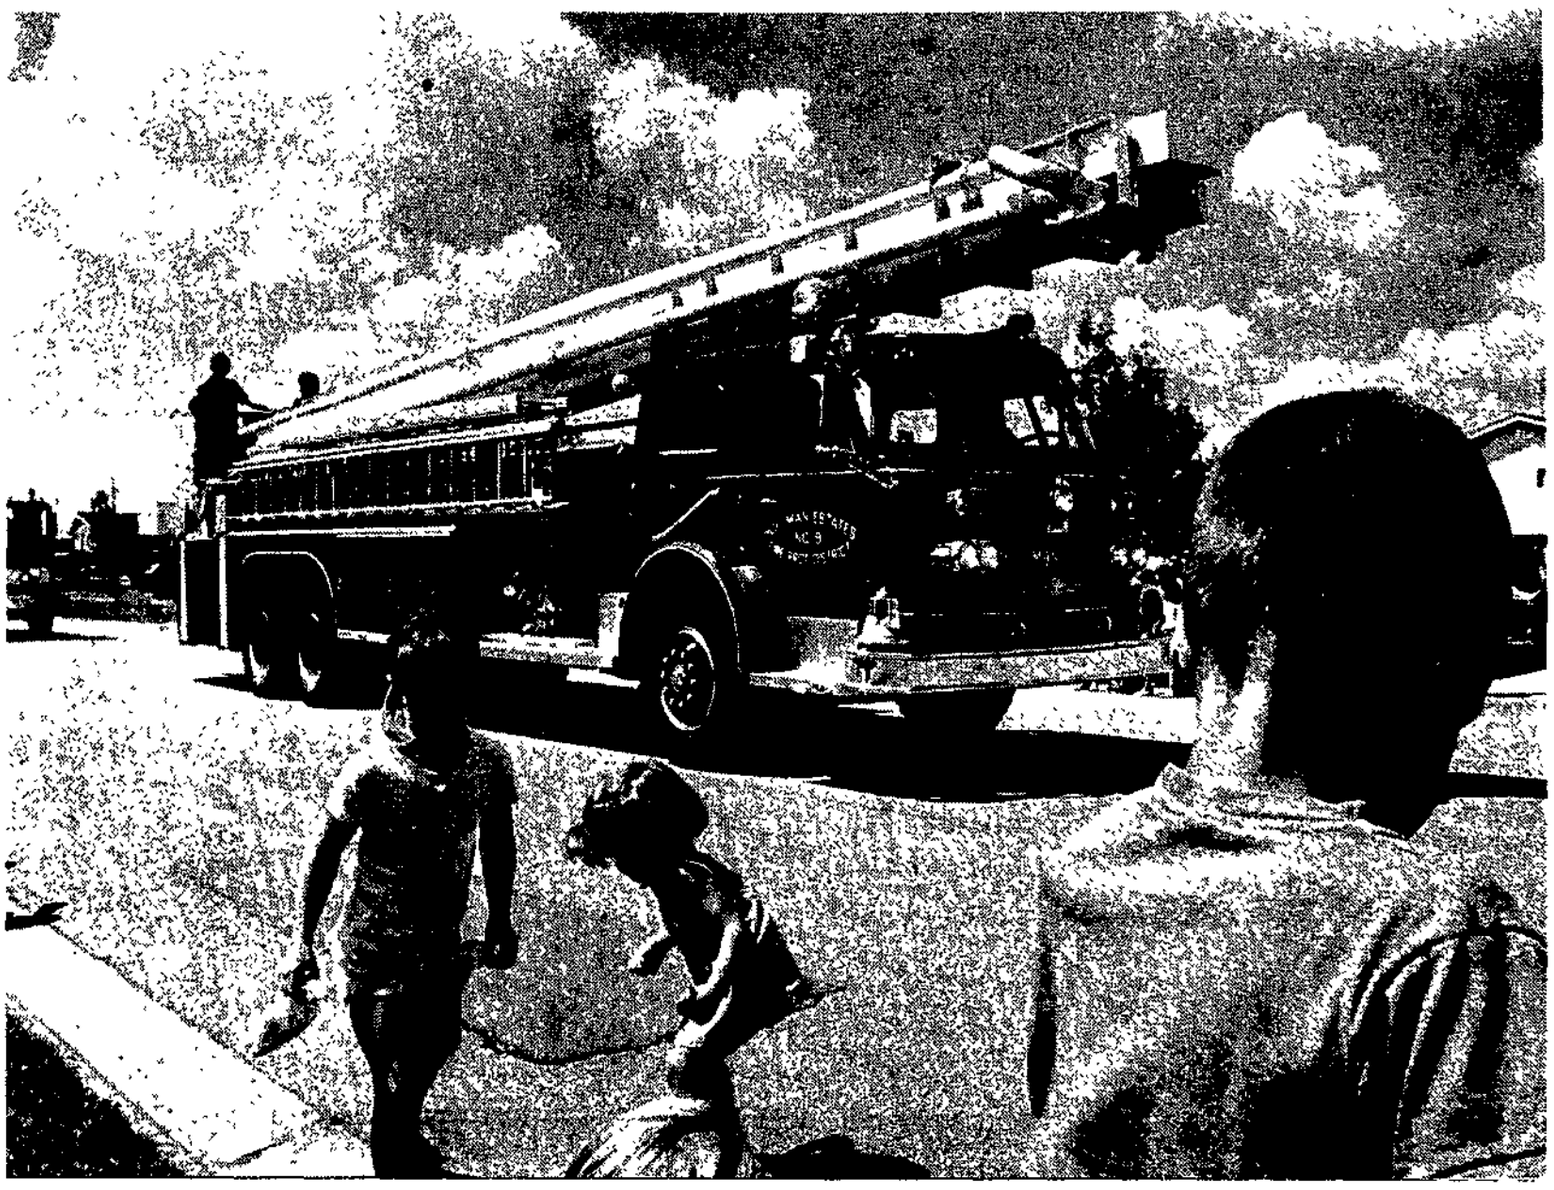
THE TOTAL estimated revenues are $12,492,250 and total estimated expenditures are $12,458,150. The budget includes four operational funds — the educational, building, transportation and Illinois Municipal Retirement funds.

Anticipated expenses in the education fund include teacher salary increases, said Lapicola. At present, the district is in the midst of negotiating salary contracts with the Schaumburg Education Association, representing teachers.

Although both the board and teachers association report progress in negotiating, neither group indicates a contract settlement could be reached before the budget is adopted in September.

Anticipated revenues in the budget reflect an increase in state aid.

Lapicola explained a change in formula gives Dist. 54 a total of $400,000 more in state aid than it received last year.



SHINDIG TIME . . . Fire equipment from Hoffman Estates and other communities joined Schaumburg firemen in this kickoff parade for the annual Schaumburg Firemen's Shindig. Floats, marching units and several bands joined the firemen to begin the day-long festivities in Schaumburg. The event was sponsored by the fire department to raise money for their benevolent fund.

Village Acts On Larsen Resignation

The resignation of Trustee Jack Larsen and the creation of a new aesthetics committee were among staffing matters receiving attention by Schaumburg Village Board this week.

Larsen's resignation, announced early this summer, had not been officially accepted by the village board until last Tuesday, his last night of service as a trustee. His resignation is effective tomorrow.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher and board members termed Larsen's service during his seven years of village residence as dedicated and effective for the benefit of taxpayers..

Trustee Peter Justen, newest board member and Larsen's replacement as chairman of the village environmental committee, presented Larsen with a certificate of appreciation for his activities on the committee. Atcher said Larsen also will receive a plaque from the village.

ATCHER ALSO announced that the first two appointees to the aesthetics committee, Burt Cherney and Shirley LeBeau. At full staff, the committee will have five to seven members, said Atcher, although he has not yet selected the other persons to present to the board for confirmation of appointments.

The committee will survey to gather data for recommending village ordinances in areas that will eventually be problems, said Atcher.

Among these potential problems are the parking of campers, boats, trucks and trailers on driveways, and the clutter from signs, he said. The committee is to outline directions in which the village should move in a sign program for the next 18 months to two years, he said.

A change in responsibilities was approved for Harry Mammach, formerly chairman of the village plan commission and now made a member of the zoning board of appeals. Atcher said he anticipates announcing soon the appointment of another zoning board member to fill a remaining vacancy.

Ray Arthur, long a member of the plan commission, was appointed chairman to fill the vacancy left by Mammach's move. Another long-term commission member, Dick Nomellini, was named vice chairman. Appointed as a new plan commission member to fill out the membership, was Ben Baran.

Cafe Hearings Resume Tonight

Hearings on liquor license rights for the Dalehouse Restaurant will continue at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

Mayor Frederick Downey will preside at the hearings, which were delayed pending a court case initiated by Twinbrook Investments Inc., contesting repossession of the restaurant by Multicon Properties, Inc.

Cook County Chancery Court Judge James J. Medja ruled last week Multicon will retain possession, but the restaurant will not reopen under its management until staffing is completed and the firm obtains a liquor license from the village.

During the civil suit, Twinbrook also had applied for a license.

'Fire That Killed 3 Kids Was Arson'

A police detective and a state arson investigator both testified Friday that the May 12 fire in Hoffman Estates that killed three children was deliberately set.

The testimony came during a Cook County coroner's inquest into the deaths of Stephanie, Robert and Todd Gahan, who died in a fire in their home at 129 Des Plaines Ln., Hoffman Estates. All three children were under the age of 10.

The coroner's jury concluded from the information presented at the inquest "the cause of death cannot be listed as accidental or homicidal." They ruled the cause undetermined.

DET. RON Sperandeo of the Hoffman Estates Police Department said he believes "violence and foul play" were involved in the fire.

Roger Sutton of the state fire marshal's office testified the fire definitely was arson.

Sutton agreed with Sperandeo that foul play was involved in the incident.

An examination of the one-story frame house revealed that at least two fires had been set and that some type of accelerant was used. These explain the intense heat and flames which hampered firefighters' attempts to rescue the youngsters, he said.

Both men said there is a prime suspect in the fire, and the investigation, which now has been conducted for more than 10 weeks, is continuing.

THE SUSPECT'S eyewitness accounts of the fire and information supplied by other sources contained many contradictions, they testified.

The suspect's name, although revealed during the inquest, could not be released, according to court rules.

Medical reports on the three deceased children all revealed more than 50 per cent carbon monoxide in their blood. The examining physicians ruled death was caused by severe burns and asphyxiation.

Both Sperandeo and Sutton declined to reveal what further steps their investigation might reveal.

No charges have been filed in connection with the fire.

Man Charged With Drunken Driving

Herbert Miller, 141 Arlington St., Hoffman Estates, was arrested by Buffalo Grove police at 2:30 a.m. Thursday and charged with driving while intoxicated.

Police said they stopped Miller after observing him weaving back and forth across the road as he traveled west on Dundee Road.

Developers Hire Mosquito Spray Company

In order to alleviate severe mosquito problems in Sheffield Park East and West subdivisions in Schaumburg, Clarke Outdoor Spraying Co., LaGrange, has been hired by Levitt and Sons, developer of the area.

At a cost of $180 per application, pyrethium spraying was conducted Friday and will be repeated again today, according to information provided to the village board of health last week by John Clarke of the exterminating firm.

Although Schaumburg recently authorized temporary lifting of a ban which prohibits the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District from using malathion in mosquito control, the district has refused to provide this service in the village.

BOTH SCHAUMBURG and Palatine, which has a similar ban, are involved in litigation over establishment of the ordinance prohibiting malathion spraying. The suit was initiated by the abatement district and now is pending in Cook County Circuit Court.

OFFICIALS IN BOTH communities contend malathion is environmentally harmful.

Clarke maintains pyrethium used in his program has far less toxicity and breaks down completely within a 24-hour period, leaving no residue to harm humans or beneficial insects.

Members of the board of health expressed interest in pursuing an investigation of the legality of withholding tax funds from the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District, since that taxing body is not performing its job in Schaumburg, they said.

Fare Hikes, Service Cuts At C&NW?

The possibility of added fare hikes and cutbacks in suburban commuter service was raised by Larry S. Provo, president of the Chicago and North Western Ry.

Provo, presenting testimony before the Illinois Commission for Economic Development, said "inadequate rate increases and increasing subsidized competition" are troubling the railroad.

This combination, Provo told participants at the Chicago session, "will force us to seek a further increase in the near future, and also, in order to reduce our costs and preserve the viability of our service, to consider reductions to the communities we serve."

COMMENTING ON last week's announcement by the Illinois Commerce Commission that it will allow a 5¼ per cent fare increase for the C & N starting tomorrow, Provo said, "We sought a 7 per cent increase to stop the deterioration of income . . . the 5¼ per cent raise given to the railroad will mean that the company will still be losing money on its suburban service."

On March 1 of this year, according to Provo, the C & NW experienced its first losses on suburban commuter operations in eight years. Provo contends that subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority make competition impossible for the railroad.

Provo made his remarks as a preface to his endorsement of the Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System proposal. The system would set up a unified agency to operate all mass transit facilities in the metropolitan area.

No timetable has yet been worked out for a possible fare increase or cutbacks in service, according to a C & NW spokesman.

"We don't want to reduce service," the spokesman said. "This is the last thing we want to do. This is why we are behind the idea of a single, mass transit planning operation. Nobody has been making a profit but us, and now those profits are eroding."

ALTHOUGH THE C&NW gained approval of a 7 per cent fare hike in June, 1971, the railroad said this was not adequate to meet rising costs. It went before the Illinois Commerce Commission in February to seek an added 7 per cent fare increase, which Provo contends is the lowest possible increase it could have requested to meet costs and would have covered only last year's wage increases.

The 5¼ per cent fare increase finally granted by the commission came four months after the April 1 date sought by the C & NW.

"Had we gained the 7 per cent increase when we asked for it, on April 1, in the intervening time since then we would have gained an additional $500,000 in revenues," according to the railway spokesman.

"A large segment of the C & NW's suburban work force received a 5 per cent wage increase April 15 this year. Another 5 per cent wage boost is slated for the workers Oct. 15."

Provo said earnings from suburban operations have declined sharply since 1968, when they reached $2.4 million. Earnings dropped to $1.6 million in 1971 and continued to fall this year. The railroad became employe-owned on June 1.

Fare Hikes, Service Cuts At C&NW?

The possibility of added fare hikes and cutbacks in suburban commuter service was raised by Larry S. Provo, president of the Chicago and North Western Ry.

Provo, presenting testimony before the Illinois Commission for Economic Development, said "inadequate rate increases and increasing subsidized competition" are troubling the railroad.

This combination, Provo told participants at the Chicago session, "will force us to seek a further increase in the near future, and also, in order to reduce our costs and preserve the viability of our service, to consider reductions to the communities we serve."

COMMENTING ON last week's announcement by the Illinois Commerce Commission that it will allow a 5¼ per cent fare increase for the C & N starting tomorrow, Provo said, "We sought a 7 per cent increase to stop the deterioration of income . . . the 5¼ per cent raise given to the railroad will mean that the company will still be losing money on its suburban service."

On March 1 of this year, according to Provo, the C & NW experienced its first losses on suburban commuter operations in eight years. Provo contends that subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority make competition impossible for the railroad.

Provo made his remarks as a preface to his endorsement of the Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System proposal. The system would set up a unified agency to operate all mass transit facilities in the metropolitan area.

No timetable has yet been worked out for a possible fare increase or cutbacks in service, according to a C & NW spokesman.

"We don't want to reduce service," the spokesman said. "This is the last thing we want to do. This is why we are behind the idea of a single, mass transit planning operation. Nobody has been making a profit but us, and now those profits are eroding."

ALTHOUGH THE C&NW gained approval of a 7 per cent fare hike in June, 1971, the railroad said this was not adequate to meet rising costs. It went before the Illinois Commerce Commission in February to seek an added 7 per cent fare increase, which Provo contends is the lowest possible increase it could have requested to meet costs and would have covered only last year's wage increases.

The 5¼ per cent fare increase finally granted by the commission came four months after the April 1 date sought by the C & NW.

"Had we gained the 7 per cent increase when we asked for it, on April 1, in the intervening time since then we would have gained an additional $500,000 in revenues," according to the railway spokesman.

"A large segment of the C & NW's suburban work force received a 5 per cent wage increase April 15 this year. Another 5 per cent wage boost is slated for the workers Oct. 15."

Provo said earnings from suburban operations have declined sharply since 1968, when they reached $2.4 million. Earnings dropped to $1.6 million in 1971 and continued to fall this year. The railroad became employe-owned on June 1.

Among other participants favoring a unified mass transit system for the city and suburbs at the hearing were Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, and U. S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson.

Between the Lines

Agencies Fight, Mosquitos Bite

by NANCY COWGER

Amidst all the slapping and scratching in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg these days is quite a bit of grousing, too.

The citizens are upset about an ecological problem. They have not come out in hordes — only about 15 to 25 persons have attended Schaumburg Village Board meetings, and probably an equal number in Hoffman Estates, depending on which week you counted noses.

But their complaints settle on something that has come out in hordes — mosquitos.

AND IN EACH village, the pesky insect seems to have bitten the community where it cannot scratch. Schaumburg seems to have tied its own hands, and Hoffman Estates just can't seem to reach the bite.

The whole mosquito controversy is fraught with contradictions. The only persons who could end these have not done so, either because they refuse to, or because they cannot.

Schaumburg's malady is complicated. The village has an ordinance banning fogging with toxic chemicals, the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) has filed suit and the village is defending the suit. While the village has employed an emergency clause in the ordinance, asking for fogging, NMAD refuses to comply unless the village exempts it from the ordinance entirely.

And when the villagers complain, they are told to file suit.

How's that for responsive government in action?

Schaumburg could bring NMAD in simply by repealing its ordinance, or by granting the exemption. But that would in effect be admitting an error. The ordinance may be quite valid — toxic chemicals may indeed be damaging to the environment and to its human residents. But so might mosquito bites, and the diseases mosquitos can carry.

BECAUSE THE village will not back down, and because NMAD is too proud to let a village government dictate policy, Schaumburg residents must hire a lawyer to get relief, with the likelihood redress would not arrive before the mosquitos leave of their own accord.

Particularly ironic about the whole situation is the fact these squabbles between the villages and NMAD are all being financed with taxpayers funds. Schaumburg residents are paying an NMAD tax to fight mosquitos, and a village tax to pay the lawyer who is fighting NMAD. Now they also are advised to pay a private lawyer to fight NMAD, forcing it to come in and kill mosquitos in violation of a village law.

I must have missed something along the way, because the logic escapes me completely.

But Schaumburg does have a valid point, too. The ordinance prohibits only spraying. Larvicides and other procedures are not mentioned. Not being thoroughly acquainted with the breeding cycles of mosquitos, I don't know if Larvicides would work this late in the season, but they might be more purposeful than slapping one bug at a time.

The Northwest Mosquito Abatement District seems to control the jaws of the bug in Hoffman Estates, in spinoff effect from the Schaumburg dispute. NMAD had done little fogging in the village until this week. When asked why, NMAD spokesmen told the village they were waiting for a map of Schaumburg, to insure they did not cross village lines.

THE ANSWER WAS ridiculous on its face. NMAD certainly could have obtained a map from Hoffman Estates, if it felt it needed one.

If it's any consolation to Schaumburg Township, it is not alone in its mosquito war. Reports from other communities throughout the suburban region indicate fogging has been noticeably absent of ineffective in other areas too.

Rotary Gives Van To Twinbrook Y

A year-long public service project for the Schaumburg Rotary Club culminated Friday with the presentation of a 12-passenger van to the Twinbrook YMCA.

The $5,500 van was purchased for the Y through a series of fund-raising projects, according to the immediate past president of the club Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy.

Conroy said the bulk of the money was raised through the group's annual dance. Other projects throughout the year helped raise additional funds.

"We wanted to contribute something that would be of service to a large segment of the community and would be around for a few years," Conroy said.

Friday turned out to be a double presentation day, because Bob Williams, executive director of the Y, honored Conroy with the 1972 "Service to Youth award."

The plaque noted the outstanding work of Conroy and the Rotary in its assistance to the YMCA. Conroy said he was taken completely by surprise by the presentation. He added that he was greatly honored.

The van will be used by the Y for transporting youngsters to many of its recreational programs. The van was purchased from Colonial Chevrolet in Schaumburg.

Fire District Emergency Gear Purchase OKd

Fire, police and public works emergency services each received attention from the Hoffman Estates Village Board last week.

The fire district won approval for village purchase of two cardiac monitoring treatment and transmission systems for use in district ambulances. Total cost of the equipment, to be purchased from Pioneer Medical Systems, is $10,640. Earlier the village approved spending up to $13,000 for the equipment.

Only one negative vote was cast on the board. Trustee Ed Hennessy and principles kept him from spending village tax dollars for equipment for another governmental unit. Hennessy has raised the same objection in previous discussions.

However, Hennessy said he thoroughly approves of the equipment purchase.

THE SYSTEMS are to be part of a multiple-village program centered on Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Any ambulance of a village in the system will be equipped to monitor the heart action of an emergency cardiac patient and transmit to the hospital via radio readings of the heartbeat and oral information on the patient's condition. In the hospital, an emergency room doctor will transmit instructions to the ambulance crew for treatment to be given while en route.

The police department received honors in the way of a commendation for Chief John O'Connell from the Illinois Department of Corrections, Juvenile Officers Information File. O'Connell was cited for "furtherance of better understanding of the problems of youth and encouragement of activities for the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency and in the development of a better community."

Recognition of emergency service also was bestowed on the public works department and its superintendent, Kenneth Dean.

Fire Chief Carl Selke commended Dean and the department for a "magnificent job" in aiding fire department personnel and victims after the July 14 storm. The men's efforts were "extremely important to us in clearing streets," said Selke, who also cited neighbors of the victims for helping in providing a shelter for the homeless and clearing debris from damaged homes and from streets.

Pat Irwin New Park Commissioner

The Schaumburg Park District announced Thursday that Pat Irwin has been appointed to fill a vacancy on the board of commissioners.

Irwin was among four persons who applied for the position which opened with the resignation of Ray Hum. Irwin will be sworn in Aug. 10.

He has been active in the Schaumburg Athletic Association, coaching both baseball and football teams for several years. Irwin also has served as treasurer of the Timbercrest Homeowners Association.

An accounting manager for Avon, Inc., Irwin has lived in Schaumburg six years. He is married and has four children. The family resides at 324 Bramble Ln., Schaumburg.

After Irwin's appointment was announced, Park Board President Robert Bock announced another resignation.

Guy Felt, who joined the park board in January, is leaving Schaumburg to operate a resort motel he has purchased in the Wisconsin Dells area.

Bock said a replacement for Felt will be chosen from the three other men who applied with Irwin for the previous board opening. The appointment will be made at the board's August meeting.

3-Month Construction Ends, Northwest Tollway Opens

Construction was completed Friday on the eastbound lanes of the Northwest Tollway, ending the three-month highway resurfacing project.

Three lanes in both directions have been restored to normal, although clean-up operations continue today, according to Illinois Tollway officials.

The eastbound Northwest Tollway, where only a single lane had been open for the past two weeks, was the last of the 22-mile resurfacing on the Tri-State and Northwest tollways to be finished. The work on the Tri-State Tollway ended more than a week ago.

Construction began May 2 on both toll systems. The Tri-State was resurfaced from Ogden Avenue to the juncture of the Northwest Tollway and the Northwest Tollway from the Kennedy Interchange to Meacham Road near Schaumburg.

Total cost of the work was $5,800,000.

As this summer's tollway work ends, consideration is being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Ill. Rte. 137.

Additional work next summer may be scheduled on the Tri-State between Harlem Avenue and Interstate 55.

He Testified Against The Mob--And He's Still Running

(Last in a Series.)

by MORT GOLDEN

As Told to Ira Berkow

I had to begin a new life, somehow. I still owed the Mafia $12,000 from juice loans. I had passed more bad checks and there was a warrant out for my arrest. My wife had divorced me and I rarely saw my three young boys, who mean more to me than anything in the world. They were on welfare. That crushed me.

I wanted to start fresh, to do something constructive that would make my family proud of me, to do something that would make up in a small way for some of the tragedy I had inflicted on them.

I was in Denver, after having lost several thousand dollars in Las Vegas in a last hope to make a big killing to get me off the financial hook. I called the FBI, told them briefly who I was and what information about the Chicago Mafia I had. Almost before I hung up there were two agents at my door.

IN RETURN for the information, I told them I wanted to relocate my family (my wife had agreed, for the sake of the children, to come back to me if I could start fresh) at their expense. I wanted them to provide protection for my parents in Chicago. I wanted them to guarantee me immunity from any possible prosecution that I might subsequently encounter due to the bad checks I had written and any possible prosecutions pertaining to any fraud I may have been involved in.

I also wanted $5,000 in cash immediately to get myself partially straightened out financially. I told them that I would testify when needed but would not become directly involved in anything else.

They said they'd let me know, but that it would take awhile. I said I had to know immediately. When they couldn't do this right away, I called the Illinois Crime Commission.

The ICC flew me back to Chicago. They agreed to my terms, almost. They were willing to give me $3,000 right away. Also, they wanted me to do undercover work. I reluctantly agreed.

Soon afterward I called Dick Cardi, who was the guy I borrowed most of my juice money from. I told him I was broke, that he had all my money. He said he was an understanding guy and that he would give me a pass for awhile, but that I had to continue making token payments. He said he liked my honesty.

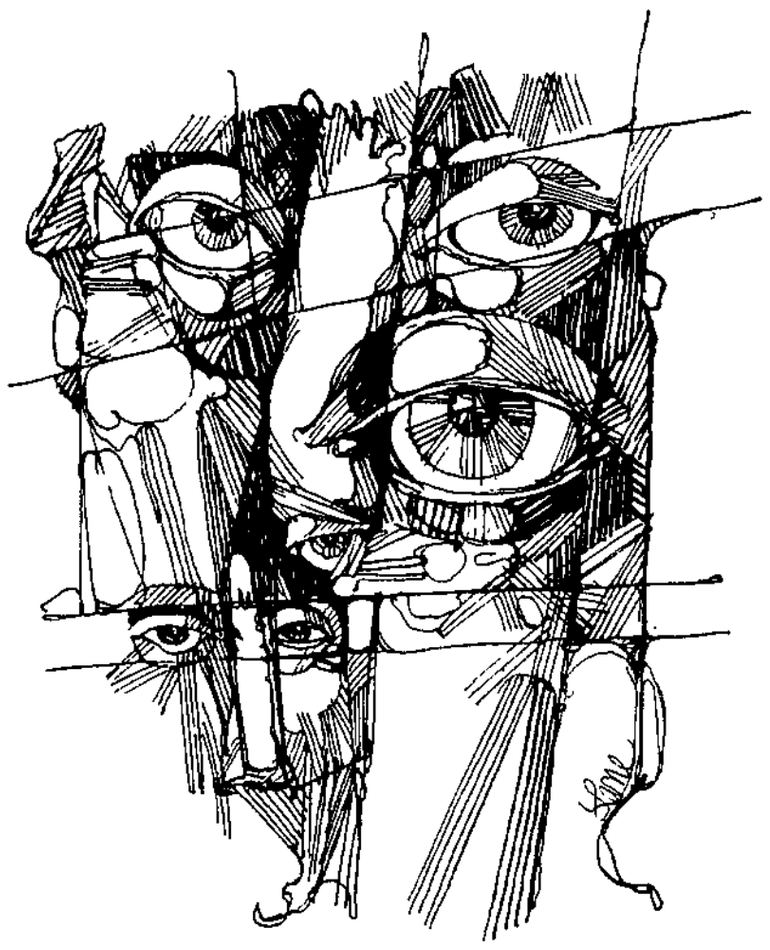
BECAUSE OF HIS trust in me, I was able to get Ron Huarte, an ICC agent posing as a friend of mine who had gambling debts, a loan from the Outfit. Huarte had been set up with a construction company as an employe, and the switchboard operator there was told they had a new man in the firm.

Huarte and I met Cardi in a restaurant. The meeting went off smoothly, although I was sweating bullets. I felt like Spencer Tracy.

After a few months of getting transcriptions of conversations I had with the Mafia, the ICC felt it was time I testify before the Illinois Senate subcommittee on organized crime's loan racket operation.

I was never so nervous in my life as in those days prior to the hearing. I knew that if the Mafia was ever going to make a determined effort to kill me it would be before I testified. I was provided with a 24-hour-a-day bodyguard, and stayed in a downtown hotel room most of the time.

I felt reasonably safe with my bodyguard. His name was Bill Withers, the meanest, toughest-looking character you'd ever not want to meet. He was 6-5, solid muscle, had one bad eye with a droopy eyelid. He was a black belt in judo and a black belt in karate. We slept with our .22s on the night table between our beds.



The hotel help was informed not to come near the part of the floor our room was on. So it was very quiet. But one morning we were awakened by footsteps. They got louder, and closer. Quickly and silently we both leaped out of our beds.

I had my .45 out and stood beside the door. Withers sat on his bed, his weapon pointing at the door. The door opened. We cocked our pistols. In walked a maid carrying some kind of tray. She saw us, screamed, threw up the tray and ran out of the room.

THE NEXT DAY I testified, with all the Mafia guys I had been associated with in that hearing room. I was shaking. I did not look at them. I felt them looking right through me. I named names, situations, places, said that I estimated that Cadri may have about one thousand juice loan customers just like me.

Afterward, I was escorted by secret armed guard to a waiting plane at O'Hare Airport. I couldn't help wondering how the newscasts that night and the newspaper stories the next day would affect my parents. As it turned out many of their friends ignored it and to this day have never mentioned it to them. Others tried to console them, saying that I possessed great courage to testify.

It was finally over, I thought, and all I had to do now was lead a normal life. Yet — yet I knew only too well that I was not out of danger, that I probably never would be. Charles Siragusa, director of the ICC, and his assistant, Howard Roos, assured me that revenge just for the sake of revenge was in their opinion completely out of the question. "These people are businessmen," said Siragusa, "and killing someone just for revenge after the damage is done is bad business and too risky, with no apparent shock value because of the distance between Chicago and your new home."

It was good to hear, but not altogether reassuring. I still would not be comfortable without being able to pat my pistol in my shoulder holster.

I MOVED TO San Antonio, Tex., far, far away from Chicago. The ICC had contacted the local police. The local police tried to get me a job. Little could be told about my background and since I had all new identification, any kind of tracing would lead to dead ends. I was offered only menial jobs. Finally I got a decent job as a salesman. I did very well, bought a four-bedroom house.

I received a great deal of help from a truly outstanding lawman, Inspector Jack Hutton of the San Antonio police. Hutton, a tough, honest cop, provided a much-needed physical presence when I thought my life might be in danger and also helped me through some rough financial times, getting me business contacts that my lack of credentials would otherwise have prohibited and backing me up to my creditors.

Still, I was looking over my shoulder. I was touchy when people asked where I came from and what I had done. Too many times I told them it was none of their business. Some thought I was an ex-convict.

Sometimes it was embarrassing, like the time my wife had some friends over for a friendly card game and I took off my jacket and my gun fell out.

MOSTLY, THOUGH, I was happy and leading "a normal life." That came to an abrupt end. One day in a department store I almost literally walked into an old Chicago business associate. No way I could duck him. He greeted me with a big, surprised hello, as if he had just discovered a gold mine.

My former business partner had owed him about $500. He said he wanted the money. I had nothing to do with that debt. This was blackmail; I knew he knew about my testimony. I didn't know if this guy had any Mafia connections, but I began to pay him in small amounts every time he came to my new town. But after each payment, I put my gun to his head and said, "This thing will go off if you ever tell anyone where I am."

He hasn't — yet. I pray for his sake and mine that he doesn't.

GOP Plans Voter Registration Drive

by BOB LAHEY

Suburban Republicans, determined not to take anything for granted in the presidential election, are gearing up for a major registration drive on Aug. 19.

The drive is being organized under the direction of Ethel Kolerus of Arlington Heights, 12th Congressional District coordinator for the Committee to Reelect President Nixon.

Trial drives were conducted over the weekend in Palatine Township and in Ela Township in Lake County, as warmups for the Aug. 19 effort.

In Wheeling Township, the drive is under the direction of Township Assessor Marshall Theroux, who reports a "surprising" influx of first-time volunteers who have expressed a desire to work for Nixon.

In Wheeling Township alone, Theroux is hopeful of turning out 500 doorbell-ringers on the day of the registration drive, and hopes the workers will contact 12,000 households — approximately one-third of all those in the township — in a single day.

Theroux estimated that he now has 30 to 40 volunteer telephone workers recruiting others for campaign chores and for the registration drive.

THE DOORBELL RINGERS, in addition to urging voters to register, will also ask each person to participate in the Nixon campaign. By election day, Theroux hopes to have 2,000 election volunteers

That would be, to say the least, a formidable election apparatus. But Theroux believes the potential is there, largely because of the number of formerly inactive Republicans and converts from Democratic ranks which he has encountered in the early weeks since his appointment as township coordinator

As an example of these, Theroux points to Charles Swanson, 2216 N Kennicott Ave., Arlington Heights, who is project coordinator in Theroux's area for "Target '72," as they call the registration drive.

Swanson is sales manager for U S. Shelter Co , a housing management development company, and a self-described convert from the Democratic ranks.

Swanson was driven to support of President Nixon, he says, largely because of the economic policies put forth by Democratic nominee, Sen George McGovern

HE SAID THERE IS a feeling among many Democrats of his acquaintance that McGovern's economic and defense policies would be detrimental, though he is "willing to concede some of their (Democrats') social programs" are laudable.

But, he said, McGovern's proposed "$1,000 gift to everyone," and his tax policies directed against large corporations could lead to them "sitting on their hands" for the next four years. "That is just what we don't need for the economy today," observed Swanson.

That, combined with McGovern's proposal to reduce defense commitments "which could cause some countries to look elsewhere for their friends," is largely responsible for former Democrat Charles Swanson to go to work for Richard M Nixon, and to go out looking for others to do the same.

Nixon's Brother Gathers Tapes For Library

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Backstairs at the White House:

President Nixon's brother Edward has been working on an oral history project at the President's alma mater, Whittier College, for the past year

The younger Nixon tries to "encourage" people, he said, to record for posterity their reminiscences of the President in his younger political days. Both the John F Kennedy and Lyndon B Johnson libraries have such tapes by friends and associates from their White House days.

As a member of the Board of Trustees of the Richard Nixon Foundation, Edward has visited all the presidential libraries in search of ideas.

HE SAID IN an interview that the question of where the Nixon library should be located has not been resolved Whittier College, located in the President's hometown of Whittier, Calif , is a "natural choice," he said.

Edward also is trying to "sort out" whether there should be a library where scholars can study presidential papers, and a museum where the public may view artifacts and mementoes of the Nixon White House years Both the President and his wife Pat already have a catalog of state gifts and other special remembrances which are destined for the library

Both the Kennedy and Johnson libraries have such museum displays. Nixon described the LBJ library in Austin, Tex. as "spectacular."

SOME DOCTORS at Bethesda Naval Hospital nearby in Maryland believe that President Johnson was trying to make a medical point when he startled the world by baring his chest to show his gall bladder incision

It had been widely interpreted that Johnson was seeking sympathy in 1966 when he summoned photographers back as they were leaving his side at the hospital where he was convalescing and showed them his scar.

But physicians ministering to Johnson believe he was trying to quell rumors that his surgery was much more serious. He demonstrated that he had not had an "exploratory" operation, which would have required a much longer vertical incision Doctors could tell by the incision that it was a gall bladder operation.

PAT NIXON wants to be at the Republican National Convention on opening day. She told reporters she wants to be near the "action" when her husband is nominated for a second term.

THE DAY CARRIES her through her daily mail load, teas, and a quiet dinner with the President at night.

She is expected to be a "very active" campaigner, according to Connie Stuart, her press secretary Mrs Nixon and her daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, were expected to hit the trail early in September.

The Nixons are expected to fly to California when the Republican Miami Beach convention ends Aug. 23 for a few days rest before the President flies to Hawaii to meet with new Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka

Nixon also is expected to formally launch his re-election campaign in southern California. The state, the nation's most populous, will be a battleground for presidential votes.

MIAMI BEACH—The two busloads of poor people imported by the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy to demonstrate at the Democratic Convention milled about on the fringes of a small cantonment of pup tents entitled "Resurrection City II" in one of this resort city's parks.

Twenty minutes earlier, Dr. Abernathy had arrived in a sedan which drove over the park turf, honking its way through a crowd of some 1,000 hippies, Yippies, Zippies, SDS, Vietnam Veterans Against the War, Tenants Unioners, Welfare Rights Organizationers and head-shaven Hare Krishna chanters.

The atmosphere was humid and the aroma was an acrid amalgamation of random cooking, field toilets, open garbage cans, unwashed bodies and Hare Krishna incense

Dr Abernathy's poor people continued milling about for another 40 minutes, while this successor to the late Dr. Martin Luther King sat like a Caliph in front of his (far more impressive than pup) tent, to receive the adulation of a multitude of celebrity seekers and the attention of the media.

Finally, one of Dr Abernathy's Southern Christian Leadership Conference aides began shouting an appeal asking that everyone evacuate the pup tent area so that tents could be assigned to the poor (a number of these tents had already been flattened when the crowd strolled along "Abernathy Blvd." and tripped over several tent ropes)

TWENTY MORE minutes went by with no one receiving any such tent assignments from the Southern Christian Leaders, including the great man, who continued receiving his public white seated in front of his tent. Several small children among the poor people either scurried about or wept as a result of the long trip and no immediately apparent place to bed.

Then the humidity broke with a down pour of rain.

This was indeed reminiscent (almost nostalgic) of the original Resurrection City in Washington, D.C. Here, shortly after the assassination of Dr King, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, newly delivered to Abernathy's leadership led the poor people into another cantonment, a shanty town of tents and crates that soon became a giant and ghastly quagmire of mud

During a brief interview in front of his tent here, Dr. Abernathy recalled that he had camped out in the original Resurrection City, right along with the people as befits a leader of the poor.

Did he reside with them the whole time?

"Well," he replied, spying this writer's media identification badge and shifting his recollection into high gear, "there were times when I had to be out to raise money and there was all that rain."

INDEED THERE WAS. And there was also a black reporter from Philadelphia who exposed the sumptuous meals which Dr. Abernathy was eating while checked into the nearby Pitts Motor Hotel — while the victims of his leadership were ankle-deep in mud.

One of these victims was the Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, who recently split with the SCLC to set up his own organization. During an interview, the Rev Mr. Jackson recalled having contracted hepatitis while dwelling in Dr. Abernathy's muddy fiasco (and he also disclosed to this writer that he has recently developed signs of sickle cell anemia).

Despite this wretched experience, Dr. Abernathy was on hand to offer more of his leadership — to the Democratic Party, from whom he demanded no less than 750 seats, or one fourth of the entire National Convention, for his polyglot coalition of protesters.

To implement this preposterous demand, he led an invasion of the Convention's Arrangements Committee, to which party chairman Lawrence O'Brien initially responded by reportedly fleeing the room. (An aide to O'Brien said that he did not "flee" but that he exited rapidly at the behest of the Secret service.)

Convention manager Richard Murphy described the Abernathy tactic as "blackmail," but O'Brien, who eventually returned, ordered the committee to bargain with Abernathy.

This resulted in Abernathy's being given, among other things, access to the convention's floor telephone, where he could badger the delegates at will. This fueling of bigger and better instrusions at the same time bolstered Dr Abernathy's plummetting stock as the thoroughly preposterous successor to a man of the stature of Dr. King.

GOP Plans Voter Registration Drive

by BOB LAHEY

Suburban Republicans, determined not to take anything for granted in the presidential election, are gearing up for a major registration drive on Aug. 19.

The drive is being organized under the direction of Ethel Kolerus of Arlington Heights, 12th Congressional District coordinator for the Committee to Reelect President Nixon.

Trial drives were conducted over the weekend in Palatine Township and in Ela Township in Lake County, as warmups for the Aug. 19 effort.

In Wheeling Township, the drive is under the direction of Township Assessor Marshall Theroux, who reports a "surprising" influx of first-time volunteers who have expressed a desire to work for Nixon.

In Wheeling Township alone, Theroux is hopeful of turning out 500 doorbell-ringers on the day of the registration drive, and hopes the workers will contact 12,000 households — approximately one-third of all those in the township — in a single day.

Theroux estimated that he now has 30 to 40 volunteer telephone workers recruiting others for campaign chores and for the registration drive.

THE DOORBELL RINGERS, in addition to urging voters to register, will also ask each person to participate in the Nixon campaign. By election day, Theroux hopes to have 2,000 election volunteers.

That would be, to say the least, a formidable election apparatus. But Theroux believes the potential is there, largely because of the number of formerly inactive Republicans and converts from Democratic ranks which he has encountered in the early weeks since his appointment as township coordinator.

As an example of these, Theroux points to Charles Swanson, 2216 N. Kennicott Ave., Arlington Heights, who is project coordinator in Theroux's area for "Target '72," as they call the registration drive.

Swanson is sales manager for U.S. Shelter Co., a housing management development company, and a self-described convert from the Democratic ranks.

Swanson was driven to support of President Nixon, he says, largely because of the economic policies put forth by Democratic nominee, Sen. George McGovern.

HE SAID THERE IS a feeling among many Democrats of his acquaintance that McGovern's economic and defense policies would be detrimental, though he is "willing to concede some of their (Democrats') social programs" are laudable.

But, he said, McGovern's proposed "$1,000 gift to everyone," and his tax policies directed against large corporations could lead to them "sitting on their hands" for the next four years. "That is just what we don't need for the economy today," observed Swanson.

That, combined with McGovern's proposal to reduce defense commitments "which could cause some countries to look elsewhere for their friends," is largely responsible for former Democrat Charles Swanson to go to work for Richard M. Nixon, and to go out looking for others to do the same.

Nixon's Brother Gathers Tapes For Library

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Backstairs at the White House:

President Nixon's brother Edward has been working on an oral history project at the President's alma mater, Whittier College, for the past year.

The younger Nixon tries to "encourage" people, he said, to record for posterity their reminiscences of the President in his younger political days. Both the John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson libraries have such tapes by friends and associates from their White House days.

As a member of the Board of Trustees of the Richard Nixon Foundation, Edward has visited all the presidential libraries in search of ideas.

HE SAID IN an interview that the question of where the Nixon library should be located has not been resolved. Whittier College, located in the President's hometown of Whittier, Calif., is a "natural choice," he said.

Edward also is trying to "sort out" whether there should be a library where scholars can study presidential papers, and a museum where the public may view artifacts and mementoes of the Nixon White House years. Both the President and his wife Pat already have a catalog of state gifts and other special remembrances which are destined for the library.

Both the Kennedy and Johnson libraries have such museum displays. Nixon described the LBJ library in Austin, Tex. as "spectacular."

SOME DOCTORS at Bethesda Naval Hospital nearby in Maryland believe that President Johnson was trying to make a medical point when he startled the world by baring his chest to show his gall bladder incision.

It had been widely interpreted that Johnson was seeking sympathy in 1966 when he summoned photographers back as they were leaving his side at the hospital where he was convalescing and showed them his scar.

But physicians ministering to Johnson believe he was trying to quell rumors that his surgery was much more serious. He demonstrated that he had not had an "exploratory" operation, which would have required a much longer vertical incision. Doctors could tell by the incision that it was a gall bladder operation.

PAT NIXON wants to be at the Republican National Convention on opening day. She told reporters she wants to be near the "action" when her husband is nominated for a second term.

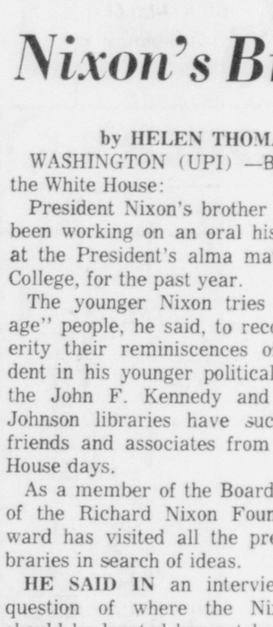
THE DAY CARRIES her through her daily mail load, teas, and a quiet dinner with the President at night.

She is expected to be a "very active" campaigner, according to Connie Stuart, her press secretary. Mrs. Nixon and her daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, were expected to hit the trail early in September.

The Nixons are expected to fly to California when the Republican Miami Beach convention ends Aug. 23 for a few days rest before the President flies to Hawaii to meet with new Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka.

Nixon also is expected to formally launch his re-election campaign in southern California. The state, the nation's most populous, will be a battleground for presidential votes.



Religion Today

by Rev. Lester Kinsolving

MIAMI BEACH—The two busloads of poor people imported by the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy to demonstrate at the Democratic Convention milled about on the fringes of a small cantonment of pup tents entitled "Resurrection City II" in one of this resort city's parks.

Twenty minutes earlier, Dr. Abernathy had arrived in a sedan which drove over the park turf, honking its way through a crowd of some 1,000 hippies, Yippies, Zippies, SDS, Vietnam Veterans Against the War, Tenants Unioners, Welfare Rights Organizationers and head-shaven Hare Krishna chanters.

The atmosphere was humid and the aroma was an acrid amalgamation of random cooking, field toilets, open garbage cans, unwashed bodies and Hare Krishna incense.

Dr. Abernathy's poor people continued milling about for another 40 minutes, while this successor to the late Dr. Martin Luther King sat like a Caliph in front of his (far more impressive than pup) tent, to receive the adulation of a multitude of celebrity seekers and the attention of the media.

Finally, one of Dr. Abernathy's Southern Christian Leadership Conference aides began shouting an appeal asking that everyone evacuate the pup tent area so that tents could be assigned to the poor (a number of these tents had already been flattened when the crowd strolled along "Abernathy Blvd." and tripped over several tent ropes.)

TWNETY MORE minutes went by with no one receiving any such tent assignments from the Southern Christian Leaders, including the great man, who continued receiving his public while seated in front of his tent. Several small children among the poor people either scurried about or wept as a result of the long trip and no immediately apparent place to bed.

Then the humidity broke with a down pour of rain.

This was indeed reminiscent (almost nostalgic) of the original Resurrection City in Washington, D.C. Here, shortly after the assassination of Dr. King, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, newly delivered to Abernathy's leadership led the poor people into another cantonment, a shanty town of tents and crates that soon became a giant and ghastly quagmire of mud.

During a brief interview in front of his tent here, Dr. Abernathy recalled that he had camped out in the original Resurrection City, right along with the people as befits a leader of the poor.

Did he reside with them the whole time?

"Well," he replied, spying this writer's media identification badge and shifting his recollection into high gear, "there were times when I had to be out to raise money and there was all that rain."

INDEED THERE WAS. And there was also a black reporter from Philadelphia who exposed the sumptuous meals which Dr. Abernathy was eating while checked into the nearby Pitts Motor Hotel — while the victims of his leadership were ankle-deep in mud.

One of these victims was the Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, who recently split with the SCLC to set up his own organization. During an interview, the Rev. Mr. Jackson recalled having contracted hepatitis while dwelling in Dr. Abernathy's muddy fiasco (and he also disclosed to this writer that he has recently developed signs of sickle cell anemia).

Despite this wretched experience, Dr. Abernathy was on hand to offer more of his leadership — to the Democratic Party, from whom he demanded no less than 750 seats, or one fourth of the entire National Convention, for his polyglot coalition of protesters.

To implement this preposterous demand, he led an invasion of the Convention's Arrangements Committee, to which party chairman Lawrence O'Brien initially responded by reportedly fleeing the room. (An aide to O'Brien said that he did not "flee" but that he exited rapidly at the behest of the Secret service.)

Convention manager Richard Murphy described the Abernathy tactic as "blackmail," but O'Brien, who eventually returned, ordered the committee to bargain with Abernathy.

This resulted in Abernathy's being given, among other things, access to the convention's floor telephone, where he could badger the delegates at will. This fueling of bigger and better instrusions at the same time bolstered Dr. Abernathy's plummetting stock as the thoroughly preposterous successor to a man of the stature of Dr. King.

The Lighter Side

How Nixon Urged Agnew To Run

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The big question everyone around here is asking these days is how President Nixon managed to persuade Spiro Agnew to run for vice president again.

For weeks, it had been common knowledge that Agnew was trying to foist off the job on John Connally or some other unsuspecting Democrat.

Insiders say Agnew never missed an opportunity to press that view on Nixon. Anytime he had the President's ear he would say something like, "That John Connally sure is a swell fellow. I'll bet he would make somebody a great vice president."

But Nixon didn't take the hint. He had his heart set on keeping Agnew on the ticket and somehow was able to talk Agnew into going along.

"SPIRO," HE may have said, "how would you like to do me a great big favor?"

"I think I know what you are going to ask, Mr. President, and I'm afraid the answer will have to be 'no.' "

"Not even if I say 'please?' "

"My mind is made up, Mr. President."

"Pretty please with sugar on it?"

"You're being unfair, Mr. President. You know I can't resist a pretty please with sugar on it."

Whatever approach the President took, it worked. But instead of praising Nixon for a brilliant selling job, some of the pundits are saying he acted prematurely.

They say that when Agnew finally caved in to pressure to seek a second term, it removed the last element of suspense from the forthcoming Republican National Convention.

Thus, the GOP get-together at Miami Beach will be the dullest convention of the century, they predict. But don't bet on it.

Prearranging the ticket doesn't necessarily kill the suspense. One period of nailbiting anxiety is bound to arise after the presidential vote when a committee of delegates is appointed to notify Nixon that he won.

WILL THEY be able to find him? Everything hinges on whether the committee can get word of his nomination to him.

They can look in all the obvious places — Key Biscayne, San Clemente, Camp David. They can check Peking, Moscow, Warsaw and the Azores. They can call the locker room at Yankee Stadium, but there is no guarantee the President will be in any of those places.

By that time he may be in Havana or Hanoi. And — who knows? — he might even be in Washington.

But the committee would never think of looking there. And so McGovern would win by default.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Today I want to depart from my usual format to share with you readers one of the problems of trying to bring to you current thinking on health. As you know I am a strong advocate of preventing medical problems. Unfortunately not all of the recommendations that are made by members of the scientfic community are helpful to special interest groups. A good example is the tobacco growers' problems with cigarette smoking and health.

On several occasions I have reported that the Inter-Society Commission on Heart Disease, a non-profit group of leading scientists, has recommended that the cholesterol in the adult diet be limited to 300 milligrams a day (one egg yolk contains 250). I have also reported that the American Heart Assn. has recommended that the diet should include no more than three egg yolks a week, including those used in cooking. Recently I received a letter from a legal firm representing the egg industry, apparently attempting to intimidate me for reporting to you readers these recommendations. Their letter mentioned a "litigation program" and alleged that my column on breakfasts "was most detrimental to the egg industry."

THE COLUMN in question was from one of you readers asking about what to feed her husband to prevent heart disease. The American Heart Assn.'s "The Way to a Man's Heart" diet pamphlet recommends that adults "eat no more than three egg yolks a week, including eggs used in cooking."

I have received several abusive letters from special interest groups for reporting facts or overwhelming scientific opinion to you. Obviously, I often have not personally done the research on which this opinion is based, but I do have the responsibility of reporting the findings and views of responsible researchers to you.

I have very little to do with the high cholesterol content of egg yolks. A higher authority is responsible for that content and the analysis of the content has been provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

At issue here is not even the question of whether the American Heart Assn. and many of the leading nutritionists in the nation involved in these and the Inter-Society's recommendations are correct, but "your right to know" what these scientific bodies have recommended.

THE DAIRY industry faced a similar problem with milk fat and wisely has provided the consumer with a choice of low-fat milk, fortified skim milk or low fat cottage cheese, and is busy developing other items to enable more people to enjoy their products. I hope the egg industry will do the same.

Meanwhile, I shall continue to report what our scientists have found, not because of the old journalistic adage of the truth no matter who it hurts, but the truth because of who it helps — the millions of daily readers of this column.

As long as I write this column I shall refuse to allow any special interest group to intimidate me into withholding from you helpful, responsible information.

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "Last Monday we discussed the 'Scotch syndrome', a disease that causes some players to refuse to play an unnecessarily high card. Here is a hand that illustrates the 'grasshopper disease.' This causes players to waste an important high card to signal their partner."

Oswald: "The grasshopper disease takes other forms, but the form you mention is the most deadly. West opens the king of clubs against South's four spades contract. South takes his ace and plays out the ace and king of trumps."

Jim: "At this point grasshopper West played his nine of diamonds. He wanted to tell his partner to lead a diamond if partner ever got in. The signal was read and when South led a heart to East's ace, the diamond was promptly played.

Unfortunately for the gallant defenders, that lost nine-spot represented a lost trick. East actually led the four. South's eight forced the queen and later on the 10 forced the ace and left South's king as a winner."

Oswald: "West could have asked for a diamond lead by simply discarding his three of clubs and playing the deuce of hearts when hearts were led."

Jim: "This might not have caused East to lead a diamond and if he didn't lead a diamond South would be able to strip the hand and make his contract, but the nine of diamonds play made things a cinch for declarer."

Harper Board Plans 'Retreat'

The Harper College board will spend 15 hours this week learning about the various aspects of the school.

The board has scheduled a two-day "retreat" Aug. 4 and 5 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. both days. The agenda for the meeting includes reports on long-range planning, salary plans and faculty and administration responsibilities.

Board Pres. Jessalyn Nicklas said Friday she planned the meeting in order to give board members "a chance to pinpoint what we do know, what we don't know and what we have questions about."

She said, "It seems to me that often in board meetings, the remark is made that we ought to talk more about something, but we have so many things we have to do by law at board meetings that we never get back to it."

The Lighter Side

How Nixon Urged Agnew To Run

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The big question everyone around here is asking these days is how President Nixon managed to persuade Spiro Agnew to run for vice president again.

For weeks, it had been common knowledge that Agnew was trying to foist off the job on John Connally or some other unsuspecting Democrat.

Insiders say Agnew never missed an opportunity to press that view on Nixon. Anytime he had the President's ear he would say something like, "That John Connally sure is a swell fellow. I'll bet he would make somebody a great vice president."

But Nixon didn't take the hint. He had his heart set on keeping Agnew on the ticket and somehow was able to talk Agnew into going along.

"SPIRO," HE may have said, "how would you like to do me a great big favor?"

"I think I know what you are going to ask, Mr. President, and I'm afraid the answer will have to be 'no.' "

"Not even if I say 'please?' "

"My mind is made up, Mr. President."

"Pretty please with sugar on it?"

"You're being unfair, Mr. President. You know I can't resist a pretty please with sugar on it."

Whatever approach the President took, it worked. But instead of praising Nixon for a brilliant selling job, some of the pundits are saying he acted prematurely.

They say that when Agnew finally caved in to pressure to seek a second term, it removed the last element of suspense from the forthcoming Republican National Convention.

Thus, the GOP get-together at Miami Beach will be the dullest convention of the century, they predict. But don't bet on it.

Prearranging the ticket doesn't necessarily kill the suspense. One period of nailbiting anxiety is bound to arise after the presidential vote when a committee of delegates is appointed to notify Nixon that he won.

WILL THEY be able to find him? Everything hinges on whether the committee can get word of his nomination to him.

They can look in all the obvious places — Key Biscayne, San Clemente, Camp David. They can check Peking, Moscow, Warsaw and the Azores. They can call the locker room at Yankee Stadium, but there is no guarantee the President will be in any of those places.

By that time he may be in Havana or Hanoi. And — who knows? — he might even be in Washington.

But the committee would never think of looking there. And so McGovern would win by default.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Today I want to depart from my usual format to share with you readers one of the problems of trying to bring to you current thinking on health. As you know I am a strong advocate of preventing medical problems. Unfortunately not all of the recommendations that are made by members of the scientfic community are helpful to special interest groups. Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Helen Coryell And The YMCA

Fun, Games And Career Combine Perfectly

IN 22 YEARS Helen Coryell has progressed from volunteer work at a Chicago YMCA to the second top executive position at Northwest Suburban YMCA. With her additional responsibilities has come the expected amount of paperwork, but Helen won't allow administrative duties to keep her from her first love — teaching.

by DOROTHY OLIVER

"I was sure I liked it for the fun and games, but I wasn't sure I wanted to work for the YMCA," said Helen Coryell. The statement was concluded with light laughter from the tall, animated woman who as assistant executive director of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines, is looking back over 22 years in 'Y' work.

Helen's entrance into the business world was as a private secretary to a Circuit Court judge. Her first association with the YMCA was during World War II when a Chicago 'Y' opened its doors to business women for a four-month membership program. She joined with her sister and soon became involved in lay committee work.

AFTER THE WAR her 'Y' decided to close out its women's program. Helen had met staff members at the Lincoln-Belmont YMCA who worked in the women's and girls' programs and was offered a job as secretary of the program.

"I was making good money at my own job so it took about six-months of arm twisting before I decided to take the job," she said. "It was a chance to get into a field with no dog-eat-dog rat race."

The job of secretary in the women's and girls' program was equal to the program director's job. It was also one of few positions women would be hired to fill.

"Today the YMCA is just beginning to open up to women. When I first started there was only one woman assistant; it's only in the last couple of years that women have moved up into administrative areas.

"YEARS AGO 'women and girls' were like dirty words," she continued. "It has never been that way at the Northwest Suburban YMCA."

In 1960, Helen was introduced to Charles McClellan, executive director of the Northwest 'Y', by a mutual friend. "I went out and talked to him and again there was some twisting of arms," Helen smiled.

She began with Northwest in women's and girls' work. "I was under no illusion when I took the job. I never felt I would move beyond women's and girls' director. I set my goals — knowing they'd take time to reach. I saw the changes coming in the 'Y' regarding women.

"This 'Y' pioneered the family concept of the 'Y'; others followed our success. We have always had a family oriented program and almost everything is co-ed now," she said.

HELEN'S GOALS have been more than fulfilled in her 12 years with Northwest Suburban. They've been years marked with accomplishment: new programs, creation of the women's auxiliary, awards and promotions.

"They were conducting limited women's programs, when I was hired. When we moved into the new building, it was my responsibility to create the whole program for women and girls," she explained.

Under Helen's direction a woman's auxiliary began at Northwest Suburban — the first 'Y' to have a group of this type. Yearly the auxiliary raises $80,000 and members volunteer their hours in the nursery, the gym, the pools, the snack bar — anywhere their "woman-power" is needed.

"Other 'Y's had mother's clubs but they only were involved in women's and girls' activities. Ours is an all-Y program. Many of the 'Y's around the state have asked our women to help them set up auxiliaries," Helen said.

ANOTHER OF HER successes has been the organization of the synchronized swim classes. It began with two women who came to Helen and told of their interest in such a group. Sharing their interest, Helen started the classes and at the end of the year produced a small aquatic show.

Today synchronized swimming is highly popular at the 'Y'. Besides the classes three special groups have formed: The Mermaid Mamas for women, the Neptune Kings for men, and the Syncro Team for young people. Annual shows have become a tradition and have come a long way from the record player, single spotlight days.

In 1966, Helen was the first woman honored to receive the Illinois YMCA Physical Education Society Director of the Year award, by the Illinois State Physical Directors Society.

"I COULDN'T believe it happened to me. I never expected to get it because it had never been given to a woman," she said.

The last 12 months have brought further strides in her career. In September she was promoted to program coordinator and assistant executive director. Her responsibilities, which still include directing all women's and girls' programs, have expanded. She is concerned with all programs at the 'Y', as well as staff scheduling, program initiation, budgets, etc., and takes over when director McClellan is not available.

Despite her administrative office, Helen continues to conduct classes. "I would never want to be completely administrative. I don't want to give up all of my classes for paperwork," she said.

"One of the biggest rewards is working with people. They come to you afterwards and tell you the influence you had on their lives, or you see the look of astonishment and joy on the face of a person who has accomplished something. That's a reward — working face-to-face with people."

WITH MORE THAN 20,000 men, women and children from all over the northwest suburbs taking advantage of the programs at Northwest Suburban YMCA, it can add up to a great deal of people-contact for Helen.

That keeps her happy.

Being part of the YMCA keeps her happy.

"Ninety per cent of my life is taken up by the 'Y'. You are never totally divorced from it," she said. "I'm always seeing things or reading things which could be used here.

"One thing about the YMCA is that it's always progressing, never standing still. As the community changes, the people change and the needs change. The 'Y' changes with it."

SOMETHING MORE than job advancement, being with people, and "fun and games" has kept Helen Coryell involved in the YMCA — especially considering her reluctant beginnings. For her the 'Y' reflects her most important beliefs.

"The philosophy at the 'Y' is the same as my own personal philosphy: Follow the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. All the laws of love and brotherhood are encompassed in these," she said. "They are the guiding principles we aim for."

"I SIT ON DECK AND crack the whip," laughed Helen Coryell, assistant executive director of Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines, as she described her technique of teaching the synchronized swimming classes at the 'Y.' Under her guidance this area of swimming has grown from a few interested women into three clubs and a number of classes.

The end of July and already we're thinking about fall and winter clothes? Well, you may not be, but clothing manufacturers and buyers started thinking about cooler weather months ago.

And, with fall merchandise now competing for space with sale items left over from last season (which is really this season, which is what is so confusing and maddening about the whole situation), one message comes across loud and strong. They want you to start thinking about it too. And that depresses me.

Just when I think I've got my summer wardrobe all squared away (bills too), I ramble through the aisles of local apparel shops and the bi-annual pre-season crisis hits . . . I have nothing to wear this winter.

OF COURSE that's not entirely true. Yet isn't that a normal reaction upon first being bombarded by all the new arrivals? They hang on the racks teasing and tantalizing. My closet is insignificant in comparison.

And something else immediately depresses me . . . namely the prices. Fall and winter characterized by corduroys and wool, in contrast to summer seersuckers and cottons, indicates a greater expense, sometimes even double.

And these fashionable days, one is plagued with layers which separately are not quite so frightening but together can add up to a clothing bill monstrosity.

And then again, why should one be worried about fall and winter when the hottest days of summer have yet to be experienced?

College coeds may be starting to prepare by buying clothes now to take with them back to school, but until I get more wear out of halter tops and sleeveless dresses, I'll just stay out of the stores altogether . . . and save both my sanity and my money.

Lane Bryant is sponsoring a poster contest for girls aged 7 to 17. The theme of the contest is "All Together Now." The idea is to visualize what "togetherness" or brotherhood means to you.

Posters can be done in water colors, paint, crayon, pencil, charcoal or mixed media. The posters can range in size from nine by 12 inches to 18 by 24.

WHEN COMPLETED, posters may be dropped off at either of two Lane Bryant stores in the area, in the Woodfield Mall or Randhurst Shopping Center. They will be displayed until the winners are announced in September. Deadline for entry is Aug. 23.

First prize is a digital clock radio, second and third prizes are ladies wrist watches. Record albums will be given to the 15 runners up and 100 other girls will receive single records.

Moods And Hearts

NEW YORK (UPI) —Abrupt changes in mood from depression to anger or elation and back again have been linked to sudden fatal heart attack in persons with a history of heart disease.

Reporting in "Archives of Internal Medicine" on a study of 26 men who died suddenly, three doctors noted that the contrast between the slowed down state of the blues and the stress of arousal was too much for the men's bodies to handle.

So Nice Of Him To Notice

From what I understand from talking to my friends and neighbors, a lot of husbands are the same way. They never notice when their wives knock themselves out cleaning.

Now when I clean the house, it is an event that most people are inclined to notice. That is, most people except my husband. He does notice dirt, however. He notices it so much on places such as the top of the refrigerator that I can't understand why he doesn't react occasionally to the discovery that it is gone. The sliding glass patio door can be opaque with finger, hand, knee, tennis shoe and dog nose prints for months. When I finally wash it to reveal a complete change of season outside, he never observes.

NATURALLY THIS trait of my husband's is one of the excuses I use not to bother to clean too often. But sometimes, when guilt gets the better of me, or when a crawling baby adheres to the kitchen floor, I do clean for the sake of cleaning. Then I shouldn't be looking for acclaim, but after it's all done, I do. And I don't get any.

Considering this situation, the most remarkable thing happened to me last Tuesday. It had been beastly hot, and I had taken the kids on a picnic for most of the day. When we got home, I collapsed on the couch while the children scrubbed the rocks they had collected on their hikes. They had asked to use some scouring powder and I told them to help themselves.

A little later my husband came home from work.

"What did you do today?" he asked.

"OH, I TOOK the kids on a picnic for most of the day," I replied in a tone that implied that that was as much as one could expect for one day.

"That was nice. I see you did some cleaning, too."

I was really caught off guard. "Why, no, I really didn't have t—, ah, why did you think that?" It suddenly occurred to me that there was something he NOTICED that made him think I had cleaned the house.

"Well, I saw that kitchen cleanser there and just assumed . . ."

The kids had left the cleanser on the top of the TV in the family room when they finished scrubbing their rocks. But of course I didn't tell him this. I know a good possibility when I see it. I mumbled something about having forgotten to put the cleanser away.

The next day I set out the glass cleaner and a rag. It drew the same response as the cleanser.

THE DAY AFTER that I replaced the glass cleaner with some floor wax. This drew amazement from my husband who knew I had taken the kids swimming and also had done a great deal of shopping.

So far, so good. I am now getting recognition for cleaning the house even when I don't. Furthermore, I still can, when I want to, clean for the sake of cleaning. However, I have limited myself to leaving cleaning supplies out only three days a week. After all, I wouldn't want my husband to think I was becoming a real drudge!

Helen Coryell And The YMCA

Fun, Games And Career Combine Perfectly

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

IN 22 YEARS Helen Coryell has progressed from volunteer work at a Chicago YMCA to the second top executive position at Northwest Suburban YMCA. With her additional responsibilities has come the expected amount of paperwork, but Helen won't allow administrative duties to keep her from her first love — teaching.

by DOROTHY OLIVER

"I was sure I liked it for the fun and games, but I wasn't sure I wanted to work for the YMCA," said Helen Coryell. The statement was concluded with light laughter from the tall, animated woman who as assistant executive director of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines, is looking back over 22 years in 'Y' work.

Helen's entrance into the business world was as a private secretary to a Circuit Court judge. Her first association with the YMCA was during World War II when a Chicago 'Y' opened its doors to business women for a four-month membership program. She joined with her sister and soon became involved in lay committee work.

AFTER THE WAR her 'Y' decided to close out its women's program. Helen had met staff members at the Lincoln-Belmont YMCA who worked in the women's and girls' programs and was offered a job as secretary of the program.

"I was making good money at my own job so it took about six-months of arm twisting before I decided to take the job," she said. "It was a chance to get into a field with no dog-eat-dog rat race."

The job of secretary in the women's and girls' program was equal to the program director's job. It was also one of few positions women would be hired to fill.

"Today the YMCA is just beginning to open up to women. When I first started there was only one woman assistant; it's only in the last couple of years that women have moved up into administrative areas.

"YEARS AGO 'women and girls' were like dirty words," she continued. "It has never been that way at the Northwest Suburban YMCA."

In 1960, Helen was introduced to Charles McClellan, executive director of the Northwest 'Y', by a mutual friend. "I went out and talked to him and again there was some twisting of arms," Helen smiled.

She began with Northwest in women's and girls' work. "I was under no illusion when I took the job. I never felt I would move beyond women's and girls' director. I set my goals — knowing they'd take time to reach. I saw the changes coming in the 'Y' regarding women.

"This 'Y' pioneered the family concept of the 'Y'; others followed our success. We have always had a family oriented program and almost everything is co-ed now," she said.

HELEN'S GOALS have been more than fulfilled in her 12 years with Northwest Suburban. They've been years marked with accomplishment: new programs, creation of the women's auxiliary, awards and promotions.

"They were conducting limited women's programs, when I was hired. When we moved into the new building, it was my responsibility to create the whole program for women and girls," she explained.

Under Helen's direction a woman's auxiliary began at Northwest Suburban — the first 'Y' to have a group of this type. Yearly the auxiliary raises $80,000 and members volunteer their hours in the nursery, the gym, the pools, the snack bar — anywhere their "womanpower" is needed.

"Other 'Y's had mother's clubs but they only were involved in women's and girls' activities. Ours is an all-Y program. Many of the 'Y's around the state have asked our women to help them set up auxiliaries," Helen said.

ANOTHER OF HER successes has been the organization of the synchronized swim classes. It began with two women who came to Helen and told of their interest in such a group. Sharing their interest, Helen started the classes and at the end of the year produced a small aquatic show.

Brings Bride To Arlington

Tom Essenburg, a Campus Life director in the Arlington Heights area, has brought his bride, the former Julie Ringenberg of Walnut, Ill., to live in Arlington since their July 8 nuptials.

The couple met at Taylor University, Upland, Inc., where Tom earned a degree in business and later moved to Arlington. His bride has transferred to Northwestern University and will be a senior in fall.

Their wedding took place in the Evangelical Covenant Church in Princeton, Ill., near the home town of the bride's parents, the Gerald Ringenbergs.

Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Essenburg of Muskegon, Mich.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring ceremony the bride wore an ivory silk organza dress with matching embroidered panels edged in ribbon and lace. The embroidery trimmed a yoke on the bodice, the long puffed sleeves and the front of the A-line skirt and chapel train. Julie wore a matching Camelot headpiece with her elbow-length veil and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, pink carnations, baby's breath and statice.

Her attendants were gowned alike in lavender voile with ivory Venise lace trim. They carried matching bouquets.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Mackinaw Island for a week before returning to Arlington.

Hair Today, Gone...

NEW YORK (UPI) —You've heard bald men are more virile than hirsute ones? That point was nixed by Dr. Edward Krull, a dermatologist associated with Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. He told a group of science writers attending a symposium in Chicago that there is no relationship between hair loss and virility. The symposium was sponsored by the National Program for Dermatology.

Forest Hospital Seminar To Deal With Woman's Role

"We As Women: A Night Of Exploration" will be presented by The Forest Hospital Postgraduate Center for Mental Health Education at no charge on Thursday, Aug. 24, from 7:30-10:30 p.m.

The program will be held in the auditorium of the hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines.

The evening will begin with the film, "Growing Up Female," according to Anita Brown, social therapist, who will conduct the program.

"The movie shows the lives of several women — one who has been married and divorced, a small town girl who is entering a big city, a black woman and an adolescent — makes a point of where these women are at today and how they got there," Mrs. Brown said.

"THIS MOVIE and the question 'Who are you?' will be used as a stimulus for discussion when we break into small groups," she continued.

The evening will also launch a continuing series of programs for women. PEER (People Exploring and Expanding their Resources) group seminar sessions will discuss the roles of women. Topics will include marriage, motherhood, self image, body image, etc. The object of the Peer sessions is to create a private, intimate, supportive atmosphere for women, Mrs. Brown said.

Women at the Aug. 24 program will be given an opportunity to select topics of their interest for the PEER sessions. All women — regardless of age or marital status — are invited.

Those wishing further information may call Anita Brown, 827-8811 ext. 241.

Teach Family Cycle Safety

If your family enjoys bicycling together, help keep them safe by following these tips from Ordie Hogsett, University of Illinois Extension specialist in safety:

—Teach your family to ride in single file keeping at least one bicycle length between riders. Riding in this formation can help prevent crashes or pile-ups if someone loses his balance or encounters other difficulty.

—One person to a bike is plenty. The additional weight only makes the bike harder to steer.

—When right of way is a factor, remember that bicycles rank third, after pedestrians and cars.

—Teach your family the proper hand signals to warn others of their intentions to turn or stop.

Knowing and following the rules for safe cycling can mean greater pleasure to the 60 million bicyclists enjoying this leisure activity in the United States.

A Reminder To Brides

With summer weddings in full swing, the Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting the news. Full information is printed on forms available at the Herald Offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make the selection for you.

Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available at the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

Brings Bride To Arlington

Tom Essenburg, a Campus Life director in the Arlington Heights area, has brought his bride, the former Julie Ringenberg of Walnut, Ill., to live in Arlington since their July 8 nuptials.

The couple met at Taylor University, Upland, Inc., where Tom earned a degree in business and later moved to Arlington. His bride has transferred to Northwestern University and will be a senior in fall.

Their wedding took place in the Evangelical Covenant Church in Princeton, Ill., near the home town of the bride's parents, the Gerald Ringenbergs.

Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Essenburg of Muskegon, Mich.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring ceremony the bride wore an ivory silk organza dress with matching embroidered panels edged in ribbon and lace. The embroidery trimmed a yoke on the bodice, the long puffed sleeves and the front of the A-line skirt and chapel train. Julie wore a matching Camelot headpiece with her elbow-length veil and carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, pink carnations, baby's breath and statice.

Her attendants were gowned alike in lavender voile with ivory Venise lace trim. They carried matching bouquets.

Connie Ackeberg of Tampico, Ill., a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and Bob Wolgemuth of Glenview best man.

ALSO IN THE bridal procession were bridesmaids Mrs. Nelson Bennett III, Grand Rapids, Mich., sister of the groom; Linda Sanders, Bamberg, S. C.; Donna Duren, Chicago; and Martha Krajewski, Princeton. The bride's cousin, Linda McCue of Lyndon, Ill., was flower girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Essenburg

Brent Ringenberg, Arlington Heights, the bride's brother; Joe Fritzsche, Upland, Ind.; Nelson Bennett III, and Dave Verman, Des Plaines, were groomsmen. Ring bearer was Tim Burress, Wyanet, Ill., a cousin of the bride.

Candelighters for the seven o'clock wedding were the bride's brother Jeff and Dan Smith. Afterwards there was a reception for 300 guests in the church parlors.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Mackinaw Island for a week before returning to Arlington.

Forest Hospital Seminar To Deal With Woman's Role

"We As Women: A Night Of Exploration" will be presented by The Forest Hospital Postgraduate Center for Mental Health Education at no charge on Thursday, Aug. 24, from 7:30-10:30 p.m.

The program will be held in the auditorium of the hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines.

The evening will begin with the film, "Growing Up Female," according to Anita Brown, social therapist, who will conduct the program.

"The movie shows the lives of several women — one who has been married and divorced, a small town girl who is entering a big city, a black woman and an adolescent — makes a point of where these women are at today and how they got there," Mrs. Brown said.

"THIS MOVIE and the question 'Who are you?' will be used as a stimulus for discussion when we break into small groups," she continued.

The evening will also launch a continuing series of programs for women. PEER (People Exploring and Expanding their Resources) group seminar sessions will discuss the roles of women. Topics will include marriage, motherhood, self image, body image, etc. The object of the Peer sessions is to create a private, intimate, supportive atmosphere for women, Mrs. Brown said.

Women at the Aug. 24 program will be given an opportunity to select topics of their interest for the PEER sessions. All women — regardless of age or marital status — are invited.

Those wishing further information may call Anita Brown, 827-8811 ext. 241.

Hair Today, Gone...

NEW YORK (UPI) —You've heard bald men are more virile than hirsute ones? That point was nixed by Dr. Edward Krull, a dermatologist associated with Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. He told a group of science writers attending a symposium in Chicago that there is no relationship between hair loss and virility. The symposium was sponsored by the National Program for Dermatology.

Teach Family Cycle Safety

If your family enjoys bicycling together, help keep them safe by following these tips from Ordie Hogsett, University of Illinois Extension specialist in safety:

—Teach your family to ride in single file keeping at least one bicycle length between riders. Riding in this formation can help prevent crashes or pile-ups if someone loses his balance or encounters other difficulty.

—One person to a bike is plenty. The additional weight only makes the bike harder to steer.

—When right of way is a factor, remember that bicycles rank third, after pedestrians and cars.

—Teach your family the proper hand signals to warn others of their intentions to turn or stop.

Knowing and following the rules for safe cycling can mean greater pleasure to the 60 million bicyclists enjoying this leisure activity in the United States.

A Reminder To Brides

With summer weddings in full swing, the Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting the news. Full information is printed on forms available at the Herald Offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make the selection for you.

Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available at the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

A "Guide-A-Flower Kit" has been created and copyrighted by Victor B. Wallace Jr., a Cleveland florist. Each kit contains plastic container, flower holder, guide stick that measures height, layout pattern, and instructions — actually six steps for creating floral displays. Wallace says the six steps lead to "a perfect centerpiece."

(Guide-A-Flower Kit Co., Box 22016, Cleveland, Ohio.)

A new hand-held hair dryer is designed for precision coverage and control. Its special nozzle directs and concentrates the flow of air into an effective drying stream, the manufacturer says.

The Home Line
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy Out of dishwasher detergent and with a full load of dishes to be washed, I thought it wouldn't hurt to use one of the mild dishwashing liquids I used two small squirts, turned on the machine, then went upstairs to make beds and so on When I came down, I was astounded by the foamy residue which had poured into the hall, and was about to go onto the living room carpet With mop and towels I was able to hold up the sudsy flood and clean up You can bet I'll never use anything but dish washer detergent —Emily Blucker

Glad you brought it up So many people ask if they can't use various substitutes for dishwasher detergent You've just proved why it can't be done

Dear Dorothy Do you have any suggestions for keeping the robins from picking the berries off our beautiful holly tree? Last year they snitched every single berry —Mabel Willis

As a rule, people will cover fruit-bearing shrubs with nylon nets to keep little marauders away, but it wouldn't be very attractive on your holly tree You might try flinging around a couple of nylon stockings filled with mothballs, to simulate snakes, or attach an artificial owl which usually keeps other birds away

Dear Dorothy One of the best hints I ever got out of the Home Line was to use toothpaste to wash your hands after handling fish Now all of us — husband, son and myself — make sure there is always a tube in the tackle box It really works I suggest repeating it now that the fishing season is here —Mrs James Mudd

Right on! And an equally good tip it is for all who just handle fish from the store — who have rarely enjoyed the delights of fishing

(Mrs Ritz welcomes questions and hints If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill 60006)

UNICEF Year-round Cards

UNICEF is up to something new.

In addition to Christmas cards, the United Nations Children's Fund now has year-round all-occasion cards for sale. They include notes and mini-notes, invitations, birth announcements and birthday cards. Prices range from $1 to $4.

The latest design offered, and too new to be included in the catalog, is the Jewish New Year card. The design was contributed to UNICEF by American artist Rina Rotholz. The box of 12 cards retails for $3.

FUNDS RAISED through the card sales go directly to provide food, medicine and educational assistance to children in need throughout the world. Currently the biggest project is raising funds to help millions of refugee children in Bangladesh.

Year-round greeting cards are available at the Chicago Area UNICEF office, room 1501, 5 N. Wabash Ave, Chicago, 60602. Brochures will be sent on request.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Out of dishwasher detergent and with a full load of dishes to be washed, I thought it wouldn't hurt to use one of the mild dishwashing liquids. I used two small squirts, turned on the machine, then went upstairs to make beds and so on. When I came down, I was astounded by the foamy residue which had poured into the hall, and was about to go onto the living room carpet. With mop and towels I was able to hold up the sudsy flood and clean up. You can bet I'll never use anything but dishwasher detergent. —Emily Blucker

Glad you brought it up. So many people ask if they can't use various substitutes for dishwasher detergent. You've just proved why it can't be done.

Dear Dorothy: Do you have any suggestions for keeping the robins from picking the berries off our beautiful holly tree? Last year they snitched every single berry. —Mabel Willis

As a rule, people will cover fruit-bearing shrubs with nylon nets to keep little marauders away, but it wouldn't be very attractive on your holly tree. You might try flinging around a couple of nylon stockings filled with mothballs, to simulate snakes, or attach an artificial owl which usually keeps other birds away.

Dear Dorothy: One of the best hints I ever got out of the Home Line was to use toothpaste to wash your hands after handling fish. Now all of us — husband, son and myself — make sure there is always a tube in the tackle box. It really works. I suggest repeating it now that the fishing season is here. —Mrs. James Mudd

Right on! And an equally good tip it is for all who just handle fish from the store — who have rarely enjoyed the delights of fishing.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Let's Examine Nuclear Plant

There can never be enough caution in dealing with something as potentially dangerous as nuclear energy.

That's why we approve of a move by the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago (MSD) to protest the operation of a nuclear power facility on Lake Michigan.

The protest occurred two weeks ago, when the MSD board voted to protest formally the licensing of Commonwealth Edison Co.'s new nuclear power plant at Zion, located between Waukegan and the Wisconsin border.

The MSD's protest petition will go to the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC). Abe Eiserman, one of the MSD trustees, explained that the AEC approach gives the MSD a certain tactical advantage.

If the MSD had intervened through the courts, it would have had the burden of proving the operation of the plant would be detrimental to the public interest. Through the AEC, Commonwealth Eidson must prove that the plants are safe, Eiserman explained.

If some agency, such as the MSD, had not intervened before July 29, then the AEC would have automatically authorized the operating licenses.

Beneath the challenge is, of course, the larger issue of the often-repeated conflict between the legitimate needs of our society and the increasingly important problem of how do we protect the environment from ourselves.

Obviously, we are going to need more and more energy in coming years, and nuclear power is one means of providing it. Indeed, such energy can eliminate the pollution caused by burning coal to produce power; Commonwealth Edison may be a pollution fighter, after all.

However, suppose there is a leakage of nuclear waste and thousands of persons contract leukemia. Suppose Comm Ed has not solved the problem of thermal pollution from hot water released from the plant. Suppose our greatest recreational resource is damaged beyond repair as a result.

It's too great a chance to take. The AEC, if it has not pursued the topic as far as possible, should resume its quest.

It may turn out that the MSD's protest is nothing more than the reaction of a board which is seeking another opportunity to get on the ecology bandwagon. Indeed, Abe Eiserman is a candidate for reelection this year, and his leadership in the AEC issue won't hurt him at the polls.

Indeed, we hope the MSD is tilting after windmills. But there's a good possibility that the MSD may be fighting a real danger, and we applaud its efforts in that direction.

Eagleton's Raised An Issue

by TOM WELLMAN
Chief Editorial Writer

No one can argue at this point in the political campaign that Eagleton isn't a household word

Yes, Eagleton's disclosures of psychiatric treatment for depression have shoved his name up into headlines and his footsteps have been and will be dogged by hundreds of reporters eager to pursue the subject to its unseen limits.

And there are the inevitable stories about other Presidential or vice-presidential mental infirmities, the attempts to pry a reaction out of the Nixon administration and the speculative stories about whether Eagleton will remain on the ticket

In this reporter's mind, there is a shock reaction to learning of a mental illness, a shock not unlike hearing of the Wallace shooting "Oh, he's sick," you exclaim — and the emotion, it seems, is a mixture of pity and horror (perhaps)

The reaction would change radically if you'd been seriously depressed and had seen the inside of some of our not-so-distinguished mental hospitals Then, the understanding would have been easier.

At any rate, responsible politicians will predictably urge that Eagleton's psychiatric problems be ignored as a campaign issue.

I disagree. I think it should be an issue.

But the issue should not center upon Eagleton's state of mind but on the quality of care he and others receive for the illnesses involving the mind.

Eagleton should run with the issue Like Sen Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, who

as a reformed alcoholic has led committee investigations on the subject, Eagleton could force the issue into our consciousness

It's an issue that splits in two The broader issue is the quality of psychiatric care. For a starter, the Missouri senator could look at his own treatment.

He was treated at the Mayo Clinic and at Barnes Hospital in St Louis. Both of these are reputedly outstanding private hospitals for care.

Eagleton might at this point examine other forms of psychiatric care, such as public mental hospitals. Such places are for those persons who cannot afford the luxury of private rooms and the price tag of $100 a day

He might begin, indeed, by visiting some of the shinier, more modern state institutions Beyond the glitter of new brick and concrete, he might consider the level of care received, the attitude of the staff and the general atmosphere of such institutions

Put simply, institutionalization of persons needing help needs a radical reconsideration. The popular concept of halfway houses and out-patient care does little to combat directly the prison atmosphere which probably pervades most public institutions

As an observer, I've seen how a security ward in one of Chicago's more modern, more acclaimed public institutions works. I suggest Mr Eagleton examine such public mental health care — which politicians trumpet as "quality" — for a starter.

There's a secondary issue, and that is the acceptance of Eagleton as a man with an illness which can be treated. Many of us react with a gut "horror" at the thought of psychiatric treatment

But all of us, at one time or another, have probably needed such help One hopes that in 1972 the taboos about talking intelligently about such illnesses have eased and will make Eagleton's illness publicly understandable

Eagleton's first priority, however, is to pursue the topic of institutional mental health care further. Without exposure, our treatment of those who cannot afford private help will be shoddy at best, suicidal at worst

She's Amazed By Abortion Comment From Another Reader

Regarding your recent article pertaining to the interviewing of women about the Zero Population Growth — whether pro or con on the issues of abortion and birth control, the majority of the women stated their feelings very intelligently. One woman's statement, however, was so unbelievable it has to be commented upon.

I am referring to the mother of three who said, "I'd never let my daughter have an abortion. If she made a mistake, let her pay for it." I cannot believe a presumably well educated and intelligent woman could make such a vengeful and uncompassionate remark. Added to the disbelief is that it wasn't even aimed at a stranger but to her own daughter.

I sincerely hope her daughter or any girl in a similar family situation never encounters the problem of becoming pregnant while not married. If it does happen I can foresee such a mother giving her daughter a guilt complex to the degree that the remainder of her life may well be ruined. Oh, how the mother will profess her complete innocence in the affair — wash her hands of it and let everyone know how she is suffering and paying for her daughter's mistake. The unfortunate daughter will suffer from the open contempt and finger of guilt her mother will constantly be showing her Will she be mentally and psychologically strong enough to survive this? Can't her mother realize with or without an abortion, this young girl will carry this burden forever Once pregnant out of wedlock, no matter which road she takes, it will be a road of bumps and crevices aided only through the compassion and understanding of her family.

Then comes the one who really pays for the mistake — the unwanted child. What will become of him? How guilt ridden will he become? How will he survive the knowledge that he is the mistake in his mother's life? He alone is making all of these people suffer. The burden of everyone's discontent and unhappiness rests on his shoulders

The birth of a baby should be thought of as a happy — bright and glorious occasion — like a sunshine yellow, not a damning — dark and accusing occasion colored with a murky gray

What a fabulous world this would be if every child born had the knowledge that he or she was a wanted baby Unfortunately must this wishful thinking be "science fiction?"

Percy's Record Hit Again

When the housing bill was up for a vote in Congress, Charles Percy, YOUR SENATOR AND MINE, was busy promoting Charles Percy on a WBBM television program when Charles Percy should have been in Washington to VOTE. This is a senatorial job requirement. Charles Percy campaigned for the job and the voters gave Charles Percy the opportunity to represent the citizenry. Renewal time is 1972!

The skeptics may easily verify my statement by contacting Mr. Boyd Barton, F.H.A., Springfield office or by checking the Congressional Recrod.

While St Louis can dynamite public housing projects, ILLINOIS perpetuates slum conditions from Chicago to southern Illinois.

QUESTION: How are the federal housing funds spent? ILLINOIS is one of thirteen states whose electoral process is controlled by organized crime. Hot Lines Of Hope

More than 250 telephone counseling services to help troubled people have sprung up, in every state in the nation.

"Crisis intervention centers, telephone counseling services, hot lines, help lines, lifelines — by whatever name, the procedure of counseling the troubled by telephone is flourishing across the country," says Edwin Kiester Jr., reporting on his study of the new development in a recent issue of Family Health magazine.

Many provide specialized help such as drug counseling, advice on youth problems, companionship for the elderly, suicide prevention. Others do no counseling but tell callers where they can go for assistance.

Originally intended for teenagers, the first hot line was started by Children's Hospital of Los Angeles to enable young people to talk anonymously with sympathetic adults when they felt cut off from their own parents.

Other agencies quickly saw the technique as a way to combat drug usage and drug hot lines were soon operating in many metropolitan areas and university towns, providing the names of rehabilitation services and other counseling.

At Stony Brook, Long Island, the human-to-human hot lines is called "Response" and is sponsored by the United Ministries of Suffolk County.

In Philadelphia, "Help Line" was organized at a "street people's" headquarters to help teen-agers with drug-related problems.

In New York City, another "Help Line" is operated by Marble Collegiate Church and is one of 24 such church-sponsored services in the nation.

"We don't have barn-raisings and other events to help each other any more," says a volunteer at "Response". "The hot line is one way we can show people they do have friends, that other people really do care about them."

Nuclear Power Plants Criticized

The Commonwealth Edison Company advertises that it is "concerned with our total environment." Why then do they seek an operating license for two nuclear power plants in Zion, Illinois?

The Zion plants, as currently designed, will routinely discharge gaseous and liquid radioactive wastes into the air and water.Prominent scientists say these low levels of radiation have lethal effects because they induce cancer in the form of tumors or leukemia in the populations and also cause genetic damage which may weaken the victim or his offspring.

In the region of Northern Illinois, from Dresden to Zion, five nuclear power stations and a reprocessing plant are either operating or in construction. A population of about 8,000,000 people faces one of the highest potential concentrations of radionuclide pollution in the United States

If the standards set by the Atomic Energy Commission governing radioactive waste do not protect the environment, I protest the licensing of the Zion plants, which may do irreversible damage to Lake Michigan and its surrounding populations. I object to the current policy of "pollute now, study later!"

Question For Fire Chief

I would like to pose a question to the fire chief of Elk Grove Village, as well as to the village manager and board of trustees.

On whose authority and by what precedent did the fire chief send fire department personnel and expend money to cover damaged factories with plastic after our most recent storm? I have no idea as to the cost of the materials used (although I would consider it high), but I am sure that the salaries involved is high

It would seem to me that the owners of these buildings or their insurance carriers could have absorbed this cost more easily than the majority of taxpayers in Elk Grove Village. I do not consider it the responsibility of the village government to bear this type of burden or expense. I would like to hear what the village officials, especially the fire chief, have to say.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—There may be rich men who can boast they got their starts as taxi drivers, but Jose Tjurs probably is the world's only multimillionaire who started out as "an assistant cabbie."

What did an assistant cabbie do? He got out and spun the hand crank to start the motor in the days before cars had self-starters. Today, at 71, Tjurs heads up a $25 million hotel empire. He is South America's leading hotel man, builder and operator of the Nacional Rio, the Cylindrical tower rising from Gavea Beach at Rio de Janeiro with 520 apartments and suites. He now controls eight hotels and is planning five others including a 200-room building at Iguassu Falls on Brazil's border with Paraguay.

He visited New Yrok late in July as a scout for business interests trying to lure the 1973 convention of the American Society of Travel Agents to Rio. Tjurs company is building a convention hall in Rio near the beach to handle meetings of up to 3,000 delegates.

SON OF RUSSIAN immigrants who settled first in Buenos Aires, then in Rio, in the first decade of the century, Tjurs had an assortment of jobs between his days as cab driver's helper and his start in the innkeeping business in 1941.

He worked as a stevedore and peddled fuit in the streets from a pushcart. Picking up languages in the streets, he saw possibilities in the travel business and began organizing vacation tours between Brazil and Argentina. He also ran a beer hall and for a time had a job managing a touring all girls' band modeled on Phil Spitalny's famed All-Girl band in the United States.

By 1941, he had saved $10,000 and mastered six languages. He leased an apartment building in Sao Paulo, which sometimes is called Brazil's Chicago, refurbished it into a hotel and was on his way to becoming a multi-millionair.

His Nacional Rio with its setting between the ocean and the mountains, its unique design by famed Brazilian architect Oscar Niemayer, its golf course, swimming pools, modern decor and European style service, is regarded as Brazil's most advanced hostelry.

TJURS SAID that whatever one may think about Brazil's present military oriented government, it has brought to the republic stability and a soundly based economic boom.

The Brazilian gross national product has been growing faster than at any time in the country's history, he said. The 1971 growth was 12 per cent and, unlike some other Latin American lands, Brazil is hospitable to American investment and Brazilians like Americans.

Americans comprise about half the tourists who visit Rio de Janeiro, he said, and the rest come from the Brazilian hinterland, other Latin countries and Europe. He said Brazil's tourist business has been hampered in the past by the Country's old-fashioned hotel industry, "There were only a handful of first class hotels in the whole country, which is bigger in area than the United States. Since it is winter in Brazil when it's summer in America, we ought to get many more winter visitors from the United States."

Tough Federal Standards Create Boom

Big Money In Anti-Pollution Devices

Discerning investors may find a silver lining in the clouds of air pollutants emanating from motor vehicles, according to research analysts of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

They note that federal standards calling for a 90 per cent reduction in emissions of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides from cars produced in 1975 and beyond have created a "multi-billion dollar" market for pollution-control devices. Their report identifies the companies expected to be involved in developing the technology and producing the materials to meet the standards.

"Experimentation is proceeding with alternate power sources such as the Wankel rotary engine, and turbine and electric engines, but at present it appears likely that a cleaned version of the currently used reciprocating internal combustion engine will be the immediate solution," the analysts report

NOBLE METAL catalysts, such as platinum, offer "the most promising approach" to auto companies in meeting federal standards, they find.

"The implications of the adoption of a catalyst system are wide ranging," the report says. "Catalyst companies find a large new market of about 10 to 12 million cars a year open to them. In addition, housings for catalysts and automobile modifications will be required, opening up vast opportunities to companies currently supplying components to the auto industry Fuel will have to be modified to be compatible with the catalyst and the altered engine."

The chemical, auto, and oil industries will be active in air pollution control activity, the reports notes

Paine, Webber's research director, Manown Kisor Jr., headed a project team of seven researchers in developing the report on automobile pollution control — investment considerations.

Federal Reserve Reports Meat Quotas, Trade Deficit

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported in its recent issue of the International Newsletter on meat import quotas and the U.S. trade deficit.

Import quotas on meat were lifted for the remainder of the year, President Nixon announced recently. The intent is to hold domestic meat prices down by increasing total available supplies. In 1971, meat imports of 1.16 billion pounds were authorized, but only 1.11 billion pounds were imported.

In March of this year, meat import quotas were increased 7 per cent from last year's level, bringing the authorized 1972 total to 2.24 billion pounds. Meat imports so far this year are reported to be ahead of the 1971 rate but slightly under the present quota limit.

Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Ireland, and Mexico are the major U.S. suppliers of imported beef and lamb. Supplies from some of these countries, however, are reported to be tight in view of increased worldwide demand for meat. A significant near-term acceleration in U.S. meat imports may not be possible even with a lifting of quotas.

THE U.S. foreign trade deficit in May improved over the near-record April figure. Imports, at the third highest monthly level on record, increased a slight .1 per cent from the April figure to an annual rate of $53.6 billion, and were 12.1 per cent greater than a year ago. Exports, also at the third highest level on record, were at an annual rate of $47.0 billion, 4.1 per cent above April but only 3.5 per cent over a year ago.

The resulting annual-rate trade deficit of $6.6 billion for May brought the cumulative deficit for the first five months of 1972 to $2.8 billion. At this time last year, the United States had a trade surplus of $7.5 million

The Commerce Department reported that shipments of agricultural commodities and aircraft led the export gain. Imports of consumer goods reportedly declined but were offset by increased imports of industrial supplies and food.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether the economic news has triggered a market rally remains to be seen, according to Indicator Digest. It says its technical market indicators still are in "cautionary position." The investor should not jump back into the market with both feet yet, according to the Digest. But it is still sure a favorable market outlook will moderate any decline in the market.

THE IRVING Investment Service, noting the market's lack of desire to move with the good economic news, suggests the market's midsummer jitters "will provide an attractive buying opportunity for investors." Irving notes some investors apparently are improving their liquidity, as is evidenced by the large number of secondary offerings, but this will be only a short-term factor. The company feels the public's confidence in the stock market is slowly returning.

by CARLTON SMITH

A switch of more than $500 million worth of mutual fund assets to a no-load basis — and that's what has happened in the Denver-based group of Financial Programs funds — is significant news for mutual fund investors.

It's the biggest switch so far in a trend toward dropping the sales charge, or "load," and converting load funds to no-load operations. And the trend, if Donald C. Campbell is right, has the makings of a flood tide that's going to sweep away millions of dollars in sales "loads" that have been coming out of investors' pockets.

Campbell, chief executive officer of the Financial Programs group of four funds said in announcing the conversion to no-load that "a long and thorough analysis of mutual fund industry trends" convinced the funds' directors that "no-loads" will ultimately dominate the industry.

SINCE 1967, the number of no-load funds has grown from 61 to 160, but the load funds still hold about 92 per cent of total mutual fund assets. The commission charged buyers by the load funds is typically 8.5 per cent. It has come under repeated criticism, from sources including the Securities and Exchange Commission, as being too high — but the criticism hasn't resulted in the load being lightened.

Now investors themselves appear to be accomplishing what criticism couldn't. The load funds, in recent months, have experienced net losses, with redemptions exceeding sales. No-load funds, by contrast, have as a group been prospering and enjoying healthy sales.

There's only one possible explanation for this state of affairs People who invest in mutual funds have grown too sophisticated to donate 8.5 per cent of their investment money to a sales organization, when they can buy shares elsewhere without paying the commission.

"Investors are becoming as unwilling to pay a sales load on a mutual fund as they would be to pay a fee to open a savings account," says James O. Richards, executive vice-president of Financial Programs and its marketing director.

It's not just the initial load that hurts so much, Richards pointed out, as the compounded effect at the end of several years A $10,000 investment in a load fund, for example, has $850 taken "off the top" for the sales charge, and only $9,150 is actually working as invested money.

IN ONE FUND for which we have figures, a $10,000 investment (minus load) on Feb. 1, 1960, would have been worth $34,631 at last year's end If this had been a no-load fund, with the full $10,000 appreciating over the same period, the share value would have been $37,862.

Thus the cost of the investor of buying into this load fund was not just $850, but $3,231.

Though increasing numbers of load funds have been switching to no-load operations — 15 or 16 in just the past year — Financial Programs is the largest fund complex thus far to make the conversion. It is now the third largest fund group in the no-load field — and the switch meant dispensing with a 1,200-man sales force.

How, then, are these funds going to market their shares in the future? That constitutes more interesting, and significant, news for investors — the subject of our next column.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)—There may be rich men who can boast they got their starts as taxi drivers, but Jose Tjurs probably is the world's only multimillionaire who started out as "an assistant cabbie."

What did an assistant cabbie do? He got out and spun the hand crank to start the motor in the days before cars had self-starters. Today, at 71, Tjurs heads up a $25 million hotel empire. He is South America's leading hotel man, builder and operator of the Nacional Rio, the Cylindrical tower rising from Gavea Beach at Rio de Janeiro with 520 apartments and suites. He now controls eight hotels and is planning five others including a 200-room building at Iguassu Falls on Brazil's border with Paraguay.

He visited New Yrok late in July as a scout for business interests trying to lure the 1973 convention of the American Society of Travel Agents to Rio. Tjurs company is building a convention hall in Rio near the beach to handle meetings of up to 3,000 delegates.

SON OF RUSSIAN immigrants who settled first in Buenos Aires, then in Rio, in the first decade of the century, Tjurs had an assortment of jobs between his days as cab driver's helper and his start in the innkeeping business in 1941.

He worked as a stevedore and peddled fuit in the streets from a pushcart. Picking up languages in the streets, he saw possibilities in the travel business and began organizing vacation tours between Brazil and Argentina. He also ran a beer hall and for a time had a job managing a touring all girls' band modeled on Phil Spitalny's famed All-Girl band in the United States.

By 1941, he had saved $10,000 and mastered six languages. He leased an apartment building in Sao Paulo, which sometimes is called Brazil's Chicago, refurbished it into a hotel and was on his way to becoming a multi-millionair.

His Nacional Rio with its setting between the ocean and the mountains, its unique design by famed Brazilian architect Oscar Niemayer, its golf course, swimming pools, modern decor and European style service, is regarded as Brazil's most advanced hostelry.

TJURS SAID that whatever one may think about Brazil's present military oriented government, it has brought to the republic stability and a soundly based economic boom.

The Brazilian gross national product has been growing faster than at any time in the country's history, he said. The 1971 growth was 12 per cent and, unlike some other Latin American lands, Brazil is hospitable to American investment and Brazilians like Americans.

Americans comprise about half the tourists who visit Rio de Janeiro, he said, and the rest come from the Brazilian hinterland, other Latin countries and Europe. He said Brazil's tourist business has been hampered in the past by the Country's old-fashioned hotel industry, "There were only a handful of first class hotels in the whole country, which is bigger in area than the United States. Since it is winter in Brazil when it's summer in America, we ought to get many more winter visitors from the United States."

Tough Federal Standards Create Boom

Big Money In Anti-Pollution Devices

Discerning investors may find a silver lining in the clouds of air pollutants emanating from motor vehicles, according to research analysts of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

They note that federal standards calling for a 90 per cent reduction in emissions of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides from cars produced in 1975 and beyond have created a "multi-billion dollar" market for pollution-control devices. Their report identifies the companies expected to be involved in developing the technology and producing the materials to meet the standards.

"Experimentation is proceeding with alternate power sources such as the Wankel rotary engine, and turbine and electric engines, but at present it appears likely that a cleaned version of the currently used reciprocating internal combustion engine will be the immediate solution," the analysts report.

NOBLE METAL catalysts, such as platinum, offer "the most promising approach" to auto companies in meeting federal standards, they find.

"The implications of the adoption of a catalyst system are wide ranging," the report says. "Catalyst companies find a large new market of about 10 to 12 million cars a year open to them. In addition, housings for catalysts and automobile modifications will be required, opening up vast opportunities to companies currently supplying components to the auto industry. Fuel will have to be modified to be compatible with the catalyst and the altered engine."

The chemical, auto, and oil industries will be active in air pollution control activity, the reports notes.

Paine, Webber's research director, Manown Kisor Jr., headed a project team of seven researchers in developing the report on automobile pollution control — investment considerations.

Federal Reserve Reports Meat Quotas, Trade Deficit

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported in its recent issue of the International Newsletter on meat import quotas and the U.S. trade deficit.

Import quotas on meat were lifted for the remainder of the year, President Nixon announced recently. The intent is to hold domestic meat prices down by increasing total available supplies. In 1971, meat imports of 1.16 billion pounds were authorized, but only 1.11 billion pounds were imported.

In March of this year, meat import quotas were increased 7 per cent from last year's level, bringing the authorized 1972 total to 2.24 billion pounds. Meat imports so far this year are reported to be ahead of the 1971 rate but slightly under the present quota limit.

Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Ireland, and Mexico are the major U.S. suppliers of imported beef and lamb. Supplies from some of these countries, however, are reported to be tight in view of increased worldwide demand for meat. A significant near-term acceleration in U.S. meat imports may not be possible even with a lifting of quotas.

THE U.S. foreign trade deficit in May improved over the near-record April figure. Imports, at the third highest monthly level on record, increased a slight .1 per cent from the April figure to an annual rate of $53.6 billion, and were 12.1 per cent greater than a year ago. Exports, also at the third highest level on record, were at an annual rate of $47.0 billion, 4.1 per cent above April but only 3.5 per cent over a year ago.

The resulting annual-rate trade deficit of $6.6 billion for May brought the cumulative deficit for the first five months of 1972 to $2.8 billion. At this time last year, the United States had a trade surplus of $7.5 million.

The Commerce Department reported that shipments of agricultural commodities and aircraft led the export gain. Imports of consumer goods reportedly declined but were offset by increased imports of industrial supplies and food.

Logan Square New American Legion District Champ

Logan Square's Lions won the American Legion Ninth District post-season tournament Sunday by completing a doubleheader sweep over Palatine, 5-3 at Recreation Park. The Lions had won the first game, 7-1.

The victory gave Logan Square the right to represent the league in the Cook County playoffs at Northbrook starting Thursday.

Palatine fought back into a 3-3 tie in the sixth inning before Logan Square scored singlt runs in the sixth and seventh for the victory. During this time, two close calls were hotly disputed by Palatine which went in the Lion's favor.

Palatine scored the tying run after Keith Steelman singled, two walks filled the bases and John Slack stroked a sacrifice fly.

The Lions pushed over the winning tally on singles by Steve Bobowski and pinch hitter Mike Cook sandwiched around an error and Ken Martin's fielder's choice. Bobowski slid home on a close play at the plate.

The insurance run came on a pair of walks, single by Stan Bobowski and sacrifice fly by brother Steve.

Logan Square drew first blood with a run in the third. Tom Chapman led off with a base hit and one out later was tripled home by Ken Martin. Palatine got out of the inning when Mike Garbus lined back to Ericson, who doubled Martin off third.

Post 690 struck for a pair in the fourth after Smith had allowed only one hit through the first three innings. Dave Hauswirth walked and scampered around to third when Gary Pemberton singled to left. Keith Steelman then lifted a sacrifice fly to left for Palatine's first run.

Bruce Eberle stepped in and slammed a Smith offering over the fence in dead center on one hop, resulting in a ground rule double. Jene Bell then hit another sacrifice fly, bringing in Pemberton from third with the second tally.

But the Lions came back and knotted it in the bottom of the inning. Jim Bucaro drew a walk and went to third on Stan Bobowski's shot to right. Bucaro came home on Ed Collins' single to left.

Logan forged into the lead in the fifth as the Lions continued to badger Ericson with singles. Smith got a clean hit up the middle and was sacrificed to second. Garbus stroked a base hit to move Smith over to third, and the pitcher scored when Bucaro hit a chopper over Pemberton's head at third.

DES PLAINES' CRAIG STILES prepares to apply a tag to Logan Square's Stan Bobowski in the first inning of Saturday's semi-final game. Stiles took a perfect throw from catcher Steve Scholten to gun down Bobowski trying to steal second. Bobowski got two hits to help Logan Square attain the finals.

Lions Capture 1st Game, 7-1

Logan Square took one giant step toward winning the Ninth District American Legion Tournament with a convincing 7-1 victory over Palatine yesterday afternoon at Recreation Park in Arlington Heights.

Leading the Lions in their first win of a best of three series was Mike Cook. This lanky lefty was in control all the way in four-hitting Post 690. Cook, named as the top left-hander last spring in the Herald area, showed he was more than deserving of that honor by striking out 11 and walking just two in the nine innings he worked.

Logan Square got all the runs it needed in the first inning with one crack of the bat. Whipping the lumber around was Stan Bobowski. After Mike Garbus reached on a bloop single, Bobowski connected on a Ken Roggenbuck offering and it finally came down on the other side of the fence in right field.

The Lions scored three more in the next two innings before Roggenbuck and his teammates settled down, but then it was too late. One run came home in the second. Following a single and stolen base by Joe Bombicino, Steve Bobowski singled Joe to third. This set up the delayed double steal which worked successfully.

Cook had looked perfect in the first inning after striking out the side, but he found out that he was human in the second. After being ahead on the count to stocky catcher Bruce Eberle, the count went full. Then Eberle teed off on a strike and tomahawked it over the left field fence.

The blast didn't shake Cook, however. He proceeded to retire a dozen Palatine batters before another hit was registered. During that time his teammates scored twice more.

Mike Garbus, one of seven Lions of the starting lineup to hit safely, used his speed to beat out an infield hit. After drawing a wild pickoff throw from the pitcher, he moved to second. Another blooper — this time hit by "Homer" Bobowski — moved Garbus to third. Ed Collins followed with a run-scoring single with Bobowski showing some hustle by scoring when the throw from the left fielder went into second.

Logan Square scored single runs late in the game. A walk to Jim Bucaro and a hit batsman allowed Collins to knock in his second run in the seventh. He shared RBI honors with Stan.

The Lions added insult to injury in the ninth with its final tally. After one out, that man again — Stan Bobowski — started things. He walked and so did Collins on eight straight balls. A pop out later, Steve Bobowski blooped one into left.

Cook followed with his third hit in five trips, but Collins was nailed at the plate on a fine throw from Gary Pemberton, one of two stellar defensive plays by the losers.

Coming up with the other was Roggenbuck and shortstop John Ericson. They timed a pickoff play perfectly to catch Stan napping at second. However, it was Logan Square that played the game without a mistake in the field which made Cook's job a lot easier.

John Slack, Roggenbuck and Keith Steelman were the only other Palatine batters to register hits besides Eberle's clout. Those came in scattered fashion in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings, respectively. Only Steelman's was flukey in that it bounced off the pitcher and eluded the infielders.

After that shot up the middle, Cook was better prepared for Jene Bell. He rifled one over Cook's head which the lefty snagged to end the game.

After Cook's big day at the plate, Garbus, the Bobowskis, Collins and Bombicino had two hits each.

Martin's 2-Hitter Stops Des Plaines

by TOM CARKEEK

Des Plaines' old nemesis struck again Saturday afternoon.

Little Ken Martin beat Post 36 for the third time this season as he fired a masterful two-hit, 15-strikeout shutout and helped Logan Square move past Des Plaines 2-0 and into the Ninth District finals. The Lions meet Palatine for the league championship.

Logan Square downed Des Plaines three straight times during the regular season, with Martin hurling two of those victories. With Saturday's win, Martin is now 3-0 against Post 36. All three of his triumphs came at the expense of young Larry Monroe, who will be a truly great one by the time he graduates from high school in two years.

Martin beat Des Plaines on a five-hitter with 12 strikeouts July 12 and came back eight days later to win again, this time on a four-hit job that featured 11 strikeouts.

But Martin was even better Saturday, mowing down 16 Des Plaines hitters before being touched for two consecutive hits. Bob Chen blooped a single to right and Randy Jespersen followed with a hard slash to left, but after that Martin settled back into form, retired 11 more men, and went home with victory No. 3 over Des Plaines.

Martin struck out two men in every inning but the third and seventh, including Scott Pruitt and Dale Schoenbeck three times each. Ken mixed his fastball with off-speed pitches and caught six Des Plaines batters looking.

Logan Square tallied single runs in the first and the second. Monroe became his own downfall on the first run. After he walked Mike Garbus, Monroe tried to pick him off first but instead threw the ball into the dirt and past Pruitt, allowing Garbus to scoot over to third. A base hit by Stan Bobowski brought Garbus home.

Three singles produced a run in the second. Ed Collins led off with a base hit and then Monroe got Joe Bombicino and Craig Zander for two outs. But Steve Bobowski got an infield hit and then Tom Chapman lashed a clean single to right, scoring Collins.

Logan Square peppered away at Monroe for a total of 10 hits with Jim Bucaro, Stan Bobowski and Collins collecting a pair each. Monroe enjoyed only three innings in which he managed to hold the Lions hitless.

Martin pitched his way out of jams in the third and the sixth. A walk, an error, and two sacrifice bunts put runners on second and third with only one out in the third, but Martin got both Chen and Jespersen to pup up to Bucaro and stifle the threat.

In the sixth, Chen and Jespersen registered the only two hits off Martin with one out, but Ken fanned both Steve Scholten and Pruitt to keep his shutout intact.

Palatine Bumps Park Ridge

by JIM COOK

Palatine power keyed Post 690's upset triumph over Park Ridge in the Ninth District American Legion playoffs Saturday as nearly half of the victor's hits were of the extra-base variety.

Given the robust nine-hit support, lanky hurler George Pattee scattered seven Park Ridge hits and claimed a masterful 5-1 triumph.

Park Ridge, the top-seeded tournament entry by virtue of its regular-season record couldn't cope with Pattee's hopping fastball and elusive curve as it managed, at most, one hit per frame and were the beneficiaries of just one Pattee walk.

Palatine, Sunday's finalist in a best two-of-three showdown with Logan Square, earned the ticket by ripping the seams of the Park Ridge defense.

Shots up the power alleys in both right and leftcenter accounted for three doubles and a towering home run. Compact Dave Hauswirth unleashed a tremendous drive to right that easily carried the fence nearly 350 feet from the plate.

Hauswirth's solo cruncher came in the first inning and provided Pattee with a slim, yet semi-comfortable cushion to work with. The control artist made the advantage stand up until the fifth, sixth and seventh frames when his teammates padded the margin with four more tallies.

Greg Ciezadlo was the undeserving loser of the nine-inning affair played during the heat of the afternoon. The workhorse of the Park Ridge staff limited Palatine to just the one tally on one hit through the first four innings, before tiring in the late stages.

With Hauswirth's blast as the only dent on the scoreboard, Post 690 nicked Ciezadlo for another run in the fifth. Randy Jones started the frame by coaxing Ciezadlo's third pass of the game and pulled up at second on the first of two hits by John Slack.

Pattee pushed a perfect sacrifice bunt down the first-base line, but Ciezadlo retired John Ericson on a short pop to center and would have escaped unscathed when Hauswirth went out second to first.

But in between, a passed ball allowed Jones enough daylight to slide under a high throw from Ridge catcher Russ Anderson to Ciezadlo covering. The unearned marker proved to be the winner.

Icing on the tournament final cake came in the sixth when Palatine began solidly connecting on Ciezadlo's offerings. Gary Pemberton opened with a double to rightcenter and Keith Steelman followed with a run-scoring two-bagger up the alley in left.

Bruce Eberle pulled a safety between short and third and an error in left permitted Steelman to cross. Further insurance came in the seventh on a Hauswirth double to leftcenter and Steelman's base knock to left.

Park Ridge had a chance to climb into contention in both the fourth and sixth innings, but Pattee wiggled free on both occasions. Ridge put two runners in scoring position with one out in the third, but erratic baserunning led to a doubleplay and an empty score column.

In the sixth, Park Ridge filled the bases on two errors and Ciezadlo's single after two out, but Steve Sarcia flied out to left to end another threat. The losers finally broke through and ended Pattee's shutout bid in the eighth on Anderson's leadoff single, two infield outs and a wild pitch.

By then, Palatine was riding the crest of a 5-0 lead and its tournament finals express was well on its way.

Des Plaines Ousts Norwood Park

Sobieski, Scholten Pace 5-1 Victory

by TOM CARKEEK

Merv Fink was worried about his pitching.

With one of the aces of his staff, Rick Haaning, out of the Ninth District tournament with a broken bone in his foot, the Des Plaines head coach felt that a shortage of hurlers would be his main problem if Post 36 advanced in the tourney.

But there was no cause for concern over the Des Plaines pitching Friday, as Bob Sobieski sprinkled four hits over nine innings and helped his team to a 5-1 victory over Norwood Park in the first round of the tournament. Des Plaines won the right to meet Logan Square Saturday.

Sobieski was flawless after the first batter in the third inning. After Tom Ward led off the inning with a double to left, Sobieski allowed no more hits and only three more base runners, two on walks and one a hit batsman.

Sobieski was rocked in the first frame when Ward led off with a base hit and was wild pitched to second. One out later, Lee Larson rapped a hard single to left to score Ward and give Norwood a short-lived lead.

The Des Plaines starter surrendered a harmless single to Bob Colletti in the second, but after Ward's hit in the third inning, the Norwood Park bats fell silent.

Post 36 answered Norwood's first-inning tally with two of its own. With one out, Bob Chen walked but was forced out by Randy Jespersen. Then Jespersen stole second, but it really didn't matter because catcher Steve Scholten stepped to the plate and clouted a long home run over the left-field fence off Norwood Park's Nick Colletti.

Colletti, a superb athlete who lends an aura of class to an otherwise undisciplined lot, was making his first appearance on the mound in almost a month. The muscular all-star selection exhibited a jerky motion in the early going, but seemed to settle down and get back the timing that had made him one of the league's best pitchers prior to his injury the first week of July. Colletti had ruptured an Achilles tendon and was not supposed to play any more baseball this summer, but he has ignored the injury and has taken the field several times anyway.

With Sobeski's stellar job on the hill Des Plaines actually scored all the runs it needed in the first, but Post 36 added one in the fourth and two more in the fifth before retiring for the evening.

After one out in the fourth, Scholten hit a grounder to Ward at shortstop who promptly flung the ball past first baseman Norb Kosinski for his second throwing error in as many innings. Scholten was awarded second on the overthrow. Then Scott Pruitt lifted a lazy fly to short right field which landed among the center fielder, the right fielder and the second baseman, scoring Scholten.

Des Plaines collected two more in the fifth, both after Colletti had struck out Craig Stiles and Sobieski on high third strikes. Then Rich Luzinski walked, stole second and went to third when the throw to second escaped into the outfield. Chen walked on four pitches and he also stole second.

Jespersen then picked up a couple of RBIs by singling to center and driving home both Luzinski and Chen.

Norwood Park came up with three clutch defensive plays which spoiled Des Plaines' threats. In the second, Dale Schoenbeck singled to right. Greg Fink followed, and Schoenbeck was off with the pitch with the hit and run on. But Norwood center fielder Tom Clark speared Fink's drive and rifled a throw to Kosinski to double up Schoenbeck and take Des Plaines out of a potential scoring opportunity.

In the next inning, Chen reached on an error with two out. He stole second and then got a little too anxious by trying to steal third — while Colletti was holding onto the ball. The Norwood Park hurler pivoted and threw to third and cut down Chen for the inning's final out.

And Colletti pulled off another heads up play which has come to be characteristic of him in the seventh. Sobieski started the inning with a hit and Luzinski singled him to second. Both moved up when Colletti, obviously tiring from his gruesome assignment of going nine innings after taking a month off, uncorked a wild pitch. Chen flied out and then Jespersen hit a ground ball to second baseman Rick Wisniewski, who came home with it and caught Sobieski at the plate.

With Luzinski at third and Jespersen at first, Jespersen took off for second and it had all the makings of a successful double steal. But Colletti alertly intercepted the peg to second, whirled and caught the befuddled Luzinski trying to hustle back to third.

But Chen pulled off the defensive play of the day in the sixth. Norwood's Carl Andrews cracked a deep fly to center, Chen raced back and to his left, outstretched his arm, and made a manificent over-the-shoulder grab.

Des Plaines totalled only six hits off the courageous Colletti but took advantage of four Norwood errors and six bases on balls. Ward had two hits for Norwood Park before being tossed out of the game in the fifth for a display of anger over a called third strike, but no one had a hit of Sobieski after the third. "Sobie" walked only two and struck out seven, four of them called, in one of the better mound performances of the season.

Basketball free-throw shooting and tug-of-war will make their debuts tomorrow and Wednesday during the 6th Annual Paddock Olympics at Conant High School.

Instead of the cumbersome team events of kickball and softball, these new entries of basketball and rope-pulling promise to challenge the 11 competing park districts in the same capacity but at a more rapid pace.

Olympic Feats Of 1920

(One of a series on extraordinary happenings in each of the 16 modern Olympic Games.)

ANTWERP, 1920 — A large number of American athletes, led by Dan Aherne, world record holder in the triple jump, "mutinied" against the American Olympic Committee at Antwerp. The city had been bombed so severely in the war that no hotel accommodations were available.

In protest against the crammed quarters on board the liner which was anchored just off the city and against the poor food which was being provided for them, they marched off the ship, took quarters in the city and refused to compete unless better amenities were provided.

They were promptly suspended by the American Olympic Committee. However, following intervention by other members of the team and the promise that all their complaints would be examined, they returned to the ship and an uneasy peace was restored.

This Game marked the debut of Paavo Nurmi (Finland), destined to become one of the greatest heroes of modern Olympic history. Although the unsmiling Finn, who always raced with a stop watch in his hand, was beaten in his first Olympic race — he was nipped at the tape in the 5,000 meters by Joseph Guillemot (France) — he came back to win the 10,000 meters and to lead Finland to victory in the 10,000-meter cross-country event.

Before his Olympic career ended at Amsterdam in 1928, Nurmi had collected nine Olympic gold medals — six in individual events and three in team races. This, of course, is a record of the track and field events of the Olympic Games.

Sports Reflections On Bobby Fischer

NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK —(NEA)—Bobby Fischer, as the world now knows, has a profound respect for money. When in early spring he received a letter from President Nixon wishing him well in the world chess match, Fischer immediately put the letter in the vault of the New York hotel where he was staying.

"I want to keep it safe," said Fischer. "It's a valuable letter, isn't it? It'll be worth money some day, won't it?"

Fischer, imminently at home in solitude, is fearful of being crowded. Thus, perhaps, is explained his forfeiting the second game to Boris Spassky because of a dispute about closed-circuit television cameras. When Fischer attended a Knicks' basketball game at Madison Square Garden last winter, he seemed to huddle within himself when the crowd roared. "Are they dangerous?" he asked a friend seated next to him.

A favorite tie of Fischer's is one he bought in Argentina. It cost a dollar, he says, proud of the obvious bargain. It is a black Playboy tie with pink bunny heads. "But I'd never wear it on television," he says seriously. "It's too sensational" . . .

Congressman Wilmer (call me "Vinegar Bend") Mizell, former big-league pitcher, hopes that baseball will make some kind of peace with itself concerning the draft laws and reserve clause.

"I have some real apprehension about Congress getting into the field of sports," said Mizell. He does not believe it would be "healthy" to have federal regulation.

He also doesn't believe that ballplayers suffer much under the reserve clause. "I got 10,000 boys in the Fifth Congressional District (in North Carolina) who would like to be a 'slave' with a major league contract," he said.

He does feel that fans have been mistreated because of (1) exorbitantly high ticket prices and (2) the arrant shifting of franchises from city to city . . .

Al Oerter, now retired, the only athlete to win gold medals in four consecutive Olympics, said he had a great advantage prior to the 1968 Games in Mexico City. "I was one of the few discus throwers who wasn't taking drugs," he said. "Maybe because I'd been working out on my own and had been away from the mainstream.

KEN MARTIN of Logan Square is safe on this play in Saturday's semi-final game with Des Plaines as first baseman Scott Pruitt was charged with an error when he pulled his foot off the bag. Martin had hit a slow roller to Des Plaines shortstop Randy Jespersen and was safe on the error. Martin two-hit Des Plaines for a 2-0 victory. (Photo by Jay Needleman).

Ted Williams Revisited

The 'Splinter' No Longer

NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — He admits without a struggle (the mirror has already struck the final blow) that he is no longer the Splendid Splinter. But he emphatically (with trace of smile) pronounces that he has not changed otherwise.

"Well," Ted Williams pauses, hedges, putting his stockinged feet back up on his desk in the Texas Rangers' manager's small office, "maybe a little. It was 10, maybe 15 years ago that I began to have compassion for writers I mean, that they had a job to do, too. That they had families and had to earn a living.

"But I still got this." He picked up a copy of an American League rule book and read the part that says reporters may come into a clubhouse only with the permission of the manager. He laughed and brandished the book like a hammer. "You know, I enjoy talking to writers now. Some things do change."

Don Mincher the first baseman for the Texas Rangers poked his head in the door. "Ted, I'd like you to meet Michael. He's one of our biggest fans," said Mincher. "Michael's had some back trouble, but he's doing fine now." Michael wore a Rangers baseball cap and a brace that could be seen reaching around his neck from under his shirt.

Williams rose from his chair quickly and young Michael appeared a little tree between two tall oaks. "Good to see you, Michael," said Williams in that clear, strong John Wayne voice. They shook hands. "Keep doin' fine." (To Micher) "Get him a bat, will ya, Don? Michael oughta have a bat."

One could quickly size up Williams, standing there, capless, in short-sleeve sweatshirt, knickers, stockings with blue stirrups Natural with a youngster; his eyes crinkly and his smile warm.

His hair is cut short and one wonders if it isn't so to conceal the increasing grayness, just as on even the hottest days he wears a warm-up jacket to shroud his paunch.

If it weren't for the massive atmosphere of the man, his neck and arms could be described as beefy. But he appears lithe — because of his animated talk that combines arms waving, hands darting with descriptive groans, grunts and other sound effects.

He sat back down and began to lace on his rubber-soled baseball shoes.

("Spikes" were for a time past.)

"Ted," a writer asked him, "do you think you cold still hit .300?"

Williams, who had a lifetime batting average of .344, the last man to hit over 400 (406 in 1941), has been retired as an active player since 1960 when, incredibly, at age 42, he batted .316 with 29 homers.

He took the question seriously, but did not hesitate.

"No," he said. "I can still make contact, but I've loss the power

"I got into the batting cage only once this season. It was an off-day in Baltimore I took about 10 pitches and didn't miss a swing. But when I hit the ball, nothing startling happened

"I think I can hit the ball about 350 feet now, but that's about all.

"I liked the feel in the box, the digging in. Now, though, a 33-ounce bat feels like it's got weight. Once it was like a feather in my hands."

Williams says he does not exercise any more.

"What would I be trying to prove?" he asked rhetorically.

He does haphazardly try to watch his weight. He tried a big rubber belt around his middle for awhile But it burst in public and he had to wiggle to keep it up and he said the hell with it.

"I also don't drink 12 chocolate milk shakes a day like I used to," he said.

One morning not long ago, he had a scare. He had a dizzy spell. His wife demanded he get to a doctor After a full series of tests, he was found to be in fine health. "No cholesterol," he said. "That's good Maybe it was from drinking so much orange juice over the years I used to squeeze and squeeze the oranges in Florida during all those spring trainings "

He patted his ample stomach. "Do I look any older than a man of 54?" he wondered aloud.

Fiocca Falters On Final Round

Len Fiocca, an "old pro" although still a young amateur, had to settle for second place because of a "young pro" by the name of Rick Garcia

Playing in the Chick Evans Amateur Tournament last week, Fiocca — a Palatine resident — couldn't hold off the charge of Bensenville's Garcia.

The long driving teenager fashioned a fine even par 72 on challenging White Pines Golf Club layout Meanwhile, Fiocca — who led or shared the lead through the first two rounds — skyrocketed to a 77. Garcia, demonstrating his knowledge of his hometown course, pulled a Lee Trevino trick shot on the 17th green by holing out from 45 feet. This helped him win by a commanding four-stroke margin 216

Fiocca, who finished in a tie for second with Fran Mentone with 220s, won the playoff with a par on the first hole. He also captured the medalist honors for the tourney in another playoff. Tied with Garcia and Steve Galrielse with 69s, Galrielse dropped out after the first hole and Fiocca stopped Garcia on the fifth with a birdie. But it was a small consolation for Garcia had the big prize.

Garcia made the turn for home with only 33 strokes but found trouble on the 11th He bogeyed there with a three-putt green and did the same thing on the 12th. A poor approach on the 13th forced another bogey, but he turned his game around after that with birdies on two of the last three holes.

Fiocca would have dearly loved to have captured the 17th annual event. The trophy would have looked great next to the Chicago Amateur Tournament award he won earlier in the month. But it wasn't to be Friday.

Prospect Losses

Prospect, an apparent advancee into the Northwest Summer League's single-elimination tournament after a darkness-shortened five and one-half inning affair against Niles East was both a loser of a resulting protest and of the continuation that ensued

The Knights led 5-4 when darkness interrupted Tuesday, but for failing to have an umpire on hand at the start, the contest was continued a day later and provided all Niles East needed to pull out the decision in 10 innings, 6-5.

Anderson Paces NU Line

Jim Anderson, a towering redhead who looks as though he stepped out of a Hollywood epic on the Vikings, has been anchorman for the Northwestern U. football lines for two years His greatest challenge lies ahead though, as he must serve as the cornerstone of a rebuilt defense in which he is one of only two returning starters.

How important he was to the defenses that paved the way for successive runnerup finishes in the Big Ten the past two years is illustrated by his having been named the team's most valuable sophomore in 1970 and most valuable junior in 1971. Both years, Jim, a 6'6", 243-pounder from Deerfield, was voted to the All Big Ten second team.

As befits an honors candidate, Jim's finest performances have come against the top competition. He learned quickly in his varsity debut against Notre Dame. The Wildcat defense was a sieve in the first half as Anderson fought to adapt By the second half he had come into his own and the Irish were unable to move down the middle. Against Ohio State, in defeat in 1970 and in victory last year, Anderson was "the finest defensive player on the field," in the judgment of Wildcat defensive line coach, Ron Marciniak.

Area Athletes Get Letters

Several more former area prep athletes have received varsity letters for sports participation while attending college.

Indiana State University in Terre Haute awarded letters to Jim Novack of Mt Prospect in football and Bill Geiser of Arlington Heights in swimming. Wheaton College honored Steve Brown of Mt Prospect in golf and James Quigel of Palatine in hockey.

Missouri Military Academy recognized Cadet Phillip Smith of Prospect Heights for his participation in track. Rich Karcher of Mt Prospect received a tennis letter from Monmouth College. And Culver-Stockton College awarded Arlington Heights' Jarry Bashleben a varsity letter in golf.

That night, President Roosevelt made a "fireside" speech in which he used the phrase "canceled out." The Atlantic editor called Berg and said she must have been wrong and would change it back

Ted Williams Revisited

The 'Splinter' No Longer

by IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — He admits without a struggle (the mirror has already struck the final blow) that he is no longer the Splendid Splinter. But he emphatically (with trace of smile) pronounces that he has not changed otherwise.

"Well," Ted Williams pauses, hedges, putting his stockinged feet back up on his desk in the Texas Rangers' manager's small office, "maybe a little. It was 10, maybe 15 years ago that I began to have compassion for writers. I mean, that they had a job to do, too. That they had families and had to earn a living.

"But I still got this." He picked up a copy of an American League rule book and read the part that says reporters may come into a clubhouse only with the permission of the manager. He laughed and brandished the book like a hammer. "You know, I enjoy talking to writers now. Some things do change."

Don Mincher the first baseman for the Texas Rangers poked his head in the door. "Ted, I'd like you to meet Michael. He's one of our biggest fans," said Mincher. "Michael's had some back trouble, but he's doing fine now." Michael wore a Rangers baseball cap and a brace that could be seen reaching around his neck from under his shirt.

Williams rose from his chair quickly and young Michael appeared a little tree between two tall oaks. "Good to see you, Michael," said Williams in that clear, strong John Wayne voice. They shook hands. "Keep doin' fine." (To Micher) "Get him a bat, will ya, Don? Michael oughta have a bat."

One could quickly size up Williams, standing there, capless, in short-sleeve sweatshirt, knickers, stockings with blue stirrups. Natural with a youngster; his eyes crinkly and his smile warm.

His hair is cut short and one wonders if it isn't so to conceal the increasing grayness, just as on even the hottest days he wears a warm-up jacket to shroud his paunch.

If it weren't for the massive atmosphere of the man, his neck and arms could be described as beefy. But he appears lithe — because of his animated talk that combines arms waving, hands darting with descriptive groans, grunts and other sound effects.

He sat back down and began to lace on his rubber-soled baseball shoes.

("Spikes" were for a time past.)

"Ted," a writer asked him, "do you think you cold still hit .300?"

Williams, who had a lifetime batting average of .344, the last man to hit over .400 (.406 in 1941), has been retired as an active player since 1960 when, incredibly, at age 42, he batted .316 with 29 homers.

He took the question seriously, but did not hesitate.

"No," he said. "I can still make contact, but I've loss the power.

"I got into the batting cage only once this season. It was an off-day in Baltimore. I took about 10 pitches and didn't miss a swing. But when I hit the ball, nothing startling happened.

"I think I can hit the ball about 350 feet now, but that's about all.

"I liked the feel in the box, the digging in. Now, though, a 33-ounce bat feels like it's got weight. Once it was like a feather in my hands."

Williams says he does not exercise any more.

"What would I be trying to prove?" he asked rhetorically.

He does haphazardly try to watch his weight. He tried a big rubber belt around his middle for awhile. But it burst in public and he had to wiggle to keep it up and he said the hell with it.

"I also don't drink 12 chocolate milk shakes a day like I used to," he said.

One morning not long ago, he had a scare. He had a dizzy spell. His wife demanded he get to a doctor. After a full series of tests, he was found to be in fine health. "No cholesterol," he said. "That's good. Maybe it was from drinking so much orange juice over the years. I used to squeeze and squeeze the oranges in Florida during all those spring trainings."

He patted his ample stomach. "Do I look any older than a man of 54?" he wondered aloud.

Coast Guard To Offer Free Boating Class

A Free continuous Boating Class on Basic Seamanship is being conducted by Division VII of the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

You will learn Maneuvering, Marlinspike, Aids to Navigation, Charts and Compass, Rules of the Road, Legal Requirements, and Safe Motorboat Operation.

These classes will start on August 7th at the Addison Municipal Building, 129 Army Trail Rd., Addison.

For more information, call Mrs. Arthur Remus, T 2-1825 or TE 2-2211.

Anderson Paces NU Line

Jim Anderson, a towering redhead who looks as though he stepped out of a Hollywood epic on the Vikings, has been anchorman for the Northwestern U. football lines for two years. His greatest challenge lies ahead though, as he must serve as the cornerstone of a rebuilt defense in which he is one of only two returning starters.

How important he was to the defenses that paved the way for successive runnerup finishes in the Big Ten the past two years is illustrated by his having been named the team's most valuable sophomore in 1970 and most valuable junior in 1971. Both years, Jim, a 6'6", 243-pounder from Deerfield, was voted to the All Big Ten second team.

As befits an honors candidate, Jim's finest performances have come against the top competition. He learned quickly in his varsity debut against Notre Dame. The Wildcat defense was a sieve in the first half as Anderson fought to adapt. By the second half he had come into his own and the Irish were unable to move down the middle. Against Ohio State, in defeat in 1970 and in victory last year, Anderson was "the finest defensive player on the field," in the judgment of Wildcat defensive line coach, Ron Marciniak.

Area Athletes Get Letters

Several more former area prep athletes have received varsity letters for sports participation while attending college.

Indiana State University in Terre Haute awarded letters to Jim Novack of Mt. Prospect in football and Bill Geiser of Arlington Heights in swimming. Wheaton College honored Steve Brown of Mt. Prospect in golf and James Quigel of Palatine in hockey.

Missouri Military Academy recognized Cadet Phillip Smith of Prospect Heights for his participation in track. Rich Karcher of Mt. Prospect received a tennis letter from Monmouth College. And Culver-Stockton College awarded Arlington Heights' Jarry Bashleben a varsity letter in golf.

MOVE UP TO A VOLKSWAGEN.

Don't laugh.
Now there's a big, luxurious Volkswagen.
With lots of comfort and standard-equipment features, including an automatic transmission, steel-belted radial tires and electronic fuel injection.
In the VW 411 Four-Door Sedan. And VW 411 Wagon.
The sensible luxury cars.

"I'd like my money back—I still couldn't get anybody to carry my schoolbooks."

the Fence Post — Letters to the Editor

Reader Says 'Prod Officials'

'Push Prisoner Issue'

It has been well over a year since the Arlington Heights Independence Day Parade, "Freedom, Our Heritage" clashed with the John Birch Society's POW float, "Freedom, Let's Make It Their Heritage Too." I have since read numerous books, some written by former POW's as Major James N. Rowe's "Five Years to Freedom" and Commander Lloyd Bucher's "My Story," along with other war-related stories such as "Patton," "America is in Danger," "Good Men Die," "Again, May God Forgive Us," "Behind the Scenes in Viet Nam," "Brainwashing" and "The USS Pueblo." My concern for the future of our POW-MIA's increases after reading each book.

The most publicity favoring our POW-MIA's is the wearing of a POW-MIA bracelet which can be obtained from several POW organizations throughout the country. The safe return of these men is one common issue that both liberals and conservatives share, and which is the only conclusion on which there is mutual agreement. My concern increases because, omitting details if the broad expanse from liberal to conservative opinion strongly supports at least the Internation Red Cross' intervention in behalf of our captured and missing servicemen, why has this issue escaped the moral responsibility of this nation and what action have our elected representatives actually taken? Both President Nixon and Senator McGovern promise to include the POW issue in negotiations. We have been "negotiating" for 45 months; its has not helped our POW's and MIA's, but has only prolonged their agony and the agonies of their families. The North Vietnamese state that they are holding "war criminals."

I assume that before November, 1972, all issues except the POW-MIA question will be settled, and again, as in Korea, our captured and missing servicemen will be forgotten for decades by the citizens of their own country. I believe it to be disgusting that we must settle for the hollow promises of office-holding and office-seeking politicians. With the upcoming elections, why not make it your personal duty and individual obligation to write to your representatives and senators in support of our POW's and MIA's. Unfortuanately, you will discover that past the rhetoric, absolutely no positive action is being taken nor is planned for the future. To avoid the bitter disappointments in store for the families of POW-MIA's is your responsibility as much as it is mine.

The parting of mutural agreement between liberal and conservative occurs in the action to be taken. President Nixon has voiced concern, as a matter of record, that the North Vietnamese have still held 15,000 French POW's for the past 15 to 20 years. Withdrawal and negotiations have yet to help the imprisoned Frenchmen, yet Nixon still relies on a negotiated settlement. McGovern has publicly offered to go to Hanoi after election and beg for the release of our POW's. If that isn't political hay, what's stopping him from going now? Governor Wallace shares my view that if you strongly desire an honest account of our missing servicemen, you'd stand a better chance of receiving it by repatriating them yourself.

If you havenot personally voiced your opinion to your representatives, you are a part of the callous indifferent for whom our servicemen suffer. When was the last time our gullible, silent majority demanded to be truly represented? Again, may God forgive you if you don't have the time.

On behalf of E-Hart Girls of Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights, I would like to thank the Herald for its coverage of E-Hart events and news during the past year. We of E-Hart are particularly grateful to Karen Blecha for her feature on the occasion of our organization's fifth anniversary in May.

Dems 'Disgusting'

I was utterly disgusted with the Democratic convention. I believe young people should have a voice, but to see the type of young people which they had was revolting. The thought of someone representing the voters going swimming nude in Flamingo Park was hard to take. I am writing to see just how Sen. McGovern considers these type of people in his campaign. Why back or vote for McGovern when he would not let the delegates voted by the people be seated.

Residents Criticize July 4 Parade Judging

I have to use this column to answer all the questions I have had as to "what happened to your float in the July 4th parade"?

The Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. entered the competition in the theme category "Cartoonsville USA." It was explained to me, the float chairman for the HEAA, that our selection of the Peanuts gang characters meant no other organization could duplicate this idea.

I mailed our entry form to the Hoffman Estates July 4th committee, stating the name of our floats would be "The Peanuts Gang Joins HEAA." We would have five to six vehicles in our entry and approximately 250 marchers. I then received a notice from the said committee telling me the HEAA floats were assigned to the 158 Payson St. address. "Judging of the float competition will commence promptly at 9:30 a.m. July 4th." By 8:30 a.m. we had a 36-foot trailer with Lucy, Charlie Brown, Schroder and Snoopy on it at our assigned address along with three golf carts. One had Snoopy and his Doghouse on it, one was a 40-foot baseball bat which our baseball All Stars and four leagues of players marched with — and the last was a football that our 14 football teams marched with. Following our 36 foot trailer was a new 1972 Dodge Dart which we are raffling off for our fund raiser this year. On our 36 foot trailer Lucy pitched baseball and Schroder played his piano for mechanical action.

When we were informed we came in third in the competition because we had no mechanical action on our float, it was obvious a gross error had been made somehow. After careful investigation, I discovered that our 36 foot float had not been judged. The information necessary for the judges to give fair judgment to the entries was not provided to them. I state, here and now publically, in no way are those judges who judged our doghouse and baseball bat only, responsible for this error.

The July 4th committee must bear the responsibility for this gross injustice done to our float entry. The judges were given no specific instructions on how the judging could be done. We assumed the judging would be the same as last year, but there was no similarity in any way.

I have requested the July 4th committee to publically apologize to the HEAA for an accidental unfair act. I was asked to wait and it would be done. The reply I received was a phone slammed down on my ear and a meeting I was invited to attend but could not find. On behalf of my committee, who represent hard-working civic-minded mothers, fathers and children who care — It is obvious we built a float too professional for the July 4th Committee to handle.

I wanted to write this letter three weeks ago and was asked not to, for a wrong had been made and would be righted. It is obvious the wrong is being buried instead of being righted.

The Hoffman Estates July 4th committee is all volunteers. They must be civic minded people to give so much of themselves to their community, but it is obvious they are also human and can made mistakes.

To own up to one of your mistakes is to be big, to deny them makes you small.

I do not like to cast a shadow on anyone who cares enough to give of themselves for others, but I also was a part of giving for others and saw it denied, then resented and finally ignored.

When you assume the responsibility involving decisions to others and you err, you must own up to it for the all not just the one.

I have always been taught competition is healthy. I joined the H.E.A.A. float committee this year so I could be a part of the fun and joy shared by that committee the year before.

Have you ever been a part of a labor of love? It was one of my most memorable experiences. We had not finished creating this years float and the air was filled with the conversations of ideas and improvements for next years entry.

Much to my regret, after the unjust, unfair treatment our float was given this year, who would want to build anything for next year?

In no way can the joys we shared building our Peanuts Gang be taken away from us. But the desire to compete again, after you have been informed you did not compete at all because they didn't know who you were, all desires vanish.

No wonder the Parade gets shorter and shorter each year.

'Don't Undo Good, Clyde Brooks'

The following is in response to last Friday's article on the S.C.L.C. and Clyde Brooks.

Mr. Brooks, you have done it again! If your statement, "We are going to scratch the sore until mercurochrome won't cure it." Isn't a statement typical of racialism, what then would you call it?

While I agree the wheel that squeaks gets the most grease, I think you're barking up the wrong tree this time. My suggestion to you, Mr. Brooks, is that you be careful not to undo the good that you have done for our village by pursuing this plan of yours, whatever it might be, by using blacks vs. whites.

I was sorry to hear of your difficulty in obtaining housing here in Elk Grove Village and am sure that it was because of your efforts that all others have had the door opened to equal housing since your problems were overcome.

Bring us your brothers, Mr. Brooks, and if they can qualify for a mortgage, or can pay the going rate for rentals, just as all whites must do, they will be welcome as a neighbor. Let them first apply for a job on our police or fire departments before you say that blacks are not represented. Use you "catch up time" wisely, Mr. Brooks, and you will do justice for your cause. Use it poorly and you will lose what you hope to gain. Remember, Mr. Brooks, under everything is land, and how this land is used will be greatly influenced by organizations such as yours. Don't do yourself and our community an injustice.

Vogt Thanks His Other Helpers

Due to our vacation and the new job startup, I just recently read the very flattering column Steve Forsyth wrote about me in your "Editor's Notebook." Needless to say, I am pleased that he took his time and effort as it made me feel very proud.

I would like to set the record straight, however, and name the people who contributed so much of their time and ability to help get the public relations committee job done. Len Ades was responsible for the village map and newsletter layout and art work. Jill Klein did a great deal of behind the scenes typing. Leo Andersen contributed a significant amount of time and excellent effort as editor of the Village Newsletter. Ron Helms and Tod Trayser spearheaded the appearance control project, and George and Joyce Van Hoorebeke headed up the President's Roundtable.

I believe that the real strength of Buffalo Grove rests in its unusually fine people as represented by those who worked on the public relations committee. It was a pleasure for me to be part of this exciting community and the many fine residents. Our family will not forget our enjoyable four years in Buffalo Grove.

'Brotherhood' Helped During Local Storm

We so often read about the bad things that happen in our country and communities that seldom are the nice things that are done publicized.

I was one of the unfortunate individuals caught in the tornado winds that had swept through Elk Grove on Friday, July 14.

I was stranled in my car at 11 p.m. in a community unfamiliar to myself and in a very frightened state. I abandoned my car and ran to a home that I selected by impulse and was greeted by two warm individuals that didn't hesitate to let me in. They gave me a towel to dry myself and offered to share their food with me, as well as their home. I was permitted to use their phone to notify my job and to call my family to put my mind at ease.

Yes, these people are indeed an example of Christianity that we seek and the neighbors we desire. Though my face was black and theirs were white, "brotherhood" was at its highest peak.

Mrs. Donna Edelen

Flood Fighter Lauded

In your news coverage of the recent tornadoes that struck the Des Plaines area, you failed to mention the efforts of one local resident following the storm. Aiding merchants in clearing away the debris was Burt Kossman.

Even though he is a possible candidate for a local political office, the man should be complimented for the aid he provided. He was the only resident, not including several of the merchants, who offered any aid.

'Women's Lib Threatening Homes'

The little baby doll that was held so lovingly in a child's arms is slowly disappearing from the scene. I cannot recall seeing in the past few years a child playing with one; walking with other little girls, pushing doll buggies as "little mothers." A pity that the beautiful time of childhood has been replaced by the playing with sexy dolls. No more tea parties; now it's cocktail parties the little girls dress their dolls for. How can they take these hard sexy dolls to be with them, to cuddle? The dolls formal gowns would get wrinkled, or the beads would scratch the child's skin.

Then why should they learn the beauty of playing with a baby doll, with the way Woman's Lib is infiltrating the minds of so many women. How many little girls know of mom's tender loving care, she works in an office, factory or as a saleswoman. She has no time in the evening to hold, rock or read to her little child. No, she has too many other chores that are pressing her for her time. She cannot take the time to play with the little child, worse, if the chill is older and wants questions answered, and mom isn't there to answer them. Mom, you have given up gold for tarnished silver. You are missing the most wonderful years of your life if you have a babysitter taking your rightful place. Think about it, what have you gained by working, a closet full of -niture, a larger bank account? What out-dated clothes, a second car, new fir- about the children these years are gone, beyond your recall. Come to think of it, why should a little girl play with a baby doll when abortion is so prevalent, who in the future will want or have babies? Will the honest-to-goodness homes disappear in the future, will all be gullibly swallowing the Woman's Lib idea of life? Will children in the future be placed in a common compound housed by the state? About time women realize how foolish to give up all, to work outside the home.

When parents wonder why they cannot understand their children any more, could it be mom wasn't home to listen, guide, or screen their friends? They have slipped away just as time has a way of stealing those all too few precious years.

A tremendous responsibility rests on ALL parents. Some day an accounting will have to be given to God for the stewardship on earth, and I honestly don't believe HE will be impressed by a large bank account, or second car.

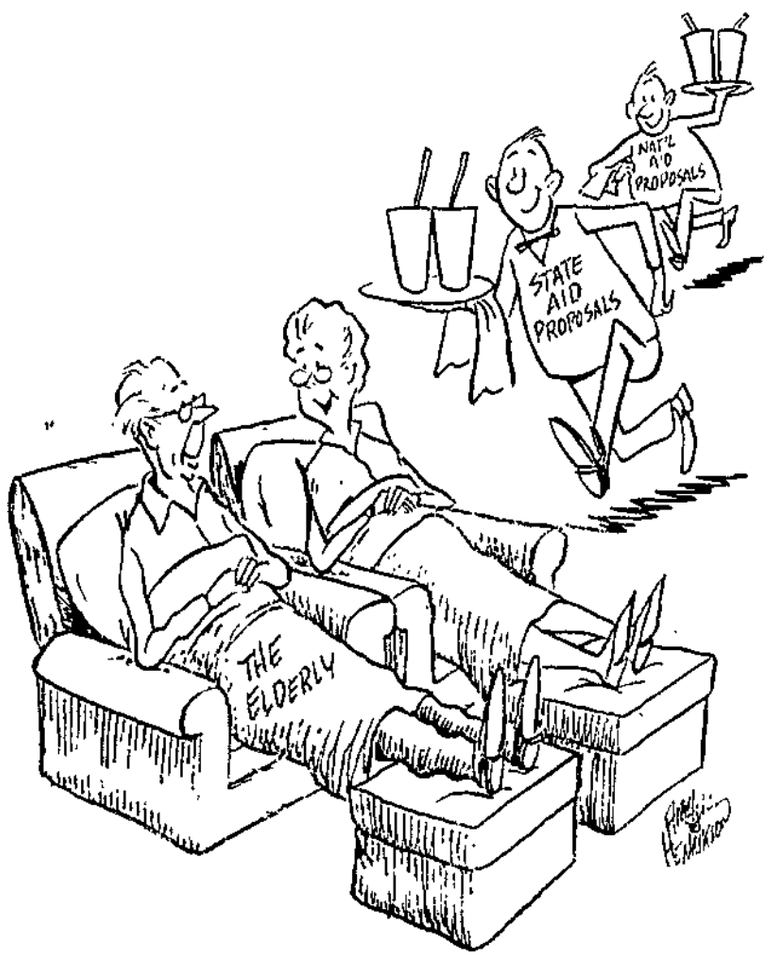
'It's A Good Year For Us'



Schlickman Quotes Kurland On ERA

On July 10, a letter from a Chicagoan, Ms. Carolyn H Krause, was published by you. In her letter, Ms. Krause took issue with statements on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), which I previously had made.

A major point made by Ms. Krause is that the Report of the President's Task Force on Women's Rights and Responsibilities stated that by ratification of ERA, the burden of providing the reasonableness of disparate treatment on the basis of sex would shift to the Federal and state governments.

Not wanting to respond on the basis of personal opinion alone, I communicated with Professor Philip B. Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School. Prof. Kurland has the reputation of being the outstanding constitutional law authority in Illinois.

Prof. Kurland in direct response to Ms. Krause's statements commented as follows:

"The statement from the President's Task Force report is wishful thinking rather than reasoned argument. Of course, the Court can hold that classification by sex is a suspect category which requires justification by the State. That is true under the Fourteenth Amendment. It should be no less true under the Equal Rights Amendment. But neither Amendment compels such a reading, the latter no more than the former. Whether the Court as presently constituted would afford such a construction to either Amendment is highly dubious. It is possible but not necessary. In any event here, as elsewhere, the Equal Rights Amendment would add nothing to the present constituional status of women."

Officials Lauded

Dear Sir:

The League of Women Voters of Des Plaines would like to congratulate Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, City Clerk Mrs. Eleanor Rohrbach and our City Council for initiating and establishing the Des Plaines recycling Center located on Oakton, east of Lee Street.

We hope that with the continued interest of all city officials, and especially the participation of the community, many more such recycling centers will be established.

Because of the pollution situation today, this center is of vital importance to our community, and we again would like to express our appreciation to Mayor Behrel, City Clerk Rohrbach and the City Council for their efforts on behalf of all citizens of Des Plaines.

I have always been taught competition is healthy. I joined the H.E.A.A. float committee this year so I could be a part of the fun and joy shared by that committee the year before.

Have you ever been a part of a labor of love? It was one of my most memorable experiences. We had not finished creating this years float and the air was filled with the conversations of ideas and improvements for next years entry.

Much to my regret, after the unjust, unfair treatment our float was given this year, who would want to build anything for next year?

In no way can the joys we shared building our Peanuts Gang be taken away from us. But the desire to compete again, after you have been informed you did not compete at all because they didn't know who you were, all desires vanish.

No wonder the Parade gets shorter and shorter each year.

'Don't Undo Good, Clyde Brooks'

The following is in response to last Friday's article on the S.C.L.C. and Clyde Brooks.

Mr. Brooks, you have done it again! If your statement, "We are going to scratch the sore until mercurochrome won't cure it." Isn't a statement typical of racialism, what then would you call it?

While I agree the wheel that squeaks gets the most grease, I think you're barking up the wrong tree this time. My suggestion to you, Mr. Brooks, is that you be careful not to undo the good that you have done for our village by pursuing this plan of yours, whatever it might be, by using blacks vs. whites.

I was sorry to hear of your difficulty in obtaining housing here in Elk Grove Village and am sure that it was because of your efforts that all others have had the door opened to equal housing since your problems were overcome.

Bring us your brothers, Mr. Brooks, anl if they can qualify for a mortgage, or can pay the going rate for rentals, just as all whites must do, they will be welcome as a neighbor. Let them first apply for a job on our police or fire departments before you say that blacks are not represented. Use you "catch up time" wisely, Mr. Brooks, and you will do justice for your cause. Use it poorly and you will lose what you hope to gain. Remember, Mr. Brooks, under everything is land, and how this land is used will be greatly influenced by organizations such as yours. Don't do yourself and our community an injustice.

Vogt Thanks His Other Helpers

Due to our vacation and the new job startup, I just recently read the very flattering column Steve Forsyth wrote about me in your "Editor's Notebook." Needless to say, I am pleased that he took his time and effort as it made me feel very proud.

I would like to set the record straight, however, and name the people who contributed so much of their time and ability to help get the public relations committee job done. Len Ades was responsible for the village map and newsletter layout and art work. Jill Klein did a great deal of behind the scenes typing. Leo Andersen contributed a significant amount of time and excellent effort as editor of the Village Newsletter. Ron Helms and Tod Trayser spearheaded the appearance control project, and George and Joyce Van Hoorebeke headed up the President's Roundtable.

I believe that the real strength of Buffalo Grove rests in its unusually fine people as represented by those who worked on the public relations committee. It was a pleasure for me to be part of this exciting community and the many fine residents. Our family will not forget our enjoyable four years in Buffalo Grove.

In your news coverage of the recent tornadoes that struck the Des Plaines area, you failed to mention the efforts of one local resident following the storm. Aiding merchants in clearing away the debris was Burt Kossman.

Even though he is a possible candidate for a local political office, the man should be complimented for the aid he provided. He was the only resident, not including several of the merchants, who offered any aid.

'Women's Lib Threatening Homes'

The little baby doll that was held so lovingly in a child's arms is slowly disappearing from the scene. I cannot recall seeing in the past few years a child playing with one; walking with other little girls, pushing doll buggies as "little mothers." A pity that the beautiful time of childhood has been replaced by the playing with sexy dolls. No more tea parties; now it's cocktail parties the little girls dress their dolls for. How can they take these hard sexy dolls to be with them, to cuddle? The dolls formal gowns would get wrinkled, or the beads would scratch the child's skin.

Then why should they learn the beauty of playing with a baby doll, with the way Woman's Lib is infiltrating the minds of so many women. How many little girls know of mom's tender loving care, she works in an office, factory or as a saleswoman. She has no time in the evening to hold, rock or read to her little child. No, she has too many other chores that are pressing her for her time. She cannot take the time to play with the little child, worse, if the chill is older and wants questions answered, and mom isn't there to answer them. Mom, you have given up gold for tarnished silver. You are missing the most wonderful years of your life if you have a babysitter taking your rightful place. Think about it, what have you gained by working, a closet full of niture, a larger bank account? What out-dated clothes, a second car, new fir- about the children these years are gone, beyond your recall. Come to think of it, why should a little girl play with a baby doll when abortion is so prevalent, who in the future will want or have babies? Will the honest-to-goodness homes disappear in the future, will all be gullibly swallowing the Woman's Lib idea of life? Will children in the future be placed in a common compound housed by the state? About time women realize how foolish to give up all, to work outside the home.

When parents wonder why they cannot understand their children any more, could it be mom wasn't home to listen, guide, or screen their friends? They have slipped away just as time has a way of stealing those all too few precious years.

A tremendous responsibility rests on ALL parents. Some day an accounting will have to be given to God for the stewardship on earth, and I honestly don't believe HE will be impressed by a large bank account, or second car.

'Brotherhood' Helped During Local Storm

We so often read about the bad things that happen in our country and communities that seldom are the nice things that are done publicized.

I was one of the unfortunate individuals caught in the tornado winds that had swept through Elk Grove on Friday, July 14.

I was stranled in my car at 11 p.m. in a community unfamiliar to myself and in a very frightened state. I abandoned my car and ran to a home that I selected by impulse and was greeted by two warm individuals that didn't hesitate to let me in. They gave me a towel to dry myself and offered to share their food with me, as well as their home. I was permitted to use their phone to notify my job and to call my family to put my mind at ease.

Yes, these people are indeed an example of Christianity that we seek and the neighbors we desire. Though my face was black and theirs were white, "brotherhood" was at its highest peak.

Schlickman Quotes Kurland On ERA

On July 10, a letter from a Chicagoan, Ms. Carolyn H. Krause, was published by you. In her letter, Ms. Krause took issue with statements on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), which I previously had made.

A major point made by Ms. Krause is that the Report of the President's Task Force on Women's Rights and Responsibilities stated that by ratification of ERA, the burden of providing the reasonableness of disparate treatment on the basis of sex would shift to the Federal and state governments.

Not wanting to respond on the basis of personal opinion alone, I communicated with Professor Philip B. Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School. Prof. Kurland has the reputation of being the outstanding constitutional law authority in Illinois.

Prof. Kurland in direct response to Ms. Krause's statements commented as follows:

"The statement from the President's Task Force report is wishful thinking rather than reasoned argument. Of course, the Court can hold that classification by sex is a suspect category which requires justification by the State. That is true under the Fourteenth Amendment. It should be no less true under the Equal Rights Amendment. But neither Amendment compels such a reading, the latter no more than the former. Whether the Court as presently constituted would afford such a construction to either Amendment is highly dubious. It is possible but not necessary. In any event here, as elsewhere, the Equal Rights Amendment would add nothing to the present constituional status of women."

Devon-53 Project To Be Financial Boon: Developer

Developers of the Devon-53 housing project, in a meeting last Thursday with representatives of local government agencies, contended that the development would be a financial windfall for local governments.

Devon-53 is a 267-acre project involving four developers using a common plan. The project will eventually have more than 6,400 apartment dwellings and 91 single-family dwellings.

The project is a complex of three areas. The first is immediately east of I-90 on Devon. The second is bounded by I-90, Devon and Rte. 53. The third section is immediately west of Rte. 53, approximately centered on Biesterfield Road.

The development site is in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The developers Arvidson Reality Co., Inc., Parkways Developers Co., J D Zizzo and Associates and Joe Buttitta, are seeking annexation to Elk Grove Village.

Thursday's meeting was the first official opportunity for representatives of school, park, library and planning agencies, among others, to meet the developers. Plans for the project had been circulated earlier. The board of trustees of Elk Grove Village has been meeting with the developers.

WILTON BATTLES, spokesman for Rolf C Campbell & Associates, the planner for the project, outlined the development.

The developers gave rough estimates of the cost range for the dwellings. Single-family homes would range from $35,000 to $50,000. Condominiums would range from $25,000 to $45,000. Fourplexes would be in the mid-20s. Apartments would be approximately $200 per month for a one-bedroom unity. Most of the apartments would be one bedroom and efficiency apartments.

Battles said that the project was tentatively planned to take eight years to complete. The developers hope to start groundbreaking next spring.

When completed, the project will have a market value of $160 million and an assessed tax value of almost $90 million

BASED ON current tax rates, the completed project will bring an aggregate $4.6 million to four school districts, $237,500 to the Elk Grove Park District, $126,000 to the Elk Grove Village Public Library and $100,000 back to the village from sales tax on retail sales from stores in the complex.

In addition, the developers, in compliance with village policy, are donating 10 per cent of land, or approximately 27 acres, to the village Charles Zettek, president of the village board, said that most of this land would go to the park district if the district wanted to accept the land. Some of the donation may be used for a school site and a fire station Battles said the development would eventually bring an estimated population of 13,000 into the village, if annexation was approved. About 1,000 children would be included in the total 13,000.

Battles stressed that the project was planned, "not abruptly, but over a period of years." Building would be done on all sites simultaneoulsy.

The children will attend school in elementary districts 54 and 59 and high school districts 214 and 211. Battles said the projected breakdown of student population was: 520 students to Dist. 59, 154 students to Dist. 54, 241 students to Dist. 214 and 65 students to Dist. 211.

THE TWO sections of the development east of Rte. 53 are in districts 59 and 211. The single section west of Rte. 53 is in districts 54 and 211.

The student population figures are based on studies of housing projects similar to Devon-53.

Battles said that based on 1970-71 education figures, it would cost slightly more than $1 million to educate the childen from the completed development. Since the project will produce $4.6 million in school taxes, the schools stand to gain approximately $3.5 million yearly once Devon-53 is finished, according to Battles.

Opinions Vary On Project

There was no official comment on the Devon-53 proposal from any of the local agencies, but representatives did express opinions to the developers

Donnie Rudd, School Dist. 54 member, said the project would be a financial gain for the district over the long run, but would create problems in the immediate future. The only Dist 54 school now planned for the area is already expected to be filled to capacity as soon as it opens. It would be difficult to add to the present school size, said Rudd.

Rudd asked if there was any possibility of a school site being made available in the section in Dist. 54. Battles indicated that there were no plans for such a donation.

THE SCHOOL SITE being donated is in the northeast corner of the section east of I-90, which is in Dist. 59.

Jerry Smiley, a member of the Dist. 59 board, said he was not pleased with the site Children from the section between Rte. 53 and I-90 would have to be bused to get them to the school site.

Earlier, James Ervin, superintendent of Dist. 59, had said the housing project presented a problem to the school board. There is empty classroom space throughout the district to handle the anticipated children. The school board will be in the position of having to seek a referendum for a new school when the voters can argue there is already a surplus of space or the board will have to abandon its neighborhood school policy and bus the children

Members of the Elk Grove Park District had questions about the land being donated They said the size and shape of certain pieces of land made any type of park development impossible.

Lou Smith, a member of the park board, argued that part of the donated land was swamp, under water most of the time

The new trucks are expected to last 15 to 20 years

'Fire That Killed 3 Kids Was Arson'

A police detective and a state arson investigator both testified Friday that the May 12 fire in Hoffman Estates that killed three children was deliberately set.

The testimony came during a Cook County coroner's inquest into the deaths of Stephanie, Robert and Todd Gahan, who died in a fire in their home at 129 Des Plaines Ln., Hoffman Estates All three children were under the age of 10.

The coroner's jury concluded from the information presented at the inquest "the cause of death cannot be listed as accidental or homicidal." They ruled the cause undetermined

DET. RON Sperandeo of the Hoffman Estates Police Department said he believes "violence and foul play" were involved in the fire.

Roger Sutton of the state fire marshal's office testified the fire definitely was arson

Sutton agreed with Sperandeo that foul play was involved in the incident

An examination of the one-story frame house revealed that at least two fires had been set and that some type of accelerant was used. These explain the intense heat and flames which hampered firefighters' attempts to rescue the youngsters, he said.

Both men said there is a prime suspect in the fire, and the investigation, which now has been conducted for more than 10 weeks, is continuing.

THE SUSPECT'S eyewitness accounts of the fire and information supplied by other sources contained many contradictions, they testified.

The suspect's name, although revealed during the inquest, could not be released, according to court rules.

Medical reports on the three deceased children all revealed more than 50 per cent carbon monoxide in their blood The examining physicians ruled death was caused by severe burns and asphyxiation.

Both Sperandeo and Sutton declined to reveal what further steps their investigation might reveal.

No charges have been filed in connection with the fire.

3-Month Construction Ends, Tollway Opens

Construction was completed Friday on the eastbound lanes of the Northwest Tollway, ending the three-month highway resurfacing project

Three lanes in both directions have been restored to normal, although clean-up operations continue today, according to Illinois Tollway officials

The eastbound Northwest Tollway, where only a single lane had been open for the past two weeks, was the last of the 22-mile resurfacing on the Tri-State and Northwest tollways to be finished The work on the Tri-State Tollway ended more than a week ago.

Construction began May 2 on both toll systems. The Tri-State was resurfaced from Ogden Avenue to the juncture of the Northwest Tollway and the Northwest Tollway from the Kennedy Interchange to Meacham Road near Schaumburg.

Total cost of the work was $5,800,000

As this summer's tollway work ends, consideration is being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Ill. Rte 137.

Additional work next summer may be scheduled on the Tri-State between Harlem Avenue and Interstate 55

Rains Delay Football Field Completion

Recent rains have delayed the completion of the Elk Grove Boys Football Inc., playing field.

Norm Jones, president of Boys Football Inc., said about one-third of the field remains to be filled. The section is now a hole about two feet deep, and it holds several hundred gallons of water, according to Jones

Filling cannot start until the rest of the field, located south of the village municipal building, dries out enough to permit earth-hauling equipment to drive over it

Jones said that two days of dry weather were needed before filling could start again.

After filling is complete, sod, wiring, lights, concession stands and seats will be put in. "We plan to use the field this season," said Jones

The field will be dedicated and all contributors honored, at the last home game, Oct 9

Jones said that the field will have an estimated value of $30,000, but the club had only about $7,500 out-of-pocket expenses. The balance was donated.

The opening game is scheduled for Sept. 9 at Elk Grove High School.

Mikva, Young Begin A Series Of Debates

Congressional candidates Samuel Young and U.S Rep Abner Mikva, D-Ill., opened a series of campaign debates Friday night, differing on the issue of school busing and agreeing that marijuana penalties should be reduced.

Speaking to a standing room only audience of more than 600 persons at New Trier West High School, the two 10th District contenders clashed most sharply over busing children to achieve school integration Young condemned "illogical busing" while Mikva called it "one of the great non-issues"

"I believe busing is an illogical way of trying to answer the problem of trying to get a quality education for students," said Young, the Republican candidate who is an attorney from Glenview. The important thing, he said, is to assure

Board To Act Sept. 7

Finance Panel OKs School Budget

A $12.5 million budget was finalized in finance committee Thursday and proposed for approval by the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 board of education Sept. 7.

Copies of the third draft of the budget showing an anticipated surplus of $34,100 are available for inspection at the district's administration offices.

Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 business manager, said the district has not approved a deficit budget for the past eight years.

"This year we remain solvent; not a bad feeling at all," he added.

The budget represents a $1,666,520 increase over last years $10.8 million budget expenditures.

Lapicola said the board of education is expected to approve a resolution Aug. 3 calling for a Sept. 7 budget hearing at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg. Residents are encouraged to pick up copies of the budget and bring questions to the meeting Sept. 7.

THE TOTAL estimated revenues are $12,492,250 and total estimated expenditures are $12,458,150. The budget includes four operational funds — the educational, building, transportation and Illinois Municipal Retirement funds.

Anticipated expenses in the education fund include teacher salary increases, said Lapicola. At present, the district is in the midst of negotiating salary contracts with the Schaumburg Education Association, representing teachers.

Although both the board and teachers association report progress in negotiating, neither group indicates a contract settlement could be reached before the budget is adopted in September.

Anticipated revenues in the budget reflect an increase in state aid.

Lapicola explained a change in formula gives Dist. 54 a total of $400,000 more in state aid than it received last year.

Hoffman Estates Weighs DAMP Tie

Purchasing water instead of drilling for it may be in the future of Hoffman Estates

At last week's village board meeting, trustees took note of an allocation by the Illinois Division of Water Resources Management of water to DAMP, an intergovernmental agency comprised of Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

It may be possible, suggested Mayor Frederick Downey, for Hoffman Estates to apply for and be granted either a share in the DAMP allocation or a similar allocation of its own. Or, he suggested, the village could purchase the water from DAMP, through an allocation approved by that agency.

George Longmeyer, village manager, is to invite DAMP reprsentatives to meet with the board.

Village Public Works Supt. John Hossack pointed out a consultant's water study report suggested the village look into means of buying Lake Michigan water. Chicago will sell such water, but pipes it only to City of Chicago limits. The village would have to find a means of getting it to Hoffman Estates, perhaps through an arrangement with other villages along the route.

THE TRUSTEES have discussed in the past the possibility that water found underground, through the village-owned and operated well system, may eventually run out, especially since so many villages get their water from the same source. A purchase arrangement could either supplement or replace what may be a diminishing supply, officials have suggested.

Even should the purchased water be a complete replacement for wells, said Hossack, the village would need to maintain its storage facilities. Any break in the water mains between Chicago or another source and the village could leave Hoffman Estates dry unless it had adequate storage, he said.

Hoffman Estates Supports Licensing Center For Area

A proposed motor vehicle licensing facility in the Northwest suburbs won the support of the Hoffman Estates Village Board last week, although the board opposed what it termed the "ridiculous" allocation of $5 million for the building.

In its resolution of support, the board put a $1.5 million ceiling on the cost of the structure, property and furnishings, which trustees said is still $400,000 more than was spent on the newly opened village hall.

Several trustees suggested there are better uses for the money. Virginia Hayter urged court reform, especially in juvenile court, and "bringing the courts to the people."

"They ought to take the $5 million and finish the roads so that the motor vehicles will have some place to drive," commented trustee Ed Hennessy.

"If this (the village) land and building and property and all the furnishings cost $1 million, I agree Five million dollars (for a licensing center) is too much," he added

Trustee William Cowin called the $5 million figure "ridiculous" and Trustee Bruce Lind said he could support the facility only with the $1.5 million limit.

SPEAKING FROM the audience, resident Henry Netter criticized the plan to build a licensing facility similar to the one on Elston Avenue, Chicago, where drivers license applicants are tested in an artificial traffic situation, a specially designed area off city streets.

Testing on "a golf course is terribly wrong. It doesn't prove a thing, any more than driving through the parking lot at Conant High School," said Netter.

Board opinion was evenly split on whether the facility should be supported, and if so, whether a ceiling amount should be set. Trustees Diane Jensen and Dyrle Rathman, saying they could not support a facility without knowing more details about it, voted no, as did Hennessy. Mayor Downey broke a tie vote by joining Lind, Mrs. Hayter, and Cowin in support of the resolution.

Curb Weapons Use: Trustee

Air rifles and sharp archery sets are being used illegally by youngsters in Elk Grove Village, and the practice should be stopped immediately, village Trustee Nanci Vanderweel warned this week.

Mrs. Vanderweel said some children had been luring animals to a feeding area to use them for target practice and had maimed a bird and a cat. She said the parents are responsible for the actions of their children and should be aware that these "toys" are not allowed in the village.

According to Police Chief Harry Jenkins, a village ordinance which prohibits "missiles" outlaws arrows, sling shots and BB guns which could be used as dangerous weapons.

"The ordinance means that not only are BB guns and sharp arrows not allowed in public parks or streets but also at homes on private property," Mrs. Vanderweel said

"I am greatly concerned that the public become aware of the fact that these dangerous toys are not permitted to be used in the village, and I want people not to hesitate in calling the police if they see children playing with them," she said said the area was being drained.

Members of the park board also said one of the land parcels being donated was surrounded by apartment buildings and would have no access for the general public.

Wilton Battles, spokesman for the planning firm, said one of the buildings could be moved to improve access.

AFTER THE MEETING, Mary Clark, administrative librarian of the Elk Grove Village Public Library, said, "We are going to be asked to serve an additional 53 per cent of people and will get only an additonal 42 per cent of revenue. We are nearly at capacity now."

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek ended the meeting by saying the village had to face the fact that the developers already had zoning approval from the county and could start building if they wanted to be unincorporated. He said both the village and the developers would benefit from incorporation. The village would gain additional land and tax base while the project would have the protection and services of the village.

Zettek said the developers have the responsibility to supply their own water and sewer systems.

"It is to our advantage to have them part and parcel of Elk Grove Village," said Zettek.

quality education for all school children.

"In my opinion, it's not the answer to quality schools or to quality education, so I oppose illogical busing," Young said.

MIKA, WHO said busing "is not going to be the 'sollution'" to education problems, maintained, however, that the courts should not be hampered in their efforts to enforce integration orders under the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 decision banning segregation.

"Busing is one of the tools that the courts must have in order to stop the practice of de jure (by law) segregation," he said.

"I will not do a single thing as a member of Congress to undermine the capacity of the court to enforce that ruling," said Mikva, who moved to Evanston last year from Chicago to run for re-election in the new North Suburban 10th District.

Samuel Young

"As a matter of fundamental constitutional law, there's nothing we as members of Congress can do about it," he added.

Their responses came to a question asking both candidates to give their positions on busing students in or out of New Trier schools. Mikva said he saw no reason to suggest busing students out of New Trier schools, while Young said he is "also opposed to busing students into New Trier."

The encounter was the first of some 14 scheduled debates, including one Sept. 20 in Des Plaines, that will be held throughout the 10th District, which is made up of Maine, Niles, Evanston, New Trier and Northfield townships

Abner Mikva

BOTH MEN, when asked their opinions of a bill legalizing use of marijuana, indicated they would vote against it. But both candidates said they favored changes in marijuana laws.

Young advocated laws providing different penalties for use of marijuana and for hard drugs. First offenders of marijuana laws should be given the option of going to a drug counseling school, with their offense then being removed from their record, he said.

Mikva said his opposition to legalized marijuana "does not imply in any way, shape or form that I favor the existing laws." He advocated reduced penalties for marijuana possession but said the law should continue to "come down hard on the commercial sale of marijuana or hashish."

At several points during the debate, Young praised both President Nixon and U. S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and indicated his support for their positions on a number of different issues.

Young, who defeated County Commissioner Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines in the primary election, also invited Democrats offended by the ouster of Mayor Richard Daley's delegates at the Democratic National Convention to support GOP candidates in November.

Mikva, who often received louder applause after his responses than did Young and seemed to have more of his supporters in the high school auditorium, said in response to a question that he does not support incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan.

HE SAID he wished Hanrahan would have had the "sensitivity" to take a leave of absence after being indicted in connection with the events that followed the 1969 Black Panther raid. Mikva declared that Hanrahan has an "awesome kind of gall" to run for reelection while under indictment.

Young criticized Congress for failing to act on many of President Nixon's proposals. The foreign aid, housing and welfare programs passed by the Democrat-controlled Congress haven't cured the problems they were designed to solve, Young said.

Proposals to cut defense spending "would be a disaster for the United States," said Young. He also said tax reform measures favored by some Democrats "would turn this from a capitalistic country to a socialistic country."

Young advocated welfare reforms and at one point said "a person on welfare in the United States has a better standard of living than three-fourths of the people of the whole world."

Contract Awarded For Sewer Work

The Elk Grove Park District awarded a $13,949 contract for sewer construction at their regular meeting last Thursday.

The contract was given to C and B Construction Co. to build a sewer to drain rainwater from Disney Park. The sewer will run parallel to Beisterfield Road, approximately 70 feet from the center line of the road. Work is expected to start soon.

3 Make Honor Roll

Three Elk Grove Village residents were named to the honor roll recently at the University of Oklahoma at Norman. They are Thomas Brookman, William Browning and Marion Rice.

Three Arrested In Drug Case

Metropolitan Enforcement Group officers recently arrested three persons for possession of drugs in the Mount Prospect area.

The arrests were made at 5 p.m. July 21 when members of the undercover law enforcement group searched an apartment at 612 Dempster St. in unincorporated Mount Prospect. They had obtained a search warrant first, police said.

Arrested were James T. Rutt, 21, and William A. Winkelhake, 23, both of 612 Dempster St., for possession of marijuana and a controlled substance (barbiturates); and James E. Dal Cerro, 19, of 924 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village, for possession of marijuana and a controlled substance (PCP).

The arrests were made on the authority of the Cook County Sheriff's police. The three men were released on $2,000 bond pending their appearance tomorrow in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

THE MEXICAN HAT DANCE was one of the highlights of a Fiesta last week at the United Cerebral Palsy Arlington Heights summer day camp, held at Wilson School, 15 E. Palatine Road. Mickey Kania, program coordinator from Palatine, had as much fun as the 60 children. Also included in the festivities was a bullfight (with children in costumes) and the breaking of a pinata filled with toys.

Pat Irwin New Park Commissioner

The Schaumburg Park District announced Thursday that Pat Irwin has been appointed to fill a vacancy on the board of commissioners.

Irwin was among four persons who applied for the position which opened with the resignation of Ray Hum. Irwin will be sworn in Aug. 10

An accounting manager for Avon, Inc., Irwin has lived in Schaumburg six years. He is married and has four children The family resides at 324 Bramble Ln., Schaumburg.

After Irwin's appointment was announced, Park Board President Robert Bock announced another resignation.

Guy Felt, who joined the park board in January, is leaving Schaumburg to operate a resort motel he has purchased in the Wisconsin Dells area.

Bock said a replacement for Felt will be chosen from the three other men who applied with Irwin for the previous board opening. The appointment will be made at the board's August meeting.

Faculty Workshop Set At St. Viator High School

The faculty of St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights will spend the next 3½ weeks exploring plans for new programs scheduled to begin in the fall and setting goals and objectives for the coming school year

The special workshop, which begins Tuesday, also will give administrators and teachers an opportunity to discuss continued improvements in both interfaculty and faculty-student communications. All workshop sessions are open to all St. Viator pupils who wish to attend, and some junior and senior students will take an active part in a full-day teacher and student session Aug 17.

All St. Viator students will have a choice of four different study programs next year Pupils may enroll in science, social studies or humanities "schools" or decide to remain in the traditional St. Viator program. While pupils in all four programs will take the same basic courses, class work will be approached through the subject area in which each student is most interested.

STAFF MEMBERS AT Governors State University in Park Forest have used a similar approach to learning, and the workshop will feature talks during the first week by Daniel Bernd, assistant dean of the College of Social Studies, and James Gallagher of the College of Environmental and Applied Science.

The Rev Ralph W. Snodgrass, C.S.V., also will conduct a workshop session, speaking on "The Process of Facilitating Helping Relationships." Theoretical questions and problems will be presented to teachers, giving them an opportunity to increase their skills in dealing with students.

Other workshop speakers include Dr. Thomas E. Jauck of the Northwest Human Resources Development Center who will talk on "Understanding the Adolescent Boy," and Mrs. Bernice McCarthy and Mark Anderson, who will teach in the humanities program next year. Both teachers spent part of the summer doing independent graduate study in the area of interdisciplinary programs.

Handicapped Preschoolers To Be Screened

Preschool children ages three and four will be screened in Dist. 21 this year to find which ones are handicapped, and to what extent they may need extra help.

The Dist. 21 school board Thursday night approved a screening plan drawn up by Donald Brown, director of personnel.

The plan meets state requirements listed in House Bill 322-323.

Brown said his plan will meet the requirements of the law but leave some flexibility for change once the program gets started.

The system will include a preliminary registration form, a nurse's interview and a questionnaire to determine a child's abilities and handicaps. The Dist. 21 director of special education, the school psychologist, a social worker and a nurse will be involved in the studies.

DIST. 21 PRESENTLY has its own sequential program for school-age, educable mentally handicapped children, and has a joint agreement with the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization for trainable mentally handicapped, deaf and hard-of-hearing children.

The new program will help identify children with the above afflictions, plus children with learning disabilities, language development problems or any other types of handicaps which deviates significantly from normal, Brown said. He estimated that 60-70 children might be involved, in Dist. 21.

Brown has included in the plan an evaluation at mid-year, to see what is and isn't working, and to develop a model program within the district for thorough observation, in order to plan a full program for the 1973-74 school year.

Staff members already in Dist. 21 will be utilized in the program, as well as aides and volunteers.

Program planning for each child will be based on the results of each in-depth study, according to the plan. If, after the in-depth review, a child seems to be developing within the normal range in social, emotional, language and motor function, no program will be offered. Each case will be reviewed within one year.

SOME CHILDREN may be placed in special facilities, such as the Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center, and a program will be developed within the district for children whose handicaps are primarily in speech and language.

The entire new program is geared toward involving three and four-year-old handicapped children in the school district programs — children who have previously been outside a normal elementary school scope.

The Dist. 21 program will encourage parent participation. Home-school interaction will be created through regularly scheduled parent-staff conferences at least once each six weeks. Brown said the program will also work in cooperation with existing community agencies in related areas.

MANY ADOLESCENTS with personal problems make use of the Omni-House Hotline, which offers referral service and guidance from trained volunteers and counselors. Most of the callers want advice on personal problems, and quite a few are depressed. Peter Digre, the new executive director for the youth services bureau, is on the phone quite a bit.

Kids May Not Have Long Walk

With the cooperation of Levitt and Sons, Inc., Buffalo Grove may be able to save children in the Twisted Oak Lane area a long walk to school when the proposed school on Penny Lane opens.

Levitt has agreed to grant the village an easement for access through two lots on Twisted Oak Lane, allowing the village to either extend the west end of that street to Arlington Heights Road or to construct a cement walkway for pedestrian and bicycle traffic.

The village board is scheduled to discuss plans for Twisted Oak Lane at a workshop meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in the village hall.

AT PREVIOUS board meetings, residents in the area have expressed the fear that extending Twisted Oak Lane may cause heavy traffic and speeding.

Also on the agenda of tonight's meeting is the presentation of a report on proposed water system improvements in Buffalo Grove, by village engineer Arnold Seaberg.

Village Mgr. Dan Larson said the report outlines overall water system needs, immediate water storage requirements and types of water storage facilities that may be utilized.

To provide for expanding village population, Larson said it is important that the trustees give Seaberg the necessary engineering authorization within the next year for the design of water storage facilities, the reaipr of well No. one and the installation of a water main along Dundee Road.

The trustees will review Seaberg's report and discuss water system improvements planned for the next three years, along with water system alternatives.

Faculty, Board Meet 7 Hours

Negotiating teams for the Wheeling Faculty Council and the Dist. 21 board of education met for about seven hours Thursday in a closed session with federal mediator Ed Wise.

Representatives of the two teams agreed not to discuss the negotiations with news media, but did say a second meeting has been scheduled for Aug. 9. That meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the Dist. 21 Administration Building, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

The teams had declared impasse after several public negotiations sessions, and requested the federal mediator last month. The teams were deadlocked on salary, benefits and procedural issues.

Representatives of both sides said results of the negotiations would not be released until after a decision has been reached. If the mediator cannot settle the dispute, a fact-finder could be called in.

Omni-House: 'Place For All'

by JEAN CAFARELLA

There is a two-story building at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, with signs in front reading "Sand Pounders, Inc." The front of the building is deserted and needs a good cleaning.

However, on the top floor, all is activity and preparation. Omni-House Youth Services Bureau is readying the building for community service.

Omni-House means "a place for everyone." The basic purpose of Omni-House is to provide alternatives to the juvenile justice system. The workers want to give adolescents an opportunity for creative solutions to their problems.

This doesn't mean juvenile offenders will necessarily get out of a jail sentence if they've committed crimes. If the youth shows a desire to change, this could happen. The main idea is to use Omni-House as a referral service, a sort of launching pad.

THEY'VE HAD A hotline for a while, providing referral service to counselors and agencies over the phone. Now the operation is expanding to include programs and counselors right at the building.

Omni-House workers plan to work with three groups — police and school representatives, Out-Reach workers, and youth service groups. The police and schools will aid in finding juveniles who need help, providing work programs for them, tutoring, etc.

Out-Reach is a group that goes into the community to find individuals who are potentially delinquent. They will then try to develop programs to give the juveniles a better way to use their time.

Different youth groups will try to involve potential delinquents in ecology groups, theater groups, auto mehanic groups, or whatever their interests might be.

The new executive director for the youth service bureau, Peter Digre, said many adolescents call the hot line with personal problems, and many of them are just bored because they have nothing constructive to do.

Suppose a boy calls who is generally disgusted with life and has turned to delinquent activities as something to do.

"The first thing we do is have him come in and rap. We ask him, 'Where are you hurting?' " said Digre.

THE COUNSELORS then decide if the boy is serious about making changes in his behavior. They then find what his goals are — he may be interested in holding a job. The counselors then set up a program to help him get a job. Each program, which lasts about two months on the average, is tailor made to the person's ambitions and desires.

If the person is confused, perhaps the goal is helping him find a direction. He might be given aptitude tests and vocational interest tests.

Omni-House will be working with Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and Prospect Heights youth commissions, the TORCH mental health center, project HELP, and other service oriented groups.

"We're not creating something new; we're acting to coordinate all the agencies already working," said Digre. The Omni-House has about 45 volunteers helping out, and Digre said he's never seen such an amazing and dedicated group.

THE BUILDING HAS unlimited potential, Digre said. It has several small rooms for counselors, the room for the hotline, a small room for very personal problems coming in on the hotline, a large room for group counseling, office space, and a medium-size kitchen for making people feel at home.

Digre is in charge of coordinating everything, and hopes to have the building ready for visitors by Labor Day. He has only been working with Omni-House for a month, but has done work with juveniles all his life.

Digre is a native of St. Paul, Minn. He came to this area in 1967 and worked with the YMCA while working for a degree in theology and counseling.

Although he is not ordained, he considers youth work a "ministry." His wife Pat is a social worker in Lake County. His job is to "help the kids who really need it," and serve as a liaison between adults and adolescents with nowhere to go or nothing to do.

Motorists Immune To Ambulances?

by JEAN CAFARELLA

In an age when tow trucks, Civil Defense vehicles, highway construction trucks and even garbage trucks have flashing lights, are drivers becoming immune to the flashing lights on ambulances?

The fire chiefs of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove think so. Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter says about one-third of the people on the road pay no attention to ambulances whatsoever.

"Some people act like it's a real inconvenience for them to give an ambulance driver the right-of-way. Sometimes it's all a driver can do to get around them," said Winter.

But the chiefs agreed it's not always a driver's fault. With so many flashing lights all around, people begin viewing the lights as something other than an emergency situation.

"People might not even see the lights in the daytime," said Roger Stricker, director of public safety in Wheeling. "You might be looking at another light. It's like seeing the sun flash on a bumper, and while you're looking at that you miss a turn signal."

WHEELING FIRE Chief Bernie Koeppen said many people can't hear the sirens very well. More people now have their car windows rolled up because their air conditioning is on, and they have a radio or tape player going. "Our new siren helps, because the sound is more unusual," said Koeppen.

"People are so used to noise that when we put the siren on it's like crying 'wolf,' " said Winter. The ambulance drivers are trying to get away from using sirens unless it's an emergency. In some cases the police also would be called to block intersections so the ambulance wouldn't have to stop.

Winter said traveling to Northwest Community Hospital usually takes an ambulance about 10 minutes. With police blocking intersections for them, it only takes five to seven minutes.

Many people who try to get out of an approaching ambulance's way have nowhee to go. "I wouldn't blame someone for not wanting to pull off on the shoulder of Dundee Road after a rain," said Winter. "He'd need a tow truck to get out."

Ambulances usually travel at the speed limit and slow down or stop at red lights, since speeding only saves a few seconds and is more risky. Their worst problem is at four-lane intersections. The outside lanes will see the ambulance and yield the right-of-way, but the inside lanes don't. Neither fire department has had an accident because of this yet, but most ambulance collisions happen this way.

Some of the more dangerous intersections for ambulance drivers are at Arlington Heights and Palatine Roads, and at Dundee Road at Milwaukee Avenue, Wolf Road or Rte. 83. The worst time of day is during rush hours from 3:30 to 7 p.m., the chiefs say.

AT LEAST ONE occupant of the Wheeling municipal building disapproves of the idea of turtle soup — the turtle. The amphibian has taken a liking to the village hall courtyard pond, especially since he is provided with food during his stay. Here, Village Mgr. George Passolt lowers the friendly creature into the "water."

'Fire That Killed 3 Kids Was Arson'

A police detective and a state arson investigator both testified Friday that the May 12 fire in Hoffman Estates that killed three children was deliberately set.

The testimony came during a Cook County coroner's inquest into the deaths of Stephanie, Robert and Todd Gahan, who died in a fire in their home at 129 Des Plaines Ln., Hoffman Estates. All three children were under the age of 10.

The coroner's jury concluded from the information presented at the inquest "the cause of death cannot be listed as accidental or homicidal." They ruled the cause undetermined.

DET. RON Sperandeo of the Hoffman Estates Police Department said he believes "violence and foul play" were involved in the fire.

Roger Sutton of the state fire marshal's office testified the fire definitely was arson.

Sutton agreed with Sperandeo that foul play was involved in the incident.

An examination of the one-story frame house revealed that at least two fires had been set and that some type of accelerant was used. These explain the intense heat and flames which hampered firefighters' attempts to rescue the youngsters, he said.

Both men said there is a prime suspect in the fire, and the investigation, which now has been conducted for more than 10 weeks, is continuing.

THE SUSPECT'S eyewitness accounts of the fire and information supplied by other sources contained many contradictions, they testified.

The suspect's name, although revealed during the inquest, could not be released, according to court rules.

Medical reports on the three deceased children all revealed more than 50 per cent carbon monoxide in their blood. The examining physicians ruled death was caused by severe burns and asphyxiation.

Both Sperandeo and Sutton declined to reveal what further steps their investigation might reveal.

No charges have been filed in connection with the fire.

CD Unit, Firemen Get Awards

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees and the Ranch Mart Merchants Association gave cash awards to the Civil Defense Department and the Fire Department at the village board meeting last Monday.

Jaycees Stan Margulies, Marty Harnisch and Jim Doyle made the presentations to Don Schindler, Civil Defense director, and Bill Dettmer, assistant fire chief.

An award of $100 each was given to the two departments from the proceeds of the Jaycee-sponsored Fourth of July "Big Happening" carnival. In addition, the departments each received an additional $300 contributed by the Ranch Mart Merchants Association.

Fire Chief Wayne Winter said the money his department received will go toward the purchase of equipment for the paramedic unit. The fire department is currently trying to raise the $6,500 necessary to buy an electric defibrillator and radio telemetry unit for the rescue vehicle.

Civil Defense Director Don Schindler said the Civil Defense Department will use the money to purchase equipment for their newly acquired rescue vehicle.

Swimming Pool Gets Christened

Buffalo Grove's first outdoor public swimming pool finally has a name. The park board Thursday night officially christened the new recreation area on Farrington Drive as "Willow Stream Park."

In other business, the park board awarded two contracts for work at the Joyce Kilmer School site. The Ha-Deh Landscaping Co. received the nod for seeding and fertilizer work. The firm was low bidder at $5,129. Thelighting of the tennis courts and play areas will be done by the Skokie Valley Electric Co., at a cost of $4,991.

Arrangements were made for the Junior High Teen Council to travel to an Illinois State Park Wednesday. The group will leave Emmerich Park at 1 p.m. and return at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in going on the outing should attend a meeting at 3 p.m. today at Emmerich Park. The $1 bus fare and permission slip are due at that time. Permission slips may be picked up from Harriet Blakeway in the village hall.

Restaurant Near School Rejected

A Yankee Doodle carry-out restaurant proposed for the south side of Dundee Road opposite the new Buffalo Grove High School was rejected by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Wednesday night.

The commissioners cited the potential danger to students who would have to cross Dundee Road to eat at the restaurant.

Comr. Richard Durava said the village should encourage development along the south side of Dundee Road that would be something other than an "attractive nuisance" to students at the school.

A spokesman for High School Dist. 214 said that Buffalo Grove High School was being designed for 2,500 students and would be open by September, 1973.

Village planning engineer John Best said the State of Illinois was planning to let bids next month on the widening of Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

Best that said the widening also would likely include installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads but he said he did not know for sure when the lights would be put in.

Homeowners Support Road Project

by JOHN MAES

The Hillcrest Homeowners Association has reiterated its support of the controversial widening and paving of Willow Road through the Hillcrest Slough in Prospect Heights.

The "Save the Slough Committee" and the Prospect Heights Park District have both opposed improvement of the road which divides the slough into its northern and southern half.

The Cook County Highway Department has begun widening of the road and plans to pave it soon.

Opponents of the project fear it will do more harm than good to the wetland area. They contend that the northern part of the slough would be much less polluted than it is now if the road was not there. Increasing soil erosion from the road, they say, along with a lack of flow between the two halves will only further pollute it.

However, members of the Hillcrest group, who live in the area of the slough, have remained steadfastly in favor of the road through the slough.

WHEN THE COUNTY highway department barricaded the section last month, Hillcrest homeowners demanded they be taken down.

"The road over the slough is not only a service to the community, it's a necessity," said Jack Maloney, a spokesman for the Hillcrest Homeowners Association.

Maloney mentioned the traffic congestion that would result on Hillcrest Drive, which runs parallel with the slough if the controversial piece of Willow Road was taken out.

"Recently the county put a meter at the corner of Willow and Elmhurst roads. After a 24-hour period, the meter showed that 900 cars came and went on Willow."

"Imagine how many of those cars would have come down Hillcrest, if Willow didn't go through."

"Not only that," he said, "if there ever a fire and the fire trucks had to go all the way around Hillcrest Drive to get to Wheeling Road, there could be a disaster."

The homeowners have put forth a great deal of time and effort to keep the area clean and intact during the 15 years they have owned it, according to Maloney. He mentioned the time several years ago when 23 of the homeowners amassed a collection of over $8,000 in back taxes to keep from losing the area.

Girl, 3, Drives Car; Collision Ends Trip

A three-year-old girl decided to drive a car, but traveled only a short distance before colliding with another auto in Wheeling Thursday evening.

Diana Schafer of 404 Anita Pl., Wheeling, had gotten out of her car in the 400 block of Stone Pl. when her daughter, who was still in the car, pulled on the gearshift.

The car rolled southward and struck a parked car owned by James W. Allison of 428 Stone Pl. Police estimated damage to the Allison car at $300. The Schafer auto had minor damage.

Schools Personnel Chief Quits For Downstate Job

Donald Brown, Elementary School Dist. 21 director of personnel, announced at the Dist. 21 Board meeting Thursday that he is resigning to accept a job as superintendent of a school district in Carrolton, Ill.

Brown has been with Dist. 21 since 1960. He was principal of Louisa May Alcott School for six years and was then promoted to personnel director.

He was also a special education instructor and director. Brown was on the specifications committee during the designing of the Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center, and was active in the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

When Brown started in Dist. 21 there was one special education class. Now he estimates there are 20-25, with at least one in each of the district's 15 schools.

A Palatine resident, Brown came to the suburban area from Delavan, Ill., where he was principal at an elementary and junior high school. He has degrees from Greenville College and Bradley University, with a certificate of advanced study from Northern Illinois University.

The board accepted his resignation with regret. He will begin his new duties in August.

The board also approved a plan to install air conditioning at Nathaniel Hawthorne School. John Barger, assistant superintendent, said that the air conditioning was not installed when the school was built because there was not enough money in the bond issue.

Barger said the district now has enough money for the estimated $11,435 job, and the board gave approval to Barger to award the contract to the James W. Hardy Co. The firm had bid on air conditioning the building when it was new, and was low bidder at that time. Barger said the new bid reflects only rising costs in materials and labor.

The Horace Mann Insurance Co. was selected by the board to provide insurance for the 26 administrative personnel in Dist. 21. Barger had recommended that action.

The agenda for the meeting had included discussion of bids for the two new schools in the district and discussion of bids for a monitoring system, but Barger said both items were still being analyzed and he had no recommendations. Both should be on the agenda for the next meeting.

The board accepted the resignations of six teachers. Board members Edwin Smith and L. James Wylie were absent.

Police Withdraw From Agreement, May Picket

Palatine members of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA) voted unanimously Friday to withdraw from an agreement with the village to continue working under their 1971 contract which expired May 1.

"The membership authorized us to take whatever actions we want to take" to get a higher salary increase from the village, CCPA Pres. John Flood said.

Action may come in the form of picketing village officials, Flood said. The village offered a four per cent wage hike for policemen in June.

"Our attorney is notifying the city manager today that our verbal agreement is off as far as we're concerned," Flood said. "The money offered by the village is unacceptable."

As of late Friday afternoon, City Manager Berton G. Braun said he had not received any correspondence from the police association.

"I've had difficulty reaching our attorney," Palatine chapter Pres. Michael McDonald said, explaining the delay.

"Right now we're just playing it by ear," McDonald said. The police association is waiting to see what the village does next before it decides on any action, he said.

No attempt at negotiations have been made since the village offered the four per cent hike, McDonald said.

THE CCPA originally asked for a 5½ per cent hike, but came down to 5 per cent during negotiations. In June, a CCPA spokesman said that in 25 other municipalities this year, five per cent was the minimum salary increase accepted.

Currently, Palatine patrolmen receive $10,080 minimum salary per year, and a top salary of $12,600. With the five per cent increase, starting pay would be $10,608 and maximum would be $13,312.

The village's four per cent offer, up from an original 3½ per cent, is the same amount given to other village employes this year.

Membership in the Palatine CCPA has increased from last year's total, McDonald said. Two of the 21 members dropped out before negotiations began, but seven more have joined, he said. Currently, the 26 members constitute a majority of the 45-member Palatine Police Department.

Relief! Tollway Back To Normal

Construction was completed Friday on the eastbound lanes of the Northwest Tollway, ending the three-month highway resurfacing project.

Three lanes in both directions have been restored to normal, although clean-up operations continue today, according to Illinois Tollway officials.

The eastbound Northwest Tollway, where only a single lane had been open for the past two weeks, was the last of the 22-mile resurfacing on the Tri-State and Northwest tollways to be finished. The work on the Tri-State Tollway ended more than a week ago.

Construction began May 2 on both toll systems. The Tri-State was resurfaced from Ogden Avenue to the juncture of the Northwest Tollway and the Northwest Tollway from the Kennedy Interchange to Meacham Road near Schaumburg.

Total cost of the work was $5,800,000.

As this summer's tollway work ends, consideration is being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Ill. Rte. 137.

Additional work next summer may be scheduled on the Tri-State between Harlem Avenue and Interstate 55.

Arlington Crest Rezoning On Agenda

The Palatine Plan Commission will once again take up the issue of rezoning the Arlington Crest subdivision at its meeting Tuesday night.

The question of whether to change the zoning of the subdivision from R-1 to R-2 has been discussed at previous meetings.

Both zoning classifications are for single-family residential districts, but designate different lot sizes.

Arlington Crest homeowners have contended that a zoning change would subject them to higher taxes.

The village board had initiated steps to rezone the subdivision to avoid continually granting variations.

The board is unlikely to finalize the change, however, if the homeowners can provide written proof from Cook County officials indicting that their taxes would go up.

The plan commission's recommendation on the matter would go to the village board for final action.

Four other matters up for discussion at the plan commission meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. in village hall, involve rezoning requests for:

—seven acres at the southwest corner of Smith Street and Northwest Highway for development of the Celebrity Center, a bowling-restaurant-car dealership complex and shopping area.

—property at the northwest corner of Warren Avenue and Northest Highway for construction of a small office building for a civil engineering practice.

—property near the intersection of Roselle and Algonquin roads for construction of a Tastee-Freez.

—three-quarters of an acre included in the Yellow Freight System, Inc., property, 495 W. Baldwin Rd., for manufacturing zoning.

Also on the agenda is discussion of the sidewalk report and the central business district study.

2-Car Collision Injures 3 Here

Three persons sustained injuries Thursday when the two cars in which they were riding collided at Plum Grove Road and Johnson Street in Palatine.

Michael Melcher, 64, of 3353 W. School St., Chicago, remained hospitalized Friday at Bethesda Hospital in Chicago, where he was treated for a bleeding nose and back and rib injuries.

Melcher had been transferred to the hospital from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights at his request.

Treated and released from Northwest were Laura E. Heimlick, 18, of 450 S. Cedar St., Palatine, and Marty Gailis, 18, of 601 Stephen Dr., Palatine. Gailis was a passenger in the car driven by Miss Heimlick.

According to police, the Heimlick car, westbound on Johnson, failed to yield the right-of-way to the Melcher vehicle, which was northbound on Plum Grove.

Miss Heimlick was ticketed for failure to yield.

Muscular Dystrophy Carnival Planned

A backyard carnival will be held this week in Palatine to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

The carnival is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the home of Susan Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cutler, 848 E. Paddock Dr.

Lynn Worth will assist Susan in conducting the carnival.

All-Stars Move To Region Finals

The Palatine North Little League all-star squad has won its district championship and now advances to the regional finals.

Palatine North took the District 14 championship by edging Des Plaines South 8-7, hammering Maine-Northfield 14-2 and defeating Des Plaines Central 10-5 in the title game last Thursday night.

They now advince to the state tournament in Elgin where today they will play the winner of District 12, Whitecap National. The victor in this contest gains the right to meet Carpentersville Wednesday. The tournament will conclude on Thursday with the title game.

The winner of the Elgin tournament will then advance to the national tourney at Williamsport, Pa.

Village May Not Take Stand On Township

The Village of Palatine is not likely to take a stand on the Palatine League of Women Voters (LWV) attempt to dissolve Palatine Township government.

The LWV has sent copies of its study of the township government to each village trustee, but Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun said Friday the matter will not be included on the village board agenda unless a trustee specifically asks for its consideration.

Similar study packets were sent to members of the Rolling Meadows City Council, which is expected to take a stand.

In addition, one copy of the study was sent to the villages of South Barrington, Barrington, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estaes, each of which is party within the boundaries of Palatine Township.

The LWV effort to dissolve the township stems from its contention that the duties performed by the township could more efficiently be handled by other levels of government.

The league expects to know this week whether enough signatures have been gathered on petitions to place the question on the Nov. 7 general electon ballot.

'Fire That Killed 3 Kids Was Arson'

A police detective and a state arson investigator both testified Friday that the May 12 fire in Hoffman Estates that killed three children was deliberately set.

The testimony came during a Cook County coroner's inquest into the deaths of Stephanie, Robert and Todd Gahan, who died in a fire in their home at 129 Des Plaines Ln., Hoffman Estates. All three children were under the age of 10.

The coroner's jury concluded from the information presented at the inquest "the cause of death cannot be listed as accidental or homicidal." They ruled the cause undetermined.

DET. RON Sperandeo of the Hoffman Estates Police Department said he believes "violence and foul play" were involved in the fire.

Roger Sutton of the state fire marshal's office testified the fire definitely was arson.

Sutton agreed with Sperandeo that foul play was involved in the incident.

An examination of the one-story frame house revealed that at least two fires had been set and that some type of accelerant was used. These explain the intense heat and flames which hampered firefighters' attempts to rescue the youngsters, he said.

Both men said there is a prime suspect in the fire, and the investigation, which now has been conducted for more than 10 weeks, is continuing.

THE SUSPECT'S eyewitness accounts of the fire and information supplied by other sources contained many contradictions, they testified.

The suspect's name, although revealed during the inquest, could not be released, according to court rules.

Medical reports on the three deceased children all revealed more than 50 per cent carbon monoxide in their blood. The examining physicians ruled death was caused by severe burns and asphyxiation.

Both Sperandeo and Sutton declined to reveal what further steps their investigation might reveal.

No charges have been filed in connection with the fire.

Jazz Band To Perform

The Harper College Jazz Band will perform tonight at Hasbrook Park, 333 W. Maude, Arlington Heights, at 8 p.m. in conjunction with the park district's weekly "Musica Under the Stars" program.

The band is composed of 20 musicians.

Mickey Kania, program coordinator from Palatine, had as much fun as the 60 children. Also included in the festivities was a bullfight (with children in costumes) and the breaking of a pinata filled with toys.

Aug. 31 Hearing For Two Charged With Bike Thefts

A hearing has been set for Aug. 31 for two Palatine residents charged with bicycle thefts in the village last week.

Arrested were Robert Pilz, 40, 53 S. Greenwood Ave., and Jean B. Gerarge, 50, 5003 S Wilke Rd. They were apprehended three hours after two Palatine youths told police they saw someone in a station wagon drive off with their bicycles.

Palatine police reportedly traced the car to Pilz through the license number. He and his passenger were apprehended outside a Palatine cocktail lounge last week when Patrolman Michael McDonald recognized the auto.

Earlier in the day, Richard Dougherty, 21, and John Ribar, 17, reported that their bicycles were stolen from behind the Brown Derby restaurant, 45 W. Slade, Palatine. Dougherty's 10-speed bike had been chained through the spokes but was not attached to any stationary object. Ribar's 5-speed was unlocked.

Charges of theft were signed against both suspects after they were questioned at the police station.

The Aug. 31 hearing is set in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court. Maximum penalty for the misdemeanor charges is either $500 or one-year imprisonment or both.

Park Board Approves New Ice Arena Schedule

A total of 55 public skating hours will be offered at the Rolling Meadows Ice Arena this fall

The Rolling Meadows Park District Board of Commissioners approved the new arena schedule Thursday.

Public skating hours will be offered from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday through Friday and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Evening public skating sessions will be from 7:30 to 11 p.m. on Sunday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. On Sunday and Wednesday 9 to 11 p.m. will be reserved for adults only.

This is the most public skating hours the park district board has ever offered.

The hockey league will be using the ice arena from 7:30 to 11 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 6 to 11 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

This is the same amount of ice time the hockey league had last year. Extra hours are being added, however, because the gym and meeting rooms will be opened to the hockey league for discussion of theory, team development and chalk sessions.

THE ROLLING Meadows Skating Club will have the ice daily from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The skating club is designed for skaters who have graduated from the basic classes offered by the park district and want to start patch work, free skating and ice dancing.

The Chicago Figure Skating Club will use the ice from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

The ice will be used on Tuesday and Thursday before 10 a.m. for speed skating and on Monday, Wednesday and Friday before 10 a.m. for patch work.

Centex Presents Preanexation Plan

Centex Homes Corp. has presented a preannexation plan to develop 236 acres west of the Winston Knolls subdivision along Algonquin and Freeman roads in Hoffman Estates.

Approximately half of the 236 acres are within the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 boundaries.

The proposed subdivision would contain three zoning classifications: Single-family detached, ownership townhouses and commercial. Plans call for approximately 325 single-family houses and 618 townhouses.

CENTEX ESTIMATES total resident population at 3,837. Of these, 1,285 will be school-age children.

Because the project crosses the boundaries of Palatine and Barrington Township, 705 children will attend elementary school Dist. 4 and High School Dist. 224 in Barrington Township and 580 will attend Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211 in Palatine Township.

Joseph Kiszka, Dist. 15 deputy superintendent who was the only representative from the school district present at a recent Hoffman Estates Plan Commission meeting raised several questions.

Kiszka pointed out that part of the proposed development would be located in one school district and the remainder in another, creating problems for both districts.

The developers indicated they realized the problem but said in working with the terrain of the land it was difficult to come up with street boundaries that followed the district boundaries exactly.

Kiszka also queried the developers about a contribution to the school districts and the extent of the contribution. The developers were directed to meet with district representatives to work this out.

The board's site committee has established guidelines for builder's contributions, said Kiszka. The guidelines call for a contribution of five acres of land and one additional acre for every 100 elementary-age children. The guidelines also call for a $100 contribution for each bedroom in the development.

Kiszka said he has been working with the developers from the beginning and about a year and a half ago they had expressed a willingness to donate a site to the district.

Soil borings of the site found the land buildable but adjacent land designated for playground use was found to be in a retention basin. Ksizka asked the developers if the Metropolitan Sanitary District would require the retention area and if the playground area could be moved to dry land.

"Our school district is not just interested in gaining land. We want approved land and buildable land," said Kiszka.

According to the developers figures, the proposed project will generate $252,000 in revenue to Dist. 15. Based on a conservative estimate of 460 elementary-age children (120 below the developer's own estimates) it would cost the district $368,000 to educate the children.

Kiszka indicated a monetary contribution by the developer would help overcome the tax lag from when the district receives the children and when the district gets tax funds from the project.

DIST. 15 HAS a school site in the Winston Knolls subdivision and approval from voters to build a school on the site by 1974.

Kiszka indicated the Winston Knolls school would not be adequate to handle the children from the adjacent development and another site is necessary. The Howie in the Hills housing development also is proposed nearby.

Kiszka said Centex has been most cooperative with Dist. 15 in the past although it has limited contributions solely to school sites.

Three Arrested In Drug Case

Metropolitan Enforcement Group officers recently arrested three persons for possession of drugs in the Mount Prospect area.

The arrests were made at 5 p.m. July 21 when members of the undercover law enforcement group searched an apartment at 612 Dempster St. in unincorporated Mount Prospect. They had obtained a search warrant first, police said.

Arrested were James T. Rutt, 21, and William A. Winkelhake, 23, both of 612 Dempster St., for possession of marijuana and a controlled substance (barbiturates); and James E. Dal Cerro, 19, of 924 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village, for possession of marijuana and a controlled substance (PCP).

The arrests were made on the authority of the Cook County Sheriff's police. The three men were released on $2,000 bond pending their appearance tomorrow in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

City, Fire Dist. Reach Agreement On Personnel

Agreements on all major differences concerning fire department personnel have been reached by a city committee and the Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District trustees.

Among the agreements is a plan to hire six new full-time firemen before the city assumes control and operation of the fire district.

A plan also was suggested by Mayor Roland Meyer to explore the possibility of training city public works employes to serve as volunteer firemen.

The agreements, which include matters of salary, fringe benefits and paid on-call (volunteer) firemen, in addition to manpower, will all require city council approval.

IF THEY GO THROUGH they apparently will solve the problems that have complicated the proposed merger of the fire district and the city.

Meyer, who attended last Thursday's session along with City Treas. Bob Cole and Ald. Kenneth Retzke, said the agreements are satisfactory and said he hopes the council will approve them.

Fire trustee Robert Ulbrich called the meeting "the best we've had" since the two groups began negotiating the merger in January.

Basically, agreements were reached in the following major areas:

—Manpower. If the Aug. 19 referendum that seeks to give the city the fire district's taxing authority passes, the city will subsidize the hiring of three full-time firemen as soon as possible. Immediately prior to the takeover of the district by the city — which now appears to be Jan. 1 — the city will hire three more full-time men, increasing the department's strength to 18 full-time firefighters.

—Salaries. Firemen presently employed by the district will remain for a year on the salary schedule agreed upon between the firemen and the trustees. All firemen now on the job will reach their top salary level and the rank of first class fireman, after 36 months.

According to this plan, the present firemen will be making slightly more than the city's policemen for the next year. In future years, the salary scales for firemen and policemen will be equalized. Any fireman hired in the future will reach his top salary level in five years, which will also correspond with the police department's format.

—Vollunteers. Paid-on-call firemen will get about $4.40 per hour. (They will be guaranteed at least one hour's pay when they respond to a call.)

NEAR THE BEGINNING of Thursday's meeting, fire district President James Service stressed that the trustees' main concern was to secure a commitment from the city that there would be more manpower for the fire department.

Service said the question of additional manpower was "the big thing we've been harping and harping on, and we don't seem to get much satisfaction. We've never had enough men, and I don't think we've put that over to you poeple."

Service said the city offer made about a month ago by the finance committee, to subsidize hiring three more men was not enough.

Ulbrich said he thought "six men would give us an adequate start."

Meyer then proposed that the city hire "three right now — as soon as the referendum goes through — then hire three more when the city takes over the department, and then evaluate" how many additional men the department will need.

According to Service, the city's commitment to hiring more men could help the referendum. "I think getting a commitment on upgrading the department will have a lot of effect on the men in the department," he said. "If they don't feel they're getting a fair shake, they might fight it (the referendum)."

He thought the commitment to increase manpower "would ease any pain they might experience" (in the merger).

Meyer popped a small surprise when he brought up the possibility of training public works employes to serve as volunteer firemen, to further strengthen the manpower pool.

"The city has 14 full-time men in public works that are on duty at all times during the day," he said. "The city could make it a condition of employment in public works that the men train 'X' times a month as volunteer firemen."

THE PUBLIC WORKS crews would not collect paid-on-call firemen's wages in addition to their regular salaries because they would only be on call during the day, when the fire department has difficulty finding volunteers to answer calls.

Meyer said he thinks the council could set these rules for public works, and if a man "doesn't like it, he can find another job." He said this could be done without any additional cost to taxpayers.

In other areas, it appeared from Thursday's meeting that firemen will be fitted into the city's holiday and vacation schedules and insurance programs like all other city employes.

'Fire That Killed 3 Kids Was Arson'

A police detective and a state arson investigator both testified Friday that the May 12 fire in Hoffman Estates that killed three children was deliberately set.

The testimony came during a Cook County coroner's inquest into the deaths of Stephanie, Robert and Todd Gahan, who died in a fire in their home at 129 Des Plaines Ln., Hoffman Estates. All three children were under the age of 10.

Roger Sutton of the state fire marshal's office testified the fire definitely was arson.

Sutton agreed with Sperandeo that foul play was involved in the incident.

An examination of the one-story frame house revealed that at least two fires had been set and that some type of accelerant was used. These explain the intense heat and flames which hampered firefighters' attempts to rescue the youngsters, he said.

Both men said there is a prime suspect in the fire, and the investigation, which now has been conducted for more than 10 weeks, is continuing.

THE SUSPECT'S eyewitness accounts of the fire and information supplied by other sources contained many contradictions, they testified.

The suspect's name, although revealed during the inquest, could not be released, according to court rules.

Medical reports on the three deceased children all revealed more than 50 per cent carbon monoxide in their blood. The examining physicians ruled death was caused by severe burns and asphyxiation.

Both Sperandeo and Sutton declined to reveal what further steps their investigation might reveal.

No charges have been filed in connection with the fire.

Merlin Jones Film To Be Shown Here

"The Misadventures of Merlin Jones" will be the next outdoor movie presented by the Rolling Meadows Park District.

The Walt Disney movie will be shown at the Campbell Street Park after dark on Aug. 18. No admission will be charged.

3-Month Construction Ends, Northwest Tollway Opens

Construction was completed Friday on the eastbound lanes of the Northwest Tollway, ending the three-month highway resurfacing project.

Three lanes in both directions have been restored to normal, although clean-up operations contninue today, according to Illinois Tollway officials.

The eastbound Northwest Tollway, where only a single lane had been open for the past two weeks, was the last of the 22-mile resurfacing on the Tri-State and Northwest tollways to be finished. The work on the Tri-State Tollway ended more than a week ago.

Construction began May 2 on both toll systems. The Tri-State was resurfaced from Ogden Avenue to the juncture of the Northwest Tollway and the Northwest Tollway from the Kennedy Interchange to Meacham Road near Schaumburg.

Total cost of the work was $5,800,000.

As this summer's tollway work ends, consideration is being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Ill. Rte. 137.

Additional work next summer may be scheduled on the Tri-State between Harlem Avenue and Interstate 55.

Park Board Approves New Ice Arena Schedule

A total of 55 public skating hours will be offered at the Rolling Meadows Ice Arena this fall.

The Rolling Meadows Park District Board of Commissioners approved the new arena schedule Thursday.

Public skating hours will be offered from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday through Friday and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Evening public skating sessions will be from 7:30 to 11 p.m. on Sunday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. On Sunday and Wednesday 9 to 11 p.m. will be reserved for adults only.

This is the most public skating hours the park district board has ever offered.

The hockey league will be using the ice arena from 7:30 to 11 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 6 to 11 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

This is the same amount of ice time the hockey league had last year. Extra hours are being added, however, because the gym and meeting rooms will be opened to the hockey league for discussion of theory, team development and chalk sessions.

THE ROLLING Meadows Skating Club will have the ice daily from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The skating club is designed for skaters who have graduated from the basic classes offered by the park district and want to start patch work, free skating and ice dancing.

The Chicago Figure Skating Club will use the ice from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

The ice will be used on Tuesday and Thursday before 10 a.m. for speed skating and on Monday, Wednesday and Friday before 10 a.m. for patch work.

Centex Plans Project

Centex Homes Corp. has presented a preannexation plan to develop 236 acres west of the Winston Knolls subdivision along Algonquin and Freeman roads in Hoffman Estates.

Approximately half of the 236 acres are within the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 boundaries.

The proposed subdivision would contain three zoning classifications: Single-family detached, ownership townhouses and commercial. Plans call for approximately 325 single-family houses and 618 townhouses.

CENTEX ESTIMATES total resident population at 3,837. Of these, 1,285 will be school-age children.

Because the project crosses the boundaries of Palatine and Barrington Township, 705 children will attend elementary school Dist. 4 and High School Dist. 224 in Barrington Township and 580 will attend Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211 in Palatine Township.

Joseph Kiszka, Dist. 15 deputy superintendent who was the only representative from the school district present at a recent Hoffman Estates Plan Commission meeting raised several questions.

Kiszka pointed out that part of the proposed development would be located in one school district and the remainder in another, creating problems for both districts.

The developers indicated they realized the problem but said in working with the terrain of the land it was difficult to come up with street boundaries that followed the district boundaries exactly.

Kiszka also queried the developers about a contribution to the school districts and the extent of the contribution. The developers were directed to meet with district representatives to work this out.

The board's site committee has established guidelines for builder's contributions, said Kiszka. The guidelines call for a contribution of five acres of land and one additional acre for every 100 elementary-age children. The guidelines also call for a $100 contribution for each bedroom in the development.

Kiszka said he has been working with the developers from the beginning and about a year and a half ago they had expressed a willingness to donate a site to the district.

Soil borings of the site found the land buildable but adjacent land designated for playground use was found to be in a retention basin. Ksizka asked the developers if the Metropolitan Sanitary District would require the retention area and if the playground area could be moved to dry land.

"Our school district is not just interested in gaining land. We want approved land and buildable land," said Kiszka.

According to the developers figures, the proposed project will generate $252,000 in revenue to Dist. 15. Based on a conservative estimate of 460 elementary-age children (120 below the developer's own estimates) it would cost the district $368,000 to educate the children.

Kiszka indicated a monetary contribution by the developer would help overcome the tax lag from when the district receives the children and when the district gets tax funds from the project.

DIST. 15 HAS a school site in the Winston Knolls subdivision and approval from voters to build a school on the site by 1974.

Kiszka indicated the Winston Knolls school would not be adequate to handle the children from the adjacent development and another site is necessary. The Howie in the Hills housing development also is proposed nearby.

Kiszka said Centex has been most cooperative with Dist. 15 in the past although it has limited contributions solely to school sites.

Fall, Winter Recreation Program Schedules OKd

Fall and winter recreation program schedules have been approved by the Rolling Meadows Park District Board of Commissioners.

Park district officials hope to have the program brochure out by Sept. 1 and start registration immediately.

Most of the programs are eight weeks long and are scheduled to start the week of Sept. 18 and run until Christmas vacation. No programs will be conducted during the Christmas vacation, leaving the sports complex free for special programs.

The park district will offer 35 programs plus the youth centers and preschool programs. New programs being added this fall include a chess club, women's weekly club, bridge and pinochle night, guitar, soccer, and weight-lifting classes.

Special events in the planning are a Halloween party, Christmas party and ping pong tournament.

Exluding the preschool programs, registration fees will run from $1 to $7.50. The average cost for children's programs is $3 and the average cost for adult programs is $5. No fee was raised more than $1.

NO REGISTRATION fee will be charged for the Women's Weekly Club. Rudy Nelson, recreation supervisor, explained this club will meet weekly and go to luncheons, fashion shows, plays or some other special event. The only fee for the program will be to cover the cost of the special event.

Three youth centers will be conducted this fall. Seventh grade students will meet one night, eighth grade students another and high school students another. The punch cards are being abandoned and instead the youths will be required to purchase a $5 identification card good for the entire year.

Sunday matinee movies for youngsters also will be continued when the weather gets cold.

The park district will conduct programs in Dist. 15 schools and also may be using Rolling Meadows High School for the first time.

LWV Asks Council To Back Referendum

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has reported receiving a letter from the Palatine Township League of Women Voters (LWV) asking the city council to endorse the League's proposed referendum on the question of maintaining township governing bodies.

Meyer said no action has been taken by the council as yet, but he has asked the aldermen to consider taking a position on the referendum.

He expects some city council action, possibly next month.

According to Meyer, the city council should take a position on the issue of the possible dissolution of township government. He said he feels people in the city will be looking for guidance from the elected officials if the referendum appears on the November general election ballot as the LWV hopes.

"This is an important issue," he said, "and people have already been calling me asking what I think of it."

If the LWV can get a spot on the November ballot, they will ask voters in the township to indicate whether they feel township government should be retained.

The LWV is circulating 80 petitions throughout the township, trying to get 1,710 signatures necessary to get the township board of auditors to put the referendum on the November ballot.

They reportedly do not have all the signatures they need. The league is expected to report Aug. 3 on the success of their signature-gathering campaign.

Theater Sought For Park District Vote In October

Village Theater, Inc., would like to see $350,000 added to the Arlington Heights Park District's upcoming $1.7 million referendum. The money would be used to build a theater.

Hank DeGroh, president of Village Theater, will discuss the possibilities of including the theater in the October referendum tonight with the park board at 7:30 at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge.

"We don't want to jeopardize the referendum by this addition. In fact, we think the addition will help the referendum pass," DeGroh said.

IN FEBRUARY, the park district set aside one acre of land on the southwest corner of Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott, on which the group was authorized to build a theater.

At that time, the theater group was planning to sponsor a fund drive to raise the money necessary to build a small theater. After building the theater, Village Theater had planned to give the building to the park district, with the stipulation that it could use it a certain number of hours.

"We still plan to have fund drives to build the theater, but since the theater will serve the entire community, why not let everyone help pay for it," DeGroh said.

DeGroh also believes the theater will pay for itself in the future.

"In Western Springs, a small theater was built with public funds. It was paid off in 10 years," DeGroh said.

DeGroh also suggests that the five area theater groups, which he says have a combined membership of 300 and 2,500 subscribers, cooperate to get a theater built. The groups include Best Off Broadway, Music on Stage, Cameo Players and the Des Plaines Theater Guild.

All the theater groups now perform at Dist. 214 high schools. This coming season, there will be 10 performances in each high school.

"The district has been terrific in scheduling times for us this year, but we need a place of our own," DeGroh said.

IF VILLAGE Theater goes ahead with its plans to build a theater, hopes for a cultural center in Arlington Heights will be greatly diminished, according to Cultural Commission member Donald Morton.

"I'm a little surprised that Village Theater is going ahead with plans for a theater," Morton said. "There certainly isn't a need for two theaters in the village."

Plans for a cultural center date back to 1965 when the Cultural Commission was formed. At that time plans for the construction of a small theater by the Village Theater group, in conjunction with the park district, were scrapped. Plans were revitalized for a park district-village theater project in February.

"We simply can't wait any longer," said DeGroh.

In April the Cultural Commission commissioned George C. Izenour Associates, Inc., to do a $6,000 feasibility study of a cultural center in Arlington Heights. At that time, Village Theater Inc., agreed to hold off plans to build a theater on park property for three months.

"Three months is almost up, and we haven't heard a word from the commission," DeGroh said.

Izenhour is expected to present his preliminary feasibility study to the commission in September, according to Darryl Kenning, assistant village manager and secretary to the Cultural Commission.

THE MEXICAN HAT DANCE was one of the highlights of a Fiesta last week at the United Cerebral Palsy Arlington Heights summer day camp, held at Wilson School, 15 E. Palatine Road. Mickey Kania, program coordinator from Palatine, had as much fun as the 60 children. Also included in the festivities was a bullfight (with children in costumes) and the breaking of a pinata filled with toys.

Long Summer For Dunton Residents

Life isn't particularly easy on N. Dunton Avenue this summer. But residents are finding ways around adversity.

Their problem is that N. Dunton Avenue is completely torn up and barricaded between Euclid Avenue and Oakton Street while workmen put in a new sewer.

"Most people either park on Evergreen or in the parking lot behind St. James. It's a little rough carrying groceries," said Mrs. Henry Hanigan who lives at 903 N. Dunton.

As for garbage collection, she says the Laseke trucks too are forced to wait on nearby side streets while the men walk from house to truck emptying cans. "I really feel sorry for them," she said.

AND THOUGH construction crews who have been hampered by recent rains which turn the street to mud might disagree, Mrs. Hanigan says dust has been a problem.

"Still, there isn't anything you can do about it, so you just live with it," she said philosophically.

Though most garages and driveways stand empty along north Dunton Avenue, Bele Kertay has found a use for his driveway.

Kertay, who lives at 816 N. Dunton, has spread his basement carpet out to dry in his driveway. The carpet was soaked when his basement flooded during the last storm.

"I've never been flooded before and I'm hoping the new sewer will keep the water out," Kertay said.

He too parks on a nearby street where, he says, his car has picked up several new nicks and scratches.

ANOTHER DUNTON Avenue resident was on the sidewalk with a wheelbarrow Friday afternoon, shuttling supplies from his house to a camper trailer parked on a side street.

"We're headed north if we can ever get all our supplies loaded," he said.

Leaving town on vacation is probably one of the best solutions to the inconveniences caused by the sewer construction.

Village officials say that despite setbacks caused by rain and strikes, they are still hoping the Dunton Avenue work will be completed by the early part of September.

In the meantime, residents along the normally quiet, tree-lined street find new ways to tell guests and deliverymen how to find their houses, seek out protected spots to park their cars and, as Mrs. Hanigan says, "learn to live with it."

3-Month Construction Ends, Northwest Tollway Opens

Construction was completed Friday on the eastbound lanes of the Northwest Tollway, ending the three-month highway resurfacing project.

Three lanes in both directions have been restored to normal, although clean-up operations continue today, according to Illinois Tollway officials.

The eastbound Northwest Tollway, where only a single lane had been open for the past two weeks, was the last of the 22-mile resurfacing on the Tri-State and Northwest tollways to be finished. The work on the Tri-State Tollway ended more than a week ago.

Construction began May 2 on both toll systems. The Tri-State was resurfaced from Ogden Avenue to the juncture of the Northwest Tollway and the Northwest Tollway from the Kennedy Interchange to Meacham Road near Schaumburg.

Total cost of the work was $5,800,000.

As this summer's tollway work ends, consideration is being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Ill. Rte. 137.

Additional work next summer may be scheduled on the Tri-State between Harlem Avenue and Interstate 55.

Model Home Burglary

Several pieces of furniture and home furnishings have been reported stolen from a model home at 2401 N. Evergreen Ave., Arlington Heights.

Police report two lamps, two bedspreads, an easy chair, a couch and numerous pillows have been taken from the model.

There was no immediate estimate of the value of the stolen items.

Judge Rules In Favor Of CTE On Back Taxes

A Circuit Court judge ruled Friday the Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc., which operates Washington and Arlington Park race tracks, does not owe the state $5.9 million in back parimutuel taxes, interest and penalties.

Judge Earl Arkiss aid since the Illinois Racing Board dealt with Washington and Arlington as separate entities in assigning racing dates and licenses, they were to be taxed separately.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Herbert Caplan aruged CTE should have paid taxes on the combined parimutuel handle, the total amount of money wagered, for both tracks in one lump sum.

If the combined parimutuel handle were taxed as a unit, CTE would have to pay a tax at a rate of 9.5 per cent. CTE paid its taxes for the two tracks separately between 1966 and 1971 at a rate of 8.75 per cent.

Arkiss said there was a distinction between willful tax evasion and tax avoidance through loop holes in the law.

He said "It is the responsibility of the legislature to fill those loop holes and not the perogative of the courts.

Caplan said he will appeal the ruling directly to the Illinois Supreme Court.

Library Reference Section To Be Improved

The recent replacement of two reference librarians at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library will make for more organization in that section of the library, said Harold Ard, executive librarian.

"One of the new staffers is in charge of rearranging pamphlets, and the other is in charge of serials of magazines," said Ard.

The new librarians are Ronald Conner, who earned his bachelor and master of science degrees at the University of Indiana, and Gary Friedman, who earned his bachelor of science degree at Western Michigan University and master of science degree at Rosary College in River Forest.

"Our reference files have been used by business and industry in the area more and more lately," said Ard, "and our telephone inquiries have increased radically."

Ard also said that reciprocal borrowing between all 31 North Suburban Library System libraries has added to the increased business. Since the library board approved reciprocal borrowing, nearly five months ago, 4,739 more items have been borrowed from Arlington Heights library than Arlington Heights residents have borrowed from other NSLS libraries.

"Since we get 50 cents for each item borrowed over what residents borrow from other libraries, we will receive nearly $2,400 for the 'unbalance' of trade," Ard said.

Another new addition to the library is a scuba diving exhibit in the main showcase. The exhibit was put up Sunday by a local scuba enthusiast. The other library showcase, adjacent to the children's reading room, has a display of the metric system, recently put up by the local Metric Association.

For Saturday Shoppers

Two Hours Of Free Parking!

Saturday shoppers in downtown Arlington Heights will be able to take advantage of two hours of free parking in commuter parking lots starting Saturday.

The village, in cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce, has designated the lots along both sides of the railroad tracks between Highland Avenue and Arlington Heights Road for the free-two-hour Saturday parking.

The lot at the northwest corner of Sigwalt Street and Arlington Heights Road directly across from the Municipal Building will also be free to Saturday shoppers.

FREE PARKING does not extend, however, to street meters, to the parking spaces directly north of the train depot between Dunton and Evergreen avenues or to the parking lot located between Dunton and Vail avenues.

And all-day parkers will still be required to pay 50 cents.

Earl Johnson, executive director of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, said the free parking venture is an effort to make shopping in the central business district easier by relieving traffic congestion and on-street parking pressures.

New silver and blue signs will be used to mark the parking lots. One sign depicts a steam locomotive and reads "12 Hr. Commuter Parking." A second sign uses a picture of a woman with a shopping cart and reads "2 Hr. Shopper Parking." Both signs are marked with a large P.

"The new signs reflect the growing trend across the country to utilize symbols as the primary information source rather than printed information which is difficult to read in traffic," explained assistant village manager Darryl Kenning.

BY 1974, MOST traffic signs will have graphic rather than written messages under the Uniform Traffic Control Devices Manual published by the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"We tried four weeks of free Saturday parking last Christmas, and after Jan. 1 the chamber petitioned the village to extend the policy year-round. I think it is something very tangible that the village and chamber have accomplished," Johnson said.

The new parking policy will be instituted on a one-year trial basis.

Downtown stores will have leaflets and maps publicizing the new parking policy and both downtown banks plan to mail out 38,000 leaflets with their customers' banks statements.

The new policy will make available over 400 free parking spaces for Saturday shoppers, Johnson said.

'Fire That Killed 3 Kids Was Arson'

A police detective and a state arson investigator both testified Friday that the May 12 fire in Hoffman Estates that killed three children was deliberately set.

The testimony came during a Cook County coroner's inquest into the deaths of Stephanie, Robert and Todd Gahan, who died in a fire in their home at 129 Des Plaines Ln., Hoffman Estates. All three children were under the age of 10.

The coroner's jury concluded from the information presented at the inquest "the cause of death cannot be listed as accidental or homicidal." They ruled the cause undetermined.

DET. RON Sperandeo of the Hoffman Estates Police Department said he believes "violence and foul play" were involved in the fire.

Roger Sutton of the state fire marshal's office testified the fire definitely was arson.

Sutton agreed with Sperandeo that foul play was involved in the incident.

An examination of the one-story frame house revealed that at least two fires had been set and that some type of accelerant was used. These explain the intense heat and flames which hampered firefighters' attempts to rescue the youngsters, he said.

Both men said there is a prime suspect in the fire, and the investigation, which now has been conducted for more than 10 weeks, is continuing.

THE SUSPECT'S eyewitness accounts of the fire and information supplied by other sources contained many contradictions, they testified.

The suspect's name, although revealed during the inquest, could not be released, according to court rules.

Medical reports on the three deceased children all revealed more than 50 per cent carbon monoxide in their blood. The examining physicians ruled death was caused by severe burns and asphyxiation.

Both Sperandeo and Sutton declined to reveal what further steps their investigation might reveal.

No charges have been filed in connection with the fire.

Youth Arrested On Fireworks Charge

A Mount Prospect youth was arrested Thursday for the illegal discharge of fireworks.

Police said that Daniel J. Reder, 17, of 308 S. Waverly Pl., allegedly threw a firecracker from a parked car at the intersection of Henry Street and Eastwood Avenue.

The alleged incident was noticed by police while on a regular patrol about 1:30 p.m. Thursday. Reder was released on $25 bond, pending his Sept. 6 Mount Prospect court date.

Jazz Band To Perform

The Harper College Jazz Band will perform tonight at Hasbrook Park, 333 W. Maude, Arlington Heights, at 8 p.m. in conjunction with the park district's weekly "Musica Under the Stars" program.

The band is composed of 20 musicians.

Preschoolers Here To Be Screened

Preschool children ages three and four will be screened in Dist. 21 this year to find which ones are handicapped, and to what extent they may need extra help.

The Dist. 21 school board Thursday night approved a screening plan drawn up by Donald Brown, director of personnel

The plan meets state requirements listed in House Bill 322-323.

Brown said his plan will meet the requirements of the law but leave some flexibility for change once the program gets started.

The system will include a preliminary registration form, a nurse's interview and a questionnaire to determine a child's abilities and handicaps. The Dist. 21 director of special education, the school psychologist, a social worker and a nurse will be involved in the studies.

DIST. 21 PRESENTLY has its own sequential program for school-age, educable mentally handicapped children, and has a joint agreement with the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization for trainable mentally handicapped, deaf and hard-of-hearing children.

The new program will help identify children with the above afflictions, plus children with learning disabilities, language development problems or any other types of handicaps which deviates significantly from normal, Brown said. He estimated that 60-70 children might be involved, in Dist 21.

Brown has included in the plan an evaluation at mid-year, to see what is and isn't working, and to develop a model program within the district for thorough observation, in order to plan a full program for the 1973-74 school year.

Staff members already in Dist. 21 will be utilized in the program, as well as aides and volunteers.

Program planning for each child will be based on the results of each in-depth study, according to the plan. If, after the in-depth review, a child seems to be developing within the normal range in social, emotional, language and motor function, no program will be offered. Each case will be reviewed within one year.

SOME CHILDREN may be placed in special facilities, such as the Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center, and a program will be developed within the district for children whose handicaps are primarily in speech and language.

The entire new program is geared toward involving three and four-year-old handicapped children in the school district programs — children who have previously been outside a normal elementary school scope.

The Dist. 21 program will encourage parent participation. Home-school interaction will be created through regularly scheduled parent-staff conferences at least once each six weeks. Brown said the program will also work in cooperation with existing community agencies in related areas.

Schools Personnel Chief Quits For Downstate Job

Donald Brown, Elementary School Dist. 21 director of personnel, announced at the Dist. 21 Board meeting Thursday that he is resigning to accept a job as superintendent of a school district in Carrolton, Ill.

Brown has been with Dist. 21 since 1960. He was principal of Louisa May Alcott School for six years and was then promoted to personnel director.

He was also a special education instructor and director. Brown was on the specifications committee during the designing of the Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center, and was active in the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

When Brown started in Dist. 21 there was one special education class. Now he estimates there are 20-25, with at least one in each of the district's 15 schools.

A Palatine resident, Brown came to the suburban area from Delavan, Ill., where he was principal at an elementary and junior high school. He has degrees from Greenville College and Bradley University, with a certificate of advanced study from Northern Illinois University.

The board accepted his resignation with regret. He will begin his new duties in August.

The board also approved a plan to install air conditioning at Nathaniel Hawthorne School. John Barger, assistant superintendent, said that the air conditioning was not installed when the school was built because there was not enough money in the bond issue.

Barger said the district now has enough money for the estimated $11,435 job, and the board gave approval to Barger to award the contract to the James W. Hardy Co. The firm had bid on air conditioning the building when it was new, and was low bidder at that time. Barger said the new bid reflects only rising costs in materials and labor.

The Horace Mann Insurance Co. was selected by the board to provide insurance for the 26 administrative personnel in Dist. 21, Barger had recommended that action.

The agenda for the meeting had included discussion of bids for the two new schools in the district and discussion of bids for a monitoring system, but Barger said both items were still being analyzed and he had no recommendations. Both should be on the agenda for the next meeting.

The board accepted the resignations of six teachers. Board members Edwin Smith and L. James Wylie were absent.

Devon-53 Project 'Financial Boon'

Developers of the Devon-53 housing project, in a meeting last Thursday with representatives of local government agencies, contended that the development would be a financial windfall for local governments.

Devon-53 is a 267-acre project involving four developers using a common plan. The project will eventually have more than 6,400 apartment dwellings and 91 single-family dwellings.

The project is a complex of three areas. The first is immediately east of I-90 on Devon. The second is bounded by I-90, Devon and Rte. 53. The third section is immediately west of Rte. 53, approximately centered on Biesterfield Road.

The development site is in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The developers Arvidson Reality Co., Inc., Parkways Developers Co., J. D. Zizzo and Associates and Joe Buttitta, are seeking annexation to Elk Grove Village.

Thursday's meeting was the first official opportunity for representatives of school, park, library and planning agencies, among others, to meet the developers. Plans for the project had been circulated earlier. The board of trustees of Elk Grove Village has been meeting with the developers.

WILTON BATTLES, spokesman for Rolf C. Campbell & Associates, the planner for the project, outlined the development.

The developers gave rough estimates of the cost range for the dwellings. Single-family homes would range from $35,000 to $50,000. Condominiums would range from $25,000 to $45,000. Fourplexes would be in the mid-20s. Apartments would be approximately $200 per month for a one-bedroom unity. Most of the apartments would be one bedroom and efficiency apartments.

Battles said that the project was tentatively planned to take eight years to complete. The developers hope to start groundbreaking next spring.

When completed, the project will have a market value of $160 million and an assessed tax value of almost $90 million.

BASED ON current tax rates, the completed project will bring an aggregate $4.6 million to four school districts, $237,500 to the Elk Grove Park District, $126,000 to the Elk Grove Village Public Library and $100,000 back to the village from sales tax on retail sales from stores in the complex.

In addition, the developers, in compliance with village policy, are donating 10 per cent of land, or approximately 27 acres, to the village. Charles Zettek, president of the village board, said that most of this land would go to the park district if the district wanted to accept the land. Some of the donation may be used for a school site and a fire station.

Battles said the development would eventually bring an estimated population of 13,000 into the village, if annexation was approved. About 1,000 children would be included in the total 13,000.

Faculty, Board Meet 7 Hours

Negotiating teams for the Wheeling Faculty Council and the Dist. 21 board of education met for about seven hours Thursday in a closed session with federal mediator Ed Wise.

Representatives of the two teams agreed not to discuss the negotiations with news media, but did say a second meeting has been scheduled for Aug. 9. That meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the Dist. 21 Administration Building, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

The teams had declared impasse after several public negotiations sessions, and requested the federal mediator last month. The teams were deadlocked on salary, benefits and procedural issues.

Representatives of both sides said results of the negotiations would not be released until after a decision has been reached. If the mediator cannot settle the dispute, a fact-finder could be called in.

Club To Exhibit Scuba Techniques

Scuba demonstrations will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Olympic Park pool, 660 N. Ridge, by the Aquarians, the Arlington Heights Park District scuba club.

The demonstration is free, and will include an oral presentation as well as an in-the-water exhibition.

"We are trying to encourage young adults to become interested in scuba diving, and let them know what to expect from scuba classes which will be held in the fall," said Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation.

Adventures of Your Garbageman

It's widely known that open garbage cans are a menace to health. They attract vermin and breed thousands of flies, to spread disease . . . which is why a village ordinance requires all garbage cans to be equipped with proper covers.

We have just been ordered by the village Health Department to report all cases where garbage cans are not equipped with suitable covers or lids.

The Health Department tells us it will condemn any can used for household garbage which does not have a cover.

This village-wide survey and report will be made during the week beginning August 7. If any of your garbage cans are not cover-equipped, please obtain covers before August 7 and save us both from inconvenience and possible penalty.

Open Series Of Debates

Candidates Young, Mikva Divided On Busing Issue

Congressional candidates Samuel Young and U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., opened a series of campaign debates Friday night, differing on the issue of school busing and agreeing that marijuana penalties should be reduced.

Speaking to a standing room only audience of more than 600 persons at New Trier West High School, the two 10th District contenders clashed most sharply over busing children to achieve school integration. Young condemned "illogical busing" while Mikva called it "one of the great non-issues."

"I believe busing is an illogical way of trying to answer the problem of trying to get a quality education for students,"

Abner Mikva

Samuel Young

said Young, the Republican candidate who is an attorney from Glenview. The important thing, he said, is to assure quality education for all school children.

"In my opinion, it's not the answer to quality schools or to quality education, so I oppose illogical busing," Young said.

MIKA, WHO said busing "is not going to be the sollution" to education problems, maintained, however, that the courts should not be hampered in their efforts to enforce integration orders under the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 decision banning segregation.

"Busing is one of the tools that the courts must have in order to stop the practice of de jure (by law) segregation," he said.

"I will not do a single thing as a member of Congress to undermine the capacity of the court to enforce that ruling," said Mikva, who moved to Evanston last year from Chicago to run for re-election in the new North Suburban 10th District.

"As a matter of fundamental constitutional law, there's nothing we as members of Congress can do about it," he added.

Their responses came to a question asking both candidates to give their positions on busing students in or out of New Trier schools, Mikva said he saw no reason to suggest busing students out of New Trier schools, while Young said he is "also opposed to busing students into New Trier."

The encounter was the first of some 14 scheduled debates, including one Sept. 20 in Des Plaines, that will be held throughout the 10th District, which is made up of Maine, Niles, Evanston, New Trier and Northfield townships.

BOTH MEN, when asked their opinions of a bill legalizing use of marijuana, indicated they would vote against it. But both candidates said they favored changes in marijuana laws.

Young advocated laws providing different penalties for use of marijuana and for hard drugs. First offenders of marijuana laws should be given the option of going to a drug counseling school, with their offense then being removed from their record, he said.

Mikva said his opposition to legalized marijuana "does not imply in any way, shape or form that I favor the existing laws." He advocated reduced penalties for marijuana possession but said the law should continue to "come down hard on the commercial sale of marijuana or hashish."

At several points during the debate, Young praised both President Nixon and U. S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and indicated his support for their positions on a number of different issues.

Young, who defeated County Commissioner Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines in the primary election, also invited Democrats offended by the ouster of Mayor Richard Daley's delegates at the Democratic National Convention to support GOP candidates in November.

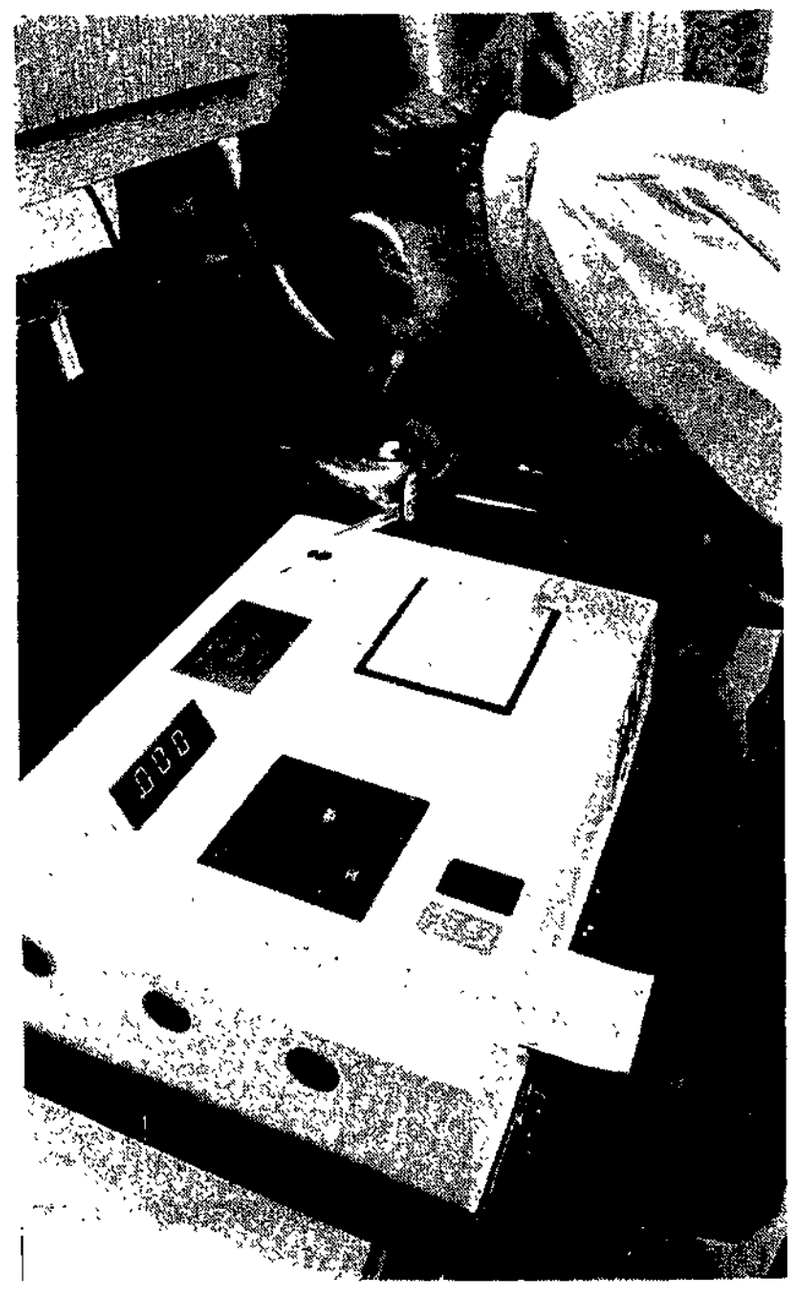
Mikva, who often received louder applause after his responses than did Young and seemed to have more of his supporters in the high school auditorium, said in response to a question that he does not support incumbent State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan.

HE SAID he wished Hanrahan would have had the "sensitivity" to take a leave of absence after being indicted in connection with the events that followed the 1969 Black Panther raid. Mikva declared that Hanrahan has an "awesome kind of gall" to run for reelection while under indictment.

Young criticized Congress for failing to act on many of President Nixon's proposals. The foreign aid, housing and welfare programs passed by the Democrat-controlled Congress haven't cured the problems they were designed to solve, Young said.

Proposals to cut defense spending "would be a disaster for the United States," said Young. He also said tax reform measures favored by some Democrats "would turn this from a capitalistic country to a socialistic country."

Young advocated welfare reforms and at one point said "a person on welfare in the United States has a better standard of living than three-fourths of the people of the whole world."



THE DES PLAINES POLICE Department has become the first law enforcement agency in the state to receive the new breathalyzer which is required to enforce Illinois' implied-consent drunk driver law. Shipment delays have caused postponement of the law's enforcement until September. Police say the new machine has an automatic printout and is the only one in use in the United States. Coming up perfectly sober in this test is John Dorko of the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Steals Car, Then Wrecks, Returns It

An unidentified youth stole an auto from a parking lot on Graceland Avenue Thursday, was later involved in a minor accident and then returned the car to the parking lot before the owner realized it was missing.

According to police reports, the youth took the 1963 Chevrolet from the Berkey Photo Service, Inc., parking lot, 220 Graceland Ave., sometime after 8:15 a.m.

About 3 p.m. police received a report that a 1963 Chevrolet struck another auto across the street at Henry's Drive-In Restaurant, 1500 Rand Rd. Witnesses told police the auto damaged the rear fender of a parked auto then drove off. About 15 minutes later, Patrolman Jack Muhs saw the missing Chevrolet sitting in the Berkey's Photo Service lot.

The car's owner, Louise Becker, 17, 222 Traver Ave., Glen Ellyn, a Berkey's employe, told Muhs the Chevrolet did not have any damage on the front fender before it was stolen.

Police said the youth, who apparently stole the car and then returned it, was described by witnesses as five feet six inches tall, about 16 years old with short curly hair.

Two other autos were also reported stolen Thursday. Stephanie Kosarzecki, 1951 Webster Ln., Des Plaines, told police someone took her 1965 Chevrolet from the driveway of her home sometime Wednesday night.

THE WOMAN SAID she parked the auto, valued at $800, in the driveway at 10 p.m. and discovered it missing at 7 a.m. the next morning.

A stolen auto belonging to Allen Morris, 325 Wilkins Dr., Des Plaines, was found abandoned in the 400 block of Lynn Court, Des Plaines, Thursday night after a resident there reported a suspicious car in the neighborhood.

According to the reports, the Lynn Court resident saw an unidentified man park a 1968 Volkswagen on the street, remove the spare tire from the trunk and leave in another auto waiting for him.

Police traced the car back to Morris who reportedly told police he didn't even know his car had been stolen.

3-Month Construction Ends, Northwest Tollway Opens

Construction was completed Friday on the eastbound lanes of the Northwest Tollway, ending the three-month highway resurfacing project.

Three lanes in both directions have been restored to normal, although clean-up operations continue today, according to Illinois Tollway officials.

The eastbound Northwest Tollway, where only a single lane had been open for the past two weeks, was the last of the 25 mile resurfacing on the Tri-State and Northwest tollways to be finished. The work on the Tri-State Tollway ended more than a week ago.

Construction began May 2 on both toll systems. The Tri-State was resurfaced from Ogden Avenue to the juncture of the Northwest Tollway and the Northwest Tollway from the Kennedy Interchange to Meacham Road near Schaumburg.

Total cost of the work was $5,800,000.

As this summer's tollway work ends, consideration is being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Ill. Rte. 137.

Additional work next summer may be scheduled on the Tri-State between Harlem Avenue and Interstate 55.

Board Backs Vocational Teachers

Board of education members gave Maine Township High School vocational teachers a vote of confidence Thursday night following criticism of the district's vocational education program by state education officials.

Board members and administrators expressed a desire to cooperate with state officials but rejected some recommendations by the state following reports from chairmen of the district's vocational programs.

Although the evaluation team from the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction praised many aspects of the district's vocational program when they visited Maine schools last February, they recommended that the district de-emphasize college preparatory courses for students in vocational programs, that an administrator in charge of vocational education be placed in the district office, that a formal student placement service be introduced and that teachers be more "innovative" in their teaching methods.

OLIVER W. BROWN, chairman of the business education program, said allowing the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to "dictate" to district officials is not worth the reimbursement the district's vocational programs receive from the state. Although the amount of state aid varies from year to year, it usually exceeds $200,000.

Robert Cochrane, chairman of the district's industrial education program, disagreed that college preparatory courses such as physics, trigonometry and calculus be eliminated from the vocational program. "Instead of de-emphasizing college prep we should try to strengthen all our courses," he said.

Many students in the vocational program go on to college, said Chochrane, and they need these courses. Ninety per cent of last year's graduating class had taken a job skills course during high school, according to Merlin W. Schults, coordinator of Pupil Personnel Services, and he said 73 per cent of the class entered college or trade school following graduation.

Michael Myers, Dist. 207 administrative assistant, also is unofficial coordinator of the district's vocational program. Board members and teachers said the "titled" position of district vocational director is unnecessary and would create unneeded bureaucracy.

"The good thing at Maine is that there are only a few chiefs and a lot of Indians," said Leonard Grazian, board member. Grazian praised department chairmen for their work and encouraged them to continue operating as they have in the past.

THE DEPARTMENT chairmen also said there was no need to hire a placement officer for graduating vocational students. Schultz said guidance counselors in each school post a list of available jobs each year and most vocational students have been hired before they graduate.

State officials also criticized teachers, saying they were "too traditional" and should use more innovative teaching methods. Cochrane responded by pointing out that Dist. 207 piloted many new vocational courses six years ago which have since been copied throughout the state. Brown said the evaluation was "superficial" and that vocational programs ir Maine high schools continue to be among the top in the state.

The department chairmen agreed to form interdepartmental workshops to set up a clear statement of program objectives and means of evaluation for state officials when they conduct a second evaluation next February.

Commuters May Face New North Western Fare Hikes

The possibility of added fare hikes and cutbacks in suburban commuter service was raised by Larry S. Provo, president of the Chicago and North Western Ry.

Provo, presenting testimony before the Illinois Commission for Economic Development, said "inadequate rate increases and increasing subsidized competition" are troubling the railroad.

This combination, Provo told participants at the Chicago session, "will force us to seek a further increase in the near future, and also, in order to reduce our costs and preserve the viability of our service, to consider reductions to the communities we serve."

COMMENTING ON last week's announcement by the Illinois Commerce Commission that it will allow a 5¼ per cent fare increase for the C & N starting tomorrow, Provo said, "We sought a 7 per cent increase to stop the deterioration of income . . . the 5¼ per cent raise given to the railroad will mean that the company will still be losing money on its suburban service."

On March 1 of this year, according to Provo, the C & NW experienced its first losses on suburban commuter operations in eight years. Provo contends that subsidies to the Chicago Transit Authority make competition impossible for the railroad.

Provo made his remarks as a preface to his endorsement of the Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System proposal. The system would set up a unified agency to operate all mass transit facilities in the metropolitan area.

No timetable has yet been worked out for a possible fare increase or cutbacks in service, according to a C & NW spokesman.

"We don't want to reduce service," the spokesman said. "This is the last thing we want to do. This is why we are behind the idea of a single, mass transit planning operation. Nobody has been making a profit but us, and now those profits are eroding."

ALTHOUGH THE C&NW gained approval of a 7 per cent fare hike in June, 1971, the railroad said this was not adequate to meet rising costs. It went before the Illinois Commerce Commission in February to seek an added 7 per cent fare increase, which Provo contends is the lowest possible increase it could have requested to meet costs and would have covered only last year's wage increases.

The 5¼ per cent fare increase finally granted by the commission came four months after the April 1 date sought by the C & NW.

"Had we gained the 7 per cent increase when we asked for it, on April 1, in the intervening time since then we would have gained an additional $500,000 in revenues," according to the railway spokesman.

"A large segment of the C & NW's suburban work force received a 5 per cent wage increase April 15 this year. Another 5 per cent wage boost is slated for the workers Oct. 15."

Provo said earnings from suburban operations have declined sharply since 1968, when they reached $2.4 million. Earnings dropped to $1.6 million in 1971 and continued to fall this year. The railroad became employe-owned on June 1.

Among other participants favoring a unified mass transit system for the city and suburbs at the hearing were Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, and U. S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson.

Devon-53 Project 'Financial Boon'

Developers of the Devon-53 housing project, in a meeting last Thursday with representatives of local government agencies, contended that the development would be a financial windfall for local governments.

Devon-53 is a 267-acre project involving four developers using a common plan. The project will eventually have more than 6,400 apartment dwellings and 91 single-family dwellings.

The project is a complex of three areas. The first is immediately east of I-90 on Devon. The second is bounded by I-90, Devon and Rte. 53. The third section is immediately west of Rte. 53, approximately centered on Biesterfield Road.

The development site is in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The developers Arvidson Reality Co., Inc., Parkways Developers Co., J. D. Zizzo and Associates and Joe Buttitta, are seeking annexation to Elk Grove Village.

Thursday's meeting was the first official opportunity for representatives of school, park, library and planning agencies, among others, to meet the developers. Plans for the project had been circulated earlier. The board of trustees of Elk Grove Village has been meeting with the developers.

WILTON BATTLES, spokesman for Rolf C. Campbell & Associates, the planner for the project, outlined the development.

The developers gave rough estimates of the cost range for the dwellings. Single-family homes would range from $35,000 to $50,000. Condominiums would range from $25,000 to $45,000. Fourplexes would be in the mid-20s. Apartments would be approximately $200 per month for a one-bedroom unity. Most of the apartments would be one bedroom and efficiency apartments.

Battles said that the project was tentatively planned to take eight years to complete. The developers hope to start groundbreaking next spring.

When completed, the project will have a market value of $160 million and an assessed tax value of almost $90 million.

BASED ON current tax rates, the completed project will bring an aggregate $4.6 million to four school districts, $237,500 to the Elk Grove Park District, $126,000 to the Elk Grove Village Public Library and $100,000 back to the village from sales tax on retail sales from stores in the complex.

In addition, the developers, in compliance with village policy, are donating 10 per cent of land, or approximately 27 acres, to the village. Charles Zettek, president of the village board, said that most of this land would go to the park district if the district wanted to accept the land. Some of the donation may be used for a school site and a fire station.

Battles said the development would eventually bring an estimated population of 13,000 into the village, if annexation was approved. About 1,000 children would be included in the total 13,000.

Battles stressed that the project was planned, "not abruptly, but over a period of years." Building would be done on all sites simultaneoulsy.

The children will attend school in elementary districts 54 and 59 and high school districts 214 and 211. Battles said the projected breakdown of student population was: 520 students to Dist. 59, 154 students to Dist. 54, 241 students to Dist. 214 and 65 students to Dist. 211.

THE TWO sections of the development east of Rte. 53 are in districts 59 and 211. The single section west of Rte. 53 is in districts 54 and 211.

The student population figures are based on studies of housing projects similar to Devon-53.

Battles said that based on 1970-71 education figures, it would cost slightly more than $1 million to educate the childen from the completed development. Since the project will produce $4.6 million in school taxes, the schools stand to gain approximately $3.6 million yearly once Devon-53 is finished, according to Battles.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Out of dishwasher detergent and with a full load of dishes to be washed, I thought it wouldn't hurt to use one of the mild dishwashing liquids. I used two small squirts, turned on the machine, then went upstairs to make beds and so on. When I came down, I was astounded by the foamy residue which had poured into the hall, and was about to go onto the living room carpet. With mop and towels I was able to hold up the sudsy flood and clean up. You can bet I'll never use anything but dishwasher detergent. —Emily Blucker

Glad you brought it up. So many people ask if they can't use various substitutes for dishwasher detergent. You've just proved why it can't be done.

Dear Dorothy: Do you have any suggestions for keeping the robins from picking the berries off our beautiful holly tree? Last year they snitched every single berry. —Mabel Willis

As a rule, people will cover fruit-bearing shrubs with nylon nets to keep little marauders away, but it wouldn't be very attractive on your holly tree. You might try flinging around a couple of nylon stockings filled with mothballs, to simulate snakes, or attach an artificial owl which usually keeps other birds away.

Dear Dorothy: One of the best hints I ever got out of the Home Line was to use toothpaste to wash your hands after handling fish. Now all of us — husband, son and myself — make sure there is always a tube in the tackle box. It really works. I suggest repeating it now that the fishing season is here. —Mrs. James Mudd

Right on! And an equally good tip it is for all who just handle fish from the store — who have rarely enjoyed the delights of fishing.

Best Man In Wheelchair

The best man was in a wheelchair, but the wedding of Wendy Mueller and Drake Mertes went off as scheduled July 2 in First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines.

Robert Fowler of Des Plaines, the best man, was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident several months before the wedding and had to get a special pass from the hospital to "stand up" with Drake.

The ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Mueller, 2065 Plainfield Drive, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin J. Mertes, 1524 Sixth Ave., took place at 4:30 p.m.

WENDY WORE an Empire styled gown of ivory silk organza with long sleeves that tapered to a point. Venise lace trimmed the sleeves, the wide scoop neck and the train of the dress. Her waist length mantilla veil was held in place by a crown of lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis, yellow Sweetheart roses, baby's breath and ivy. Wendy later removed the ivy from her bouquet, and rooted it for a house plant in her new home.

Debbie Heavey of Des Plaines, the matron of honor, was attired in an Empire gown of pale yellow dotted voile with ribbon trim. It had a scoop neck, short puffed sleeves and a full ruffle at the bottom of the skirt.

Donna Mertes of Des Plaines, the groom's sister, and Mary Sundstrom, also of Des Plaines, were the bridesmaids. They wore dresses identical to the matron of honor's, and all three attendants carried natural wicker baskets filled with white daisies, yellow Sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

USHERS INCLUDED Larry Waring, Michael Mayer, Daniel Dows and James Waring, all of Des Plaines.

Among the special wedding guests were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Walker from Huntington Beach, Calif.

The wedding reception was held in the Lincolnwood American Legion Hall.

Following a week's honeymoon in Florida, the couple is at home at 1563 Ellinwiod St. in Des Plaines. Wendy, a '69 graduate of Maine West, works as a secretary with Blue Cross, and Drake, also a '69 graduate of Maine West, will be a senior at Northwestern this fall. After graduation he plans to attend law school. He also works for Deemer Graphics.

Ronnie Lata, Bob Daniels Wed July 2 At St. Stephen's

Ronnie Lata, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Lata of 1929 Ash St., Des Plaines, became the bride of Bob Daniels in a 3 p.m. ceremony July 2 in St. Stephen's Catholic Church.

Bob's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daniels of 2210 Spruce, Des Plaines.

Ronnie's long-sleeved Empire style dress had a lace stand-up collar and lace bib. Its A-line skirt and train were of organza. She carried a cascade of white carnations and fuji mums interspaced with yellow roses.

Her attendants were Toni Jacobsen of Des Plaines, the maid of honor; her sisters, Mary and Joey Lata of Des Plaines; and the bridegroom's sisters, Darlene and Donna Daniels of Des Plaines. Their dresses were alike except for color. Floor-length, they had long sleeves and Empire waists and were trimmed in a floral design. The maid of honor's dress was coral color while the bridesmaids' were an apricot brandy shade.

THE CARNATIONS in their bouquets matched their dresses and were combined with yellow roses and baby's breath.

Jim Pier of Des Plaines was best man. Dave Daniels, the bridegroom's brother, and Stan Lata, the bride's brother, ushered along with Joe Lucas and John Dolan. All are Des Plaines residents.

A reception at the Casa Royale followed the wedding.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon in Colorado and now are at home at 4736 Arbor Drive, Rolling Meadows.

Ronnie was graduated in June from Maine West and works at the Mount Prospect Nursery School and Day Care Center. Bob, a '70 Maine West graduate, attended the University of Detroit and is now a student at Oakton Community College.

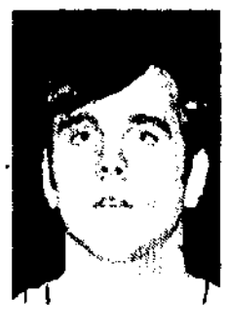
Des Plaines 5-1 Victor...

by TOM CARKEEK

Merv Fink was worried about his pitching.

With one of the aces of his staff, Rick Haaning, out of the Ninth District tournament with a broken bone in his foot, the Des Plaines head coach felt that a shortage of hurlers would be his main problem if Post 36 advanced in the tourney.

But there was no cause for concern over the Des Plaines pitching Friday, as Bob Sobieski sprinkled four hits over nine innings and helped his team to a 5-1 victory over Norwood Park in the first round of the tournament. Des Plaines won the right to meet Logan Square Saturday.



Steve Scholten

Sobieski was flawless after the first batter in the third inning. After Tom Ward led off the inning with a double to left, Sobieski allowed no more hits and only three more base runners, two on walks and one a hit batsman.

Sobieski was rocked in the first frame when Ward led off with a base hit and was wild pitched to second. One out later, Lee Larson rapped a hard single to left to score Ward and give Norwood a short-lived lead.

The Des Plaines starter surrendered a harmless single to Bob Colletti in the second, but after Ward's hit in the third inning, the Norwood Park bats fell silent.

Post 36 answered Norwood's first-inning tally with two of its own. With one out, Bob Chen walked but was forced out by Randy Jespersen. Then Jespersen stole second, but it really didn't matter because catcher Steve Scholten stepped to the plate and clouted a long home run over the left-field fence off Norwood Park's Nick Colletti.

Colletti, a superb athlete who lends an aura of class to an otherwise undisciplined lot, was making his first appearance on the mound in almost a month. The muscular all-star selection exhibited a jerky motion in the early going, but seemed to settle down and get back the timing that had made him one of the league's best pitchers prior to his injury the first week of July. Colletti had ruptured an Achilles tendon and was not supposed to play any more baseball this summer, but he has ignored the injury and has taken the field several times anyway.

With Sobeski's stellar job on the hill Des Plaines actually scored all the runs it needed in the first, but Post 36 added one in the fourth and two more in the fifth before retiring for the evening.

After one out in the fourth, Scholten hit a grounder to Ward at shortstop who promptly flung the ball past first baseman Norb Kosinski for his second throwing error in as many innings. Scholten was awarded second on the overthrow. Then Scott Pruitt lifted a lazy fly to short right field which landed among the center fielder, the right fielder and the second baseman, scoring Scholten.

Des Plaines collected two more in the fifth, both after Colletti had struck out Craig Stiles and Sobieski on high third strikes. Then Rich Luzinski walked, stole second and went to third when the throw to second escaped into the outfield. Chen walked on four pitches and he also stole second.

Jespersen then picked up a couple of RBIs by singling to center and driving home both Luzinski and Chen.

Norwood Park came up with three clutch defensive plays which spoiled Des Plaines' threats. In the second, Dale Schoenbeck singled to right. Greg Fink followed, and Schoenbeck was off with the pitch with the hit and run on. But Norwood center fielder Tom Clark speared Fink's drive and rifled a throw to Kosinski to double up Schoenbeck and take Des Plaines out of a potential scoring opportunity.

In the next inning, Chen reached on an error with two out. He stole second and then got a little too anxious by trying to steal third — while Colletti was holding onto the ball. The Norwood Park hurler pivoted and threw to third and cut down Chen for the inning's final out.

And Colletti pulled off another heads up play which has come to be characteristic of him in the seventh. Sobieski started the inning with a hit and Luzinski singled him to second. Both moved up when Colletti, obviously tiring from his gruesome assignment of going nine innings after taking a month off, uncorked a wild pitch. Chen flied out and then Jespersen hit a ground ball to second baseman Rick Wisniewski, who came home with it and caught Sobieski at the plate.

With Luzinski at third and Jespersen at first, Jespersen took off for second and it had all the makings of a successful double steal. But Colletti alertly intercepted the peg to second, whirled and caught the befuddled Luzinski trying to hustle back to third.

But Chen pulled off the defensive play of the day in the sixth. Norwood's Carl Andrews cracked a deep fly to center, Chen raced back and to his left, outstretched his arm, and made a manificent over-the-shoulder grab.

Des Plaines totalled only six hits off the courageous Colletti but took advantage of four Norwood errors and six bases on balls. Ward had two hits for Norwood Park before being tossed out of the game in the fifth for a display of anger over a called third strike, but no one had a hit of Sobieski after the third. "Sobie" walked only two and struck out seven, four of them called, in one of the better mound performances of the season.

STEVE SCHOLTEN tags out Logan Square pitcher Ken Martin in fifth inning of Saturday's game when Martin tried to score from second on Jim Bucaro's hit to center. Bob Chen fielded the ball and rifled an accurate throw to squelch a Logan Square rally. The Lions won 2-0 as Martin pitched a strong two-hitter, walking only two and striking out 15 Des Plaines batters. (Photos by Jay Needleman).

Martin's 2-Hitter Stops Des Plaines

by TOM CARKEEK

Des Plaines' old nemesis struck again Saturday afternoon.

Little Ken Martin beat Post 36 for the third time this season as he fired a masterful two-hit, 15-strikeout shutout and helped Logan Square move past Des Plaines 2-0 and into the Ninth District finals. The Lions meet Palatine for the league championship.

Logan Square downed Des Plaines three straight times during the regular season, with Martin hurling two of those victories. With Saturday's win, Martin is now 3-0 against Post 36. All three of his triumphs came at the expense of young Larry Monroe, who will be a truly great one by the time he graduates from high school in two years.

Bob Sobieski

Martin beat Des Plaines on a five-hitter with 12 strikeouts July 12 and came back eight days later to win again, this time on a four-hit job that featured 11 strikeouts.

But Martin was even better Saturday, mowing down 16 Des Plaines hitters before being touched for two consecutive hits. Bob Chen blooped a single to right and Randy Jespersen followed with a hard slash to left, but after that Martin settled back into form, retired 11 more men, and went home with victory No. 3 over Des Plaines.

Martin struck out two men in every inning but the third and seventh, including Scott Pruitt and Dale Schoenbeck three times each. Ken mixed his fastball with off-speed pitches and caught six Des Plaines batters looking.

Logan Square tallied single runs in the first and the second. Monroe became his own downfall on the first run. After he walked Mike Garbus, Monroe tried to pick him off first but instead threw the ball into the dirt and past Pruitt, allowing Garbus to scoot over to third. A base hit by Stan Bobowski brought Garbus home.

Three singles produced a run in the second. Ed Collins led off with a base hit and then Monroe got Joe Bombicino and Craig Zander for two outs. But Steve Bobowski got an infield hit and then Tom Chapman lashed a clean single to right, scoring Collins.

Logan Square peppered away at Monroe for a total of 10 hits with Jim Bucaro, Stan Bobowski and Collins collecting a pair each. Monroe enjoyed only three innings in which he managed to hold the Lions hitless.

Martin pitched his way out of jams in the third and the sixth. A walk, an error, and two sacrifice bunts put runners on second and third with only one out in the third, but Martin got both Chen and Jespersen to pup up to Bucaro and stifle the threat.

In the sixth, Chen and Jespersen registered the only two hits off Martin with one out, but Ken fanned both Steve Scholten and Pruitt to keep his shutout intact.

Mid-Teen 1st Round Playoffs Rolling

Regular season play has come to a conclusion in the Des Plaines Mid-Teen Baseball League and playoffs for the tournament have begun.

Elks and Kunkel played Sunday to break their tie for the first-round title in the National League and the right to meet second round champ First National Tuesday. The winner of the Tuesday game will be declared the National League champion.

Allen's and Johnson will play today to determine the first-half American League titlist. Since Allen's has already clinched the second round in the American League, they would be the overall champions if they win tonight. However, should Johnson defeat Allen's tonight, the two would go at each other again Wednesday to decide the American League championship.

The league tournament, a best-of-three series between the American and National League winners, will begin either Thursday or Friday.

In the final games of the regular season, Optimists played to a 2-2 tie with Johnson and Elks ripped Sellergren 7-0 Thursday. Johnson forfeited to the Optimists and First National defeated Kunkel Friday. Saturday, Bantam forfeited to the Optimists and the Allen's-Johnson game was not played when neither squad could field a full team.
